In the Gulf of Finland the Finns id the Russians occupied Suurari (Hogland) island after seven ys of shelling and bombing. (A oscow communique said the Russans occupied the island four days go.)

Villages on the island were said have been leveled by the Soviet g guns and air bombs. The isnd's defenders, however, made eir escape.

Finns Forced Back

On the Central front, the Finns nnounced that Finnish troops were rced to withdraw from Suomusalmi, village about fifteen miles om the frontier.

Heavy artillery thundered today n both sides of the front at umma, a village only twenty miles om the ancient Finnish city of iipuri and forty miles within Finnd.

Colonel Alexander Mellbloom, ommandant of the Viipuri sector, aid the Russian advance had been alted momentarily, but expressed elief Russia was bringing up fresh roops for a new assault.

Unusual Finnish success against he Russian tanks, Mellbloom said, as due to Soviet use of old-fashoned models with thin armor plate, oor handling and a powerful new wedish Anti-tank gun.

Russia's mechanized army is still eing held up by the weather. It is itterly cold along the front but not old enough to freeze the lakes for se by foot soldiers let alone tanks nd trucks. A big freeze was expected soon, however.

Many Help Finns Following Hoover Appeal to Public

Hundreds of Newspapers Offer To Accept Contributions

Los Angeles, Dec. 8. (AP)—A flood of telegrams from American newspapers, individuals and organizations pledging support to the Finnish relief fund followed an appeal today by former President Herbert Hoover.

Many were received at his hotel suite here and others went to headquarters of the fund in New York city.

They included responses from hundreds of newspapers, more than 100 of them in larger cities, agreeing to act as agencies for collection of contributions to the fund, of which Mr. Hoover is the head.

"We are tremendously encouraged by the response, and by the speed with which collection of the fund can be accomplished," said the former chairman of the wartime commission for relief in Belgium.

"We have high hopes that we shall be in a position to start actual purchases and dispatching of cargoes within a few

Kennedy Supports Proposal To Give FDR a Third Term

Ambassador to London Raises Hopes of the New Dealers

MAY LEAD CAMPAIGN FOR THE PRESIDENT

Looked upon by Many as Logical Man To Conduct Campaign

By RICHARD L. TURNER

Washington, Dec. 8. (AP)—The "draft Roosevelt" movement received a powerful stimulant today from Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, one that obviously bolstered the hopes and expectations of the New Dealers who have been urging a third term.

Standing in the spotlight that pours upon a newly returned ambassador to a great nation at war, Kennedy openly called for Mr. Roosevelt's re-election by asserting that he and he only was capable of conducting the nation's affairs in the present troubled foreign and domestic situation.

His statement vastly encouraged the New Deal supporters who openly or behind the scenes have been fostering the third term movement, because Kennedy is the man they marked long ago to assume the leadership.

May Run Campaign

In addition, his assertions recalled persistent reports of several weeks ago that, at the proper time, Kennedy would return from London to take charge of the third-term campaign.

Not that his arrival and statement of today were regarded as corroboration of those reports. The "proper time" has abviously not yet arrived. He must go back to London soon, but he could return to America in the tense days preceding the Democratic convention and more effectively take over the "draft Roosevelt" movement.

The movement, itself, has been receiving stimuli all week long. First there was Senator Norris' appeal to Mr. Roosevelt to continue his silence on whatever his 1940 plans may be, coupled with a statement that the president was the only man capable of attracting the solid support of the nation's liberal or progressive elements.

Ickes Again Backs F. D. R.

Then, yesterday, Secretary Ickes renewed his advocacy of a third term by throwing cold water upon the candidacy of Paul V. McNutt, with a statement that he had seen no indications that Mr. Roosevelt

Finns To Fight To the End, Ryti Says over Radio

Declares Russian Calculations of Weakness Have Miscarried

SAYS SPIRIT OF ARMY CANNOT BE BROKEN

And He's Sure Results Will Be Disappointment to Russia

Helsinki, Dec. 8 (AP)—Russian calculations of Finnish weakness have miscarried because the Finns will "fight to the end—even after the end," Prime Minister Risto Ryti declared tonight in a nationwide broadcast.

"Russian action against Finland was based on incorrect information and an error in calculation," he declared.

"It was supposed that the defensive capacity and the spirit of the Finnish army and nation could be broken by savage destruction which the whole civilized world abhors. The result will be a disappointment to Soviet Russia."

Ryti's address followed a statement by the government that since the Soviet Russian government itself holds that there is no war against Finland there can be no legal justification for the blockade of Finnish ports proclaimed by Moscow today.

"The Finnish people at this moment are fully united," Ryti said, "firm as steel and ready for the greatest sacrifices in behalf of their independence and their existence, for they are fully aware of what awaits them under the rule of such men as Mr. Kuusinen."

(Otto Kuusinen is chairman and minister of foreign affairs of the Soviet sponsored "Peoples" government set up at Terijoki.)

"If compelled to do so we shall fight to the end—even after the end. A conquest of Finland will not be a parade but will demand at every side heavy sacrifices from the attacker."

The Finnish government communique on the blockade pointed out that in peacetime there could be a question of a blockade "only against a nation which violates various provisions of the covenant of the league of nations—for instance as the Soviet Union has violated them in launching her present attack."

French Merchantman Is Badly Damaged

Columbus, O., Dec. 8. (AP)—Administration of Ohio relief became a federal-state controversial issue today with Gov. John Bricker stating that President Roosevelt was more interested in votes than human welfare.

Replying to the president's criticism that the national administration felt Ohio had failed to meet its relief obligations, the Republican governor—who has urged local handling of relief to a greater extent—declared also:

The Ohio relief situation had been solved; that "political manipulation" of WPA employment was responsible for Ohio's relief difficulty, and

Hungary Getting Ready for Action Against Russians

The mountains from the new frontier between Hungarian Ruthenia—the eastermost province of Czecho-Slovakia before that republic's dismemberment—and the Russian-occupied part of Poland.

A strong feeling runs through southeastern Europe that if Russia should attain her ends in Finland she may turn in this direction in the spring.

Sympathy for Finland has been exhibited throughout the region, especially by the Hungarians who in addition to strong anti-Communist leanings are racially related to the Finns and have maintained cultural contracts with them.

84 Lives Lost in Day Marked by New Activity In the Air and at Sea

London Reports Possibility Bombers Have Destroyed Second U-Boat; Raiding German Planes Driven Off; Blockade Will Be Carried Out as Scheduled

London, Dec. 8 (AP) — Great Britain announced tonight her air bombers sank one German submarine and attacked another with apparent success during a day in which a speedy new British destroyer was damaged by a German torpedo and five British merchant vessels were lost.

Eighty-four men died in the sinkings.

The British air ministry said that Royal Air Force bombers credited with sinking one German submarine then attacked another U-boat and that subsequently "patches of oil appeared."

An apparent attempt to damage the Firth of Forth bridge at Edinburgh, near the Big Rosyth naval base, was disclosed by Scottish police and military authorities.

They said an object, thrown from a train crossing the bridge, caught fire. Its remains were examined to see whether it was an incendiary bomb.

The cars of the train were searched but no arrests were made. Reports circulated that the outlawed Irish Republican army might have been involved.

The sinking of the German submarine, it was announced, was accomplished by two direct hits from a Royal Air Force bomber.

Repel German Planes

British fliers and gunners also demonstrated their defensive ability by driving off German warplanes, believed to have been minesowers, from the east coast and the Thames estuary, broad water road to London.

British determination to prosecute a blockade of German exports even when they are carried under neutral flags was underlined by authoritative sources, meanwhile, despite the United States note questioning the legality of such action.

These sources said the Washington note would be examined carefully, but contended the blockade had a sound basis in International Law as a reprisal for "illegal German warfare most recently evidenced in the use of magnetic mines which, by disregard of the rights of neutrals, gave the Germans an unfair advantage."

Consider "Special Cases"

Nevertheless, it was indicated "special cases" involving neutrals would receive consideration.

The admiralty announcement of the torpedoing of the destroyer Jersey, at an unstated place yesterday, said ten men probably were lost and twelve wounded on the 1,690-ton vessel. The Jersey was commissioned only last April and had a speed of thirty-six knots. She managed to reach harbor.

The merchant losses were:

The 8,795-ton Royal mail cargo liner Navasota, reported torpedoed somewhere in the Atlantic with forty-three of her crew missing and forty-four rescued. She sank within eight minutes.

The British freighter Merel, 1,088 tons, which sank with the loss of about fifteen men after striking a mine in the English channel. Only three men were picked up after the Merel's bows were blown away. One of them died in a lifeboat.

The Whintown, 734-ton British boat, sunk yesterday in a collision with the trawler Leo. Arrival of

Record Budget Is Approved by Japs For War Purposes

Council Asks for Large Sum for Fourth Year of the War

Tokyo, Dec. 8 (AP)—The cabinet council today approved the largest budget in Japan's history in preparation for the fourth year of the undeclared war in China, a war which many Japanese had expected to win in six months.

The council approved a 1940-41 general budget of 10,360,000,000 yen ((approximately $2,427,657,500), of which 6,767,000,000 yen ($1,583,478,000), or approximately 65 per cent, is for Japan's army and navy.

The new budget, the fifth successive record budget for Japan, is approximately 1,100,000,000 yen (about $257,000,000) over that of last year and calls for new taxation.

New levies include three sen (about one-fourth of a cent) on a cup of coffee costing 20 sen (about four and a half cents) and a ten per cent tax on meals costing three yen (about seventy-five cents) and taxes on cats and goldfish.

As high as the allotment was for the fighting forces, the council approved the budget only over the protests of the army, which originally had asked 6,000,000,000 yen ($1,404,000,000) for its China war budget alone. The finance ministry slashed this twenty-six per cent, and the amount finally allowed was only slightly higher.

Suspect Attempt To Damage Bridge With Fire Bomb

Scottish Police Probing Alleged Plot at Edinburg

London, Dec. 8 (AP) — Scottish police and military authorities tonight disclosed an apparent attempt to damage the Firth of Forth bridge at Edinburg by a bomb thrown from a train window.

A train from Dundee to Glasgow was slowly crossing the high bridge when an object was thrown from one of the cars onto the structure and caught fire.

The remains of the object were examined by experts to determine whether it was an incendiary bomb.

The train was held and the cars searched but there were no immediate arrests.

Rumors that the outlawed Irish Republican army might have had something to do with it were current in the neighborhood.

The bridge is near the big Rosyth naval base and like the base has been the object of German bombing attacks.

United States Disputes England's Right To Seize Germany's Exports

Washington, Dec. 8 (AP) — The United States disputed today Great Britain's right to seize German exports indiscriminately and also served notice that Russia would be held liable for any losses suffered by Americans as a result of a blockade of Finland.

The reservation of American rights under Britain's expanded blockade of Germany was lodged when the American embassy delivered to the British foreign office a note contending that it was a violation of international law for Britain to stop German exports to the United States through neutral ports.

The note told Britain that the measures of a belligerent "may not x x x penalize neutral states or their nationals x x x."

Criticizes Russia

As to Russia's blockade of Finland, Secretary Hull said this government would make reservations of all rights to damages or compensations for any injuries to or interference with American rights or interests.

The note to Britain was based both on points of international law and on practical considerations. The latter were two:

1. "In many instances orders for goods of German origin have been placed by American nationals, for which they have made payment in whole or in part, or have otherwise obligated themselves."

2. "In other instances the goods purchased or which might be purchased cannot readily, if at all, be duplicated in other markets."

The articles referred to in the second point include high precision in-

Eileen Missing again after George Gets Court Order He Can Marry Her

New York, Dec. 9 (AP)—A dash of mystery was added today to that drama of life among the society folks which for nearly a month now has been starring George Lowther, 3rd, and the girl he has been trying all that time to marry—Eileen Herrick.

Young Lowther, a hero to Eileen but a villain to her family—Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Herrick—was foiled again.

Assured yesterday for the second time by the courts that he had a constitutional right to becoming Miss Herrick's husband—her being willing, as she is—he flew out to Long Island this afternoon in a private plane, intending to go right up to the Herricks' Wainscott home, get Eileen and her luggage and fly to a preacher in Alexandria, Va.

What happened was just one other in a long list of anti-climaxes—and just when everybody had thought that this would be last curtain.

For the Herricks—mother, father and Eileen, along with a detective and a nurse—had left before George got there. They departed in one of the family automobiles, complete with luggage, and everything about the incident strongly suggested that for the second time Eileen had been spirited away from George.

His plane came down at the East Hampton airport, some two miles from the Herrick home, and from that point on he did his reconnoitering by automobile. Everything late in the day was pretty mysterious. Lowther conferred with Miss Helen Pope, a friend of the Herricks, and then left Long Island by air.

Meanwhile the Herrick estate had that deserted look and a caretaker, after answering a few hundred telephone calls, either got tired of it all

Failure To Solve Problems Is an Invitation to War, Sen. Holt Says

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 8. (AP)—Senator Holt (D-WVa) said tonight "failure to solve our own economic problems is an invitation to discouragement, to despair, to war."

In a radio address prepared for the National Legion of American Mothers, Holt said solution of domestic problems would be a major safeguard against entering foreign wars.

"We need a strong national defense," he said. "That is not just a problem of guns, of ships, of forts. It is also a problem of 'getting our house in order.' A debt ridden country, millions of unemployed, uncertain business future do not aid in building a strong national defense. We can do much work along these lines.

These are enemies within. Many think of the danger of the isms abroad without thinking that these isms have the most fertile ground for growth when such conditions as I just mentioned are found. A prosperous, healthy country is no place for the germs of dictatorship to thrive. They thrive on the economic and social diseases of nations."

Further guarantees against entering foreign wars, he said, are found in "watching the small day to day decisions to see they do not lead toward war," and in "following the advice of George Washington and James Monroe of keeping away from foreign entanglements."

"The tragedy is," he said, "that there is a road to war but only a path to peace.

"We are fortunate. We have liberty. We have it now, but we must not make the terrible mistake of giving up our liberties here in the hope to help Liberty some place else. If we do, when the war is over, we will find that we have another fight, a fight to regain our own."

Record Budget Is Approved by Japs For War Purposes

Council Asks for Large Sum for Fourth Year of the War

Tokyo, Dec. 8 (AP)—The cabinet council today approved the largest budget in Japan's history in preparation for the fourth year of the undeclared war in China, a war which many Japanese had expected to win in six months.

The council approved a 1940-41 general budget of 10,360,000,000 yen ((approximately $2,427,657,500), of which 6,767,000,000 yen ($1,583,478,000), or approximately 65 per cent, is for Japan's army and navy.

The new budget, the fifth successive record budget for Japan, is approximately 1,100,000,000 yen (about $257,000,000) over that of last year and calls for new taxation.

New levies include three sen (about one-fourth of a cent) on a cup of coffee costing 20 sen (about four and a half cents) and a ten per cent tax on meals costing three yen (about seventy-five cents) and taxes on cats and goldfish.

As high as the allotment was for the fighting forces, the council approved the budget only over the protests of the army, which originally had asked 6,000,000,000 yen ($1,404,000,000) for its China war budget alone. The finance ministry slashed this twenty-six per cent, and the amount finally allowed was only slightly higher.

Suspect Attempt To Damage Bridge With Fire Bomb

Scottish Police Probing Alleged Plot at Edinburg

London, Dec. 8 (AP) — Scottish police and military authorities tonight disclosed an apparent attempt to damage the Firth of Forth bridge at Edinburg by a bomb thrown from a train window.

A train from Dundee to Glasgow was slowly crossing the high bridge when an object was thrown from one of the cars onto the structure and caught fire.

The remains of the object were examined by experts to determine whether it was an incendiary bomb.

The train was held and the cars searched but there were no immediate arrests.

Rumors that the outlawed Irish Republican army might have had something to do with it were current in the neighborhood.

The bridge is near the big Rosyth naval base and like the base has been the object of German bombing attacks.

Eileen Missing again after George Gets Court Order He Can Marry Her

New York, Dec. 9 (AP)—A dash of mystery was added today to that drama of life among the society folks which for nearly a month now has been starring George Lowther, 3rd, and the girl he has been trying all that time to marry—Eileen Herrick.

Young Lowther, a hero to Eileen but a villain to her family—Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Herrick—was foiled again.

Assured yesterday for the second time by the courts that he had a constitutional right to becoming Miss Herrick's husband—her being willing, as she is—he flew out to Long Island this afternoon in a private plane, intending to go right up to the Herricks' Wainscott home, get Eileen and her luggage and fly to a preacher in Alexandria, Va.

What happened was just one other in a long list of anti-climaxes—and just when everybody had thought that this would be last curtain.

For the Herricks—mother, father and Eileen, along with a detective and a nurse—had left before George got there. They departed in one of the family automobiles, complete with luggage, and everything about the incident strongly suggested that for the second time Eileen had been spirited away from George.

His plane came down at the East Hampton airport, some two miles from the Herrick home, and from that point on he did his reconnoitering by automobile. Everything late in the day was pretty mysterious. Lowther conferred with Miss Helen Pope, a friend of the Herricks, and then left Long Island by air.

Meanwhile the Herrick estate had that deserted look and a caretaker, after answering a few hundred telephone calls, either got tired of it all

United States Disputes England's Right To Seize Germany's Exports

Washington, Dec. 8 (AP) — The United States disputed today Great Britain's right to seize German exports indiscriminately and also served notice that Russia would be held liable for any losses suffered by Americans as a result of a blockade of Finland.

The reservation of American rights under Britain's expanded blockade of Germany was lodged when the American embassy delivered to the British foreign office a note contending that it was a violation of international law for Britain to stop German exports to the United States through neutral ports.

The note told Britain that the measures of a belligerent "may not x x x penalize neutral states or their nationals x x x."

Criticizes Russia

As to Russia's blockade of Finland, Secretary Hull said this government would make reservations of all rights to damages or compensations for any injuries to or interference with American rights or interests.

The note to Britain was based both on points of international law and on practical considerations. The latter were two:

1. "In many instances orders for goods of German origin have been placed by American nationals, for which they have made payment in whole or in part, or have otherwise obligated themselves."

2. "In other instances the goods purchased or which might be purchased cannot readily, if at all, be duplicated in other markets."

The articles referred to in the second point include high precision in-

Failure To Solve Problems Is an Invitation to War, Sen. Holt Says

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 8. (AP)—Senator Holt (D-WVa) said tonight "failure to solve our own economic problems is an invitation to discouragement, to despair, to war."

In a radio address prepared for the National Legion of American Mothers, Holt said solution of domestic problems would be a major safeguard against entering foreign wars.

"We need a strong national defense," he said. "That is not just a problem of guns, of ships, of forts. It is also a problem of 'getting our house in order.' A debt ridden country, millions of unemployed, uncertain business future do not aid in building a strong national defense. We can do much work along these lines.

These are enemies within. Many think of the danger of the isms abroad without thinking that these isms have the most fertile ground for growth when such conditions as I just mentioned are found. A prosperous, healthy country is no place for the germs of dictatorship to thrive. They thrive on the economic and social diseases of nations."

Further guarantees against entering foreign wars, he said, are found in "watching the small day to day decisions to see they do not lead toward war," and in "following the advice of George Washington and James Monroe of keeping away from foreign entanglements."

"The tragedy is," he said, "that there is a road to war but only a path to peace.

"We are fortunate. We have liberty. We have it now, but we must not make the terrible mistake of giving up our liberties here in the hope to help Liberty some place else. If we do, when the war is over, we will find that we have another fight, a fight to regain our own."

Social Security Law Is Defied by Opponent of NRA

Fred Perkins Defies Government To Force Him To Pay

York, Pa., Dec. 8 (AP)—Defying social security laws as he did the NRA five years ago, Battery Manufacturer Fred Perkins declared today he had never paid old age and unemployment taxes—and challenged authorities to collect them.

Perkins, 61, went to jail for eighteen days in 1934 on charges of paying employes less than forty cents an hour required by the NRA battery code. He directed his business from his cell, was released in $5,000 bail and later was convicted and fined $1,500. He appealed but the case was dropped when the Supreme Court invalidated NRA.

Asserting in an interview that he "refused" to pay the employer's share of the federal old age benefits tax and the Pennsylvania unemployment compensation tax, Perkins demanded that federal and state governments "put up or shut up."

Warned by Collector

W. J. Rothensies, collector of internal revenue at Philadelphia, wrote Perkins more than a year ago calling attention to a delinquency in social security tax payments and advising him that $41.13 had been levied on his personal bank account. He warned him evasion of the tax is punishable by five years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

Thrusting out his jaw, Perkins, former Cornell football player, declared his small business employs six to eight men—could not bear the social security taxes. He suggested "another Boston tea party."

"In the name of the small business men in the country, I ask the government if it has the courage to enforce this law," he said.

"I shall do my level best to put the New Deal's fantastic philosophies with respect to business to the test of public opinion in Amer-

Believes in "Principles"

Perkins said he believed in the "principles" of social security and gave President Roosevelt "full credit" for bringing compulsory old age benefits "to fruition."

"But when the government attempts to take from me the support of others . . . then I contend it is infringing on my rights as guaranteed by the constitution.

He said he had collected and paid his employe's share of the levies—but not his own.

Bayonet Killer Is Seeking a Parole

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 8 (AP)—Baltimore's bayonet killer and the Dundalk bank bandit, who kidnaped a state policeman, have filed applications for parole, the Division of Parole and Probation announced today.

Howard Johnson, who has served fifteen years of a life sentence for cutting his wife to pieces with a bayonet, will renew his 1937 parole application before the December 13 meeting of the parole board.

Johnson, before his trial in 1924, said he killed his wife in a fit of jealousy when she took another man to an amusement park on money he had given her. He also blamed his mother-in-law for encouraging his wife to go with other men.

The Johnsons had been divorced and remarried before the slaying.

William Hayes, leader of three bandits who kidnaped a state trooper while escaping from a Dundalk bank with $1,700 on March 1, 1933, also sought parole from a fifteen-year term.

Hayes was under suspended sentence for participation in another armed robbery when he led the Dundalk foray.

plane had been shot down, told correspondents that the Finnish civilian population was bombed by "mistake" because it was difficult to be accurate within 100 yards from great heights.

Viipuri officials showed correspondents four uninjured Russian prisoners, one a flying lieutenant who parachuted safely from his bombing plane when the engine failed.

One of the prisoners, a farmer, said he had been in the army only three months and was told that the Finns were attacking Leningrad.

The first week's fighting has produced two Finnish heroes—Flying Lieutenant Vourella and an unidentified expert rifleman.

Downs Six Russian Planes

Vuorella was said to have downed six Russian planes.

The rifleman, fellow soldiers declared, alone killed or wounded from forty-one to forty-seven Russians who attempted to advance across a marsh.

Other sharpshooting Finns, hidden in thickets on shore, picked off the Red soldiers as they foundered around in the bog.

Colonel Mellbloom said the war on the southeastern front started when the Russian fleet and Kronstadt batteries shelled Terijoki, Finnish summer resort.

Russia already had heavy artillery on the border when the war started, the colonel asserted, and was able to shell points twenty miles behind the frontier.

One Good Bump and There Would Be No Picture

Here's one job that no one wants. German soldiers are shown hunting land mines in a sector of the Western Front recovered from the French. Toughest job is that of the Nazi pulling the cart. A slight mishap and it is doubtful if even his identification tag would be recovered. The warning sign "Minen" (Mines) tells the story.

Bricker Says

their advice "as to how to run our state."

Dr. Carl Watson, Ohio WPA administrator, quickly denied there had been "political manipulation" of WPA employment. He said a business recession before the 1938 election had increased Cleveland WPA rolls to 74,000 and that "politics" was not responsible for a post-election reduction to 30,000.

Ferguson Enters Controversy

State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson only Democratic state office holder, joined in the controversy with a statement that if Bricker's tax commissioner, William S. Evatt, launched a campaign to collect delinquent excise and other cases, enough money could be obtained to care for all city and county needs.

Officials of Cleveland and Toledo, where relief conditions are most serious, have urged the governor for weeks to call a special session of the legislature to provide additional relief funds. Bricker has called upon the municipalities to do more themselves to relieve conditions.

Bricker's prepared statement today accused the "Democratic high command" of attempting to "discredit a Republican administration in this state which has put its financial house in order and which is doing just as good a job in the field of social service as any other state in the union."

Scores New Dealers

"If the president and his voluble secretary," he asserted, "were as interested in human welfare as they are in trying to discredit Republicans and getting votes, they would pay the aged of Ohio the $1,300,000 which is owed to them and which was withdrawn in Washington after a most disgraceful political quarrel with my predecessor. It is as honest a debt as any government subdivision ever owed to another."

The federal Social Security Board withheld the $1,300,000 in old age pension grants from Ohio for October, 1938, after accusing Former Gov. Martin L. Davey of using the pension system for political purposes.

Sec. Ickes Defends Roosevelt Criticism

Washington, Dec. 8 (AP)—New Deal officialdom and a Republican governor fell to quarreling at long distance today over President Roosevelt's declaration that Ohio had shirked its obligations to the needy unemployed.

Governor John R. Bricker's tart retort—that "they seem more interested in the politics of the affair than in helping the needy"—aroused Secretary of the Interior Ickes, who cracked back with this:

"Why shouldn't there be a political attack on a Republican administration if it's as heartless as his is?"

As for Bricker's political future, Ickes said he believed that "the American people are a humane and just people, and that anyone who refrains from doing anything he can to keep people from starving isn't going to advance his political fortunes."

Roosevelt States Policy

For six or seven years, the president told his press conference this morning, it has been a policy for the federal government to care for the needy who can work, and for the states to support those who can't.

Quoting a memorandum from WPA Administrator F. C. Harrington, the president asserted that Ohio had not provided nearly as well for its needy as Pennsylvania. Average general benefits in October, Harrington said, were $16 in Ohio and $27 in Pennsylvania.

Declaring that "the relief situation in Ohio already has been solved," Governor Bricker replied:

"If the president and his voluble secretary were as interested in human welfare as they are in trying to discredit Republicans and getting votes they would pay to the aged of Ohio the $1,300,000 which is owed them and which was withheld after a most disgraceful quarrel with my predecessor (Martin L. Davey)."

McNutt Asks U. S. Aid

Only a short time after the president's statement defining the respective areas of federal and state relief, Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt suggested tonight that the federal government might contribute to the support of unemployables.

"If I were asked to state what I believe to be the next forward step of the national security program," said McNutt in an address prepared for the American Public Welfare Association, "I would suggest a new and additional title to the Federal Security Act which would authorize grants-in-aid to states on the basis of an approved plan for the administration of direct relief."

McNutt also said:

"I am wondering whether or not the federal government should make it a little easier for states to assist the dependent child. The grant-in-aid for assistance to the aged and the blind is on a one-to-one ratio, while that for children is two-to-one.

"And why limit the aid to those under the age of 16? Why not encourage states to give assistance to children up to eighteen or even to twenty-one years of age, and why the limit of $18 for assistance to one child in a family? Is not the need of a child as great as that of an aged person, where the limit is $30?"

The fifth ship was not identified.

In addition, a 1,194-ton French freighter, the Tifled, arrived at Cartagena, Spain, badly damaged by either a mine or torpedo.

Planes of the Royal Air Force directed a rescue ship to seven survivors from an unidentified ship found on a raft in the North Sea.

bound to Russia by ties of race and culture—has there been defense of Russia's action.

Bulgarian newspapers, while voicing sorrow over Finland's trial and appreciation of Finnish valor, says Russia's moves in the Baltic are necessary to assure her security.

"A century of 180,000,000 people can hardly afford to leave a great center like Leningrad, her chief window to the seas, exposed," said the Sofia newspaper Slovo.

Elsewhere the Russian drive was called "a continuation of the work Peter the Great carried on at such a great sacrifice and which was lost by the injustice of the western powers to Russia in the World War."

This attitude caused uneasiness among Bulgaria's neighbor states where, in some quarters, she was suspected of counting on Russia to help her regain her own losses at their expense.

In Hungary there was redoubled talk about the possibility of the Magyars once more assuming the historic task of "defending western civilization from eastern invasion" and wide predictions that Hungarians might be compelled to bear the brunt of a possible Russian thrust westward as they once stood against the Turks.

The Budapest newspaper Magyar Nemzet said:

"If it is written in the book of destiny that we must prove ourselves in our historic role once each century, x x x"

Linked with Hungary's determination to hold out against a Russian move from Russian-occupied Polish territory—and she is counting upon Italy's help if this should become necessary—are her claims on Rumanian Transylvania.

Many Hungarians say that if Russia should go into Bessarabia Hungary would march into Transylvania. That would give her the natural frontier of the Carpathians to keep the Russians from pouring into all southeastern Europe.

Bessarabia and Transylvania were two of Rumania's gains after the World War.

The belief is growing here that, if Moscow should start pressure on Bucharest, Rumania would throw herself on the mercy of the Russians if she could get good terms—giving up Bessarabia and possibly making other concessions in return for a Soviet guarantee of her other frontiers.

Turbulence meanwhile has continued in Croatia with numerous demonstrations by extreme factions which are not satisfied with numerous demonstrations by extreme factions which are not satisfied with Crotia's recently gained autonomy but want complete severance from the Yugoslav government in Belgrade.

Croat autonomist leaders, however, attributed the demonstrations to foreign agents who, they charged, were interested in keeping Yugoslavia troubled.

it virtually certain the budget will become law.

Naval Threat Causes Many To Leave Ports in a Hurry

Copenhagen, Dec. 8 (AP)—Scandinavian merchant fleets beat a hasty retreat from Finnish ports tonight on the heels of Soviet Russia's declaration of a blockade of the Finnish coast, supplementing her attack by land, sea and air.

The naval blockade, however, only hastens by a few weeks the suspension of shipments every year due to the great ice blockade which cripples navigation in the Bothnia and Finnish gulfs.

The Russian blockade was announced as effective at noon today, but neutral ships were given until noon tomorrow to leave the blockaded zone. After that, Russia warned, the waters would be "dangerous for shipping."

Freezing over of shipping channels is now overdue. It is expected that by Christmas or New Year's the winter weather will have paralyzed sea traffic in the forbidden zones decreed at Moscow—including movements of the Red fleet.

Seasonal closing of the Gulf of Finland, gateway to Leningrad, was one of the factors which prompted Russia to obtain naval concessions from Latvia in the Gulf of Riga.

On the Swedish side of the Gulf of Bothnia, a few harbors are kept open the year around through the constant efforts of icebreakers during the coldest months.

Doubt was expressed here that Russian warships would succeed in entering approaches to the Gulf of Bothnia, which have been mined by both Finland and Sweden.

Official circles asserted Russia was within her rights under international law in declaring the blockade. Diplomatic quarters said they believed Scandinavian states would leave the decision to shippers as to whether to take the risk of running the blockade.

(Secretary of State Hull in Washington said the United States would hold the Soviet government responsible for damages or injuries to Americans or any American interests.)

Dewey League Is Formed in State

Baltimore, Dec. 8 (AP)—Thomas E. Dewey, racket-smashing New York district attorney, found support today from a group of Maryland Republicans in his campaign for the G.O.P. presidential nomination.

Less than forty-eight hours after Dewey's Minneapolis speech, a Dewey-for-President League of Maryland was formed and articles of incorporation filed with the state tax commission.

The incorporators were Cornelius P. Mundy, former assistant U. S. district attorney; Webster C. Tall, Republican nominee for the state senate from Baltimore's third district last year ,and Stanley L. Richardson, also a legislative candidate.

They announced local headquarters would be opened as soon as active campaigning begins and said Dewey's New York headquarters had been asked to arrange a speaking date for him here.

Meanwhile, it was learned that a representative of Paul Robertson, chairman of the Republican City Committee, and Theodore R. McKeldin, G.O.P. candidate for mayor in the last election, had been in touch with Dewey's campaign managers.

David Laupheimer represented Robertson and McKeldin at a confetrence with J. Russell Sprague, co-manager of Dewey's pre-convention campaign, and reported that the Dewey supporters "expect to win and they are adequately financed."

would endorse McNutt's presidential aspirations.

Thus far, the movement obviously lacks both cohesion and organization. It is manned principally by New Deal officials ranging in importance from junior attorneys to cabinet heads, many of whom see McNutt as the only alternative for the Democratic nomination and find the prospect not to their liking.

But the movement has the support of the leaders of the Democratic organizations in several states. These have openly asserted that their convention delegations would support the president for renomination, if it seemed probable that he would accept.

Kennedy's statement of today was made on the White House door step as he entered to report to the president on the state of things abroad.

Central Boys and Girls Wallop Oakland Teams

Central high school of Lonaconing won both the boys and girls games with Oakland last night by lop-sided scores.

The boys under their new coach, Mel Henry, held Oakland to three fouls in the first half. With reserves playing most of the game they won by a final 38-23 count.

The girls won by a much larger margin beating their opponents 72-11.

League Ready To Open Inquiry in Finnish Protest

Diplomats Meet Today To Consider Action against Russia

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ, JR.

Geneva, Dec. 8 (AP) — League of Nations diplomats tomorrow open the first act of the trial of Soviet Russia, charged with aggression against Finland.

It promises to be Geneva's greatest show since sanctions were voted against Italy for invading Ethiopia four years ago.

Finland and the South American states are cast in the roles of prosecutors. Finland demands conviction of Russia, and the South Americans ask her expulsion from the league as punishment. The latter threaten to quit the league if their wishes are not met.

Their position put on the spot Great Britain and France, who long have been the leaders of the league. The odds, however, were that they would press the ouster of Russia unless the Russians resign first.

Russian Delegate Present

Russia's present delegate, Ambassador to Paris Jakob Surits, sat in the league budget committee room tonight with the Finns, the Latin Americans and the Poles all present. He apparently has orders to remain as long as the budget committee meets, but he will not be present at the trial before the Council, opening tomorrow, and the Assembly, opening Monday.

The league has shifted within a week from a self-imposed hibernation to feverish activity. Faces absent from league lobbies for years have reappeared. Eight German news correspondents are registered at the league press room so far, although only one has been present at meetings in recent years.

Even the league budget committee seemed to be hit by a new league atmosphere of seeing things as they are. It wiped out back dues owed by the former Spanish republic, Ethiopia and Czecho-Slovakia, and gave Lithuania a seventy-five per cent reduction in dues because of the loss of Memel, 1,099 square miles of territory, to Germany.

Discuss Finn Appeal

High in the league palace in private meeting rooms overlooking Lake Leman, league delegates tonight discussed procedure on the Finns' appeal.

The league secretary-general, Joseph A. C. Avenol, will present the Finns' appeal, and the latter are expected to declare that they seek the moral condemnation of the Russians as aggressors.

League circles today reported "slight differences" between France and Britain over procedure. France was said to be supporting the Latin American move to expel Russia, while Britain was said to be apprehensive lest the meetings develop into a Red-baiting session which would divert attention from Germany as the Allies' No. 1 enemy.

Lawrence Freed Of Graft Charges

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 7 (AP) — Pennsylvania's Democratic Chairman David L. Lawrence was acquitted tonight of charges of blackmail, and conspiracy to favor a gravel company on state contracts.

Lawrence, who also was secretary of the commonwealth in Former Governor George H. Earle's "Little New Deal" administration, was charged with favoring the company, blackmailing its president of $5,000, and failing to report that sum as a political contribution.

The jury which heard twenty-one days of testimony brought in the verdict after five hours and thirty-three minutes deliberation.

Poultry Industry To Be Closely Studied

College Park, Md., Dec. 8 (AP)—A $250,000 poultry research building and plant is ready here to begin investigations along five major lines to aid Maryland's $15,000,000 poultry industry.

The three-story building at the University of Maryland has been turned over to the college by the Public Works Administration, said Walter Goertz, resident PWA engineer, and will be occupied about Dec. 15.

Through it, said Dr. Morley A. Jull, poultry department head, the university's staff can "do a greatly increased amount of worthwhile work" for the "second largest single industry in the state."

The five-point research program, effective immediately, is:

Liveability of poultry; efficiency of feed utilization; experimental work for the best and most economical ration; and improving quality of poultry products.

Study of the influence of light and gland products on physiology of egg production, hatchability, and fertility.

Richardson Will Command Fleet

Washington, Dec. 8. (AP) — The selection of Admiral James O. Richardson to be the next commander-in-chief of the United States fleet was announced today by the navy department.

Richardson, who now commands the battle force, will succeed Admiral Claude C. Bloch on January 6.

Bloch and four other top-ranking officers were given new commands with the fleet or ashore in a shift which officials described as routine. Bloch, who has served a normal two-year tour of duty as fleet commander, was assigned to command of the 14th naval district, Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, effective in April.

Richardson was made commander of the battle force, the second highest fleet post, less than a year ago after brief service in the national capital as chief of the Bureau of Navigation.

Earlier service as the navy department's budget officer brought him into close contact with President Roosevelt and members of Congressional committees. At sea he has commanded also the scouting force destroyers and served as fleet chief of staff.

A stalwart figure with graying thin hair, Richardson is 61 and a native of Paris, Texas.

Announce Sites for Five Rural Villages

Rockville, Md., Dec. 8 (AP)—E. Brooke Lee, Montgomery county Housing Authority chairman, has announced tentative selection of sites for five of sixteen proposed rural villages, each to have twenty-five to fifty low-rent homes for farm workers.

The sixteen would be built with a requested $2,400,000 federal allotment. The U. S. Housing Authority has "earmarked" $800,000 for the work.

The sites are at Gaithersburg, Fairland, Poolesville, Emory Grove, and Norbeck.

Lee said they must be approved by the federal authority and two independent appraisers.

Daladier Extends His Sympathy to Finnish People

French Premier Bitterly Criticizes Russia in Talk

Paris, Dec. 8 (AP) — Premier Daladier today placed France's official sympathy on the side of Finland and bitterly criticized Russia.

In his first public pronouncement on the conflict, Daladier followed the line already laid down by British leaders and termed the Russian invasion of Finland "an abominable outrage" producing "universal disgust."

"Finland," he told a cheering Chamber of Deputies, "has France's salute and assurance of profound and strong sympathy."

Nazi Planes Turned Back

On France's own war front German reconnaissance planes, according to the military quarters, failed last night in an attempt to reach Paris. It was said the planes flew at a great height, but it was not explained how they were turned back.

Infantry and artillery activity on the western front was reported in tonight's high command communique which said:

"Local activity of contact units and artillery."

Gives Detailed Review

Late today Daladier appeared before the council of ministers, presided over by President Lebrun, and gave a detailed review of the diplomatic and military situation.

He announced that the veteran diplomat and league of nations representative Joseph Paul-Boncour and undersecretary for foreign affairs Auguste de Champetier de Ribes would be the French delegates to the league meetings opening tomorrow to debate Finland's charge of aggression against Russia.

The league council meets tomorrow and the assembly Monday.

Another eight-point buck was shot yesterday morning by George J. Paulus, 219 Davidson street, on Polish mountain. The deer weighed in the neighborhood of 140 pounds.

He was accompanied by Paul, A. V. and Harold L. Carpenter, J. W. Cornish, James Sleeman, Edward Burton, all of Frostburg; Gus Wirt of Baltimore; C. W. Riley, of Deep Creek Lake, and Wayne DeWitt, of Deer Park.

Pittsburgh, Dec. 8 (AP)—The University of Pittsburgh reported today business in the Pittsburgh district in the month of November rose to 130.6 per cent of the 1923-25 average—an all-time high.

The previous peaks were recorded in March of 1937, when the index rose to 125.2 per cent of the '23-25 average, which is regarded as "normal, and in 1929, when the index zoomed to 126.4 per cent in July.

James Roosevelt Is Given Promotion

Hollywood, Dec. 8 (AP) — James Roosevelt, the president's son, was elevated to the presidency of Samuel Goldwyn Studio Company today.

He retains his post as vice president of Samuel Goldwyn Productions, Inc.

The studio announcement did not indicate whether his salary—reported to be $750 a week—would be increased. The thirty-three-year-old former insurance executive joined the Goldwyn organization early this year.

J. Harvey Gravell, Philanthropist, Dies

Ambler, Pa., Dec. 8 (AP)—J. Harvey Gravell, a paint manufacturer, who paid all the debts of his 100 employes two years ago, died today at 63.

It cost Gravell $100,000 to pay the debts. He termed his action a "Christmas gift."

On another occasion he gave the wives of his employes $300 each because, he said, "the wife is the homemaker. It is she who makes the man a good employe."

Social Security Law Is Defied by Opponent of NRA

Fred Perkins Defies Government To Force Him To Pay

York, Pa., Dec. 8 (AP)—Defying social security laws as he did the NRA five years ago, Battery Manufacturer Fred Perkins declared today he had never paid old age and unemployment taxes—and challenged authorities to collect them.

Perkins, 61, went to jail for eighteen days in 1934 on charges of paying employes less than forty cents an hour required by the NRA battery code. He directed his business from his cell, was released in $5,000 bail and later was convicted and fined $1,500. He appealed but the case was dropped when the Supreme Court invalidated NRA.

Asserting in an interview that he "refused" to pay the employer's share of the federal old age benefits tax and the Pennsylvania unemployment compensation tax, Perkins demanded that federal and state governments "put up or shut up."

Warned by Collector

W. J. Rothensies, collector of internal revenue at Philadelphia, wrote Perkins more than a year ago calling attention to a delinquency in social security tax payments and advising him that $41.13 had been levied on his personal bank account. He warned him evasion of the tax is punishable by five years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

Thrusting out his jaw, Perkins, former Cornell football player, declared his small business employs six to eight men—could not bear the social security taxes. He suggested "another Boston tea party."

"In the name of the small business men in the country, I ask the government if it has the courage to enforce this law," he said.

"I shall do my level best to put the New Deal's fantastic philosophies with respect to business to the test of public opinion in Amer-

Believes in "Principles"

Perkins said he believed in the "principles" of social security and gave President Roosevelt "full credit" for bringing compulsory old age benefits "to fruition."

"But when the government attempts to take from me the support of others . . . then I contend it is infringing on my rights as guaranteed by the constitution.

He said he had collected and paid his employe's share of the levies—but not his own.

Bayonet Killer Is Seeking a Parole

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 8 (AP)—Baltimore's bayonet killer and the Dundalk bank bandit, who kidnaped a state policeman, have filed applications for parole, the Division of Parole and Probation announced today.

Howard Johnson, who has served fifteen years of a life sentence for cutting his wife to pieces with a bayonet, will renew his 1937 parole application before the December 13 meeting of the parole board.

Johnson, before his trial in 1924, said he killed his wife in a fit of jealousy when she took another man to an amusement park on money he had given her. He also blamed his mother-in-law for encouraging his wife to go with other men.

The Johnsons had been divorced and remarried before the slaying.

William Hayes, leader of three bandits who kidnaped a state trooper while escaping from a Dundalk bank with $1,700 on March 1, 1933, also sought parole from a fifteen-year term.

Hayes was under suspended sentence for participation in another armed robbery when he led the Dundalk foray.

plane had been shot down, told correspondents that the Finnish civilian population was bombed by "mistake" because it was difficult to be accurate within 100 yards from great heights.

Viipuri officials showed correspondents four uninjured Russian prisoners, one a flying lieutenant who parachuted safely from his bombing plane when the engine failed.

One of the prisoners, a farmer, said he had been in the army only three months and was told that the Finns were attacking Leningrad.

Downs Six Russian Planes

Vuorella was said to have downed six Russian planes.

The rifleman, fellow soldiers declared, alone killed or wounded from forty-one to forty-seven Russians who attempted to advance across a marsh.

Other sharpshooting Finns, hidden in thickets on shore, picked off the Red soldiers as they foundered around in the bog.

Colonel Mellbloom said the war on the southeastern front started when the Russian fleet and Kronstadt batteries shelled Terijoki, Finnish summer resort.

Russia already had heavy artillery on the border when the war started, the colonel asserted, and was able to shell points twenty miles behind the frontier

One Good Bump and There Would Be No Picture

Here's one job that no one wants. German soldiers are shown hunting land mines in a sector of the Western Front recovered from the French. Toughest job is that of the Nazi pulling the cart. A slight mishap and it is doubtful if even his identification tag would be recovered. The warning sign "Minen" (Mines) tells the story.

their advice "as to how to run our state."

Dr. Carl Watson, Ohio WPA administrator, quickly denied there had been "political manipulation" of WPA employment. He said a business recession before the 1938 election had increased Cleveland WPA rolls to 74,000 and that "politics" was not responsible for a post-election reduction to 30,000.

Ferguson Enters Controversy

State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson only Democratic state office holder, joined in the controversy with a statement that if Bricker's tax commissioner, William S. Evatt, launched a campaign to collect delinquent excise and other cases, enough money could be obtained to care for all city and county needs.

Officials of Cleveland and Toledo, where relief conditions are most serious, have urged the governor for weeks to call a special session of the legislature to provide additional relief funds. Bricker has called upon the municipalities to do more themselves to relieve conditions.

Bricker's prepared statement today accused the "Democratic high command" of attempting to "discredit a Republican administration in this state which has put its financial house in order and which is doing just as good a job in the field of social service as any other state in the union."

Scores New Dealers

"If the president and his voluble secretary," he asserted, "were as interested in human welfare as they are in trying to discredit Republicans and getting votes, they would pay the aged of Ohio the $1,300,000 which is owed to them and which was withdrawn in Washington after a most disgraceful political quarrel with my predecessor. It is as honest a debt as any government subdivision ever owed to another."

The federal Social Security Board withheld the $1,300,000 in old age pension grants from Ohio for October, 1938, after accusing Former Gov. Martin L. Davey of using the pension system for political purposes.

Sec. Ickes Defends Roosevelt Criticism

Washington, Dec. 8 (AP)—New Deal officialdom and a Republican governor fell to quarreling at long distance today over President Roosevelt's declaration that Ohio had shirked its obligations to the needy unemployed.

Governor John R. Bricker's tart retort—that "they seem more interested in the politics of the affair than in helping the needy"—aroused Secretary of the Interior Ickes, who cracked back with this:

"Why shouldn't there be a political attack on a Republican administration if it's as heartless as his is?"

As for Bricker's political future, Ickes said he believed that "the American people are a humane and just people, and that anyone who refrains from doing anything he can to keep people from starving isn't going to advance his political fortunes."

Roosevelt States Policy

For six or seven years, the president told his press conference this morning, it has been a policy for the federal government to care for the needy who can work, and for the states to support those who can't.

Quoting a memorandum from WPA Administrator F. C. Harrington, the president asserted that Ohio had not provided nearly as well for its needy as Pennsylvania. Average general benefits in October, Harrington said, were $16 in Ohio and $27 in Pennsylvania.

Declaring that "the relief situation in Ohio already has been solved," Governor Bricker replied:

"If the president and his voluble secretary were as interested in human welfare as they are in trying to discredit Republicans and getting votes they would pay to the aged of Ohio the $1,300,000 which is owed them and which was withheld after a most disgraceful quarrel with my predecessor (Martin L. Davey)."

McNutt Asks U. S. Aid

Only a short time after the president's statement defining the respective areas of federal and state relief, Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt suggested tonight that the federal government might contribute to the support of unemployables.

"If I were asked to state what I believe to be the next forward step of the national security program," said McNutt in an address prepared for the American Public Welfare Association, "I would suggest a new and additional title to the Federal Security Act which would authorize grants-in-aid to states on the basis of an approved plan for the administration of direct relief."

McNutt also said:

"I am wondering whether or not the federal government should make it a little easier for states to assist the dependent child. The grant-in-aid for assistance to the aged and the blind is on a one-to-one ratio, while that for children is two-to-one.

"And why limit the aid to those under the age of 16? Why not encourage states to give assistance to children up to eighteen or even to twenty-one years of age, and why the limit of $18 for assistance to one child in a family? Is not the need of a child as great as that of an aged person, where the limit is $30?"

Explosion Sinks Ship

The British steamer Thomas Walton, 4,460 tons, which sank in Vestfjord, on the North Norwegian coast, after a mysterious explosion last night. Sixteen of her crew were killed. A German ship rescued some survivors.

The fifth ship was not identified.

In addition, a 1,194-ton French freighter, the Tifled, arrived at Cartagena, Spain, badly damaged by either a mine or torpedo.

Planes of the Royal Air Force directed a rescue ship to seven survivors from an unidentified ship found on a raft in the North Sea.

Lloyd's, listing Allied merchant shipping losses to yesterday, debited Britain with eighty-six vessels totalling 330,758 tons and France with ten totalling 55,285 tons.

Hungary

bound to Russia by ties of race and culture—has there been defense of Russia's action.

Bulgarian newspapers, while voicing sorrow over Finland's trial and appreciation of Finnish valor, says Russia's moves in the Baltic are necessary to assure her security.

"A century of 180,000,000 people can hardly afford to leave a great center like Leningrad, her chief window to the seas, exposed," said the Sofia newspaper Slovo.

Elsewhere the Russian drive was called "a continuation of the work Peter the Great carried on at such a great sacrifice and which was lost by the injustice of the western powers to Russia in the World War."

This attitude caused uneasiness among Bulgaria's neighbor states where, in some quarters, she was suspected of counting on Russia to help her regain her own losses at their expense.

In Hungary there was redoubled talk about the possibility of the Magyars once more assuming the historic task of "defending western civilization from eastern invasion" and wide predictions that Hungarians might be compelled to bear the brunt of a possible Russian thrust westward as they once stood against the Turks.

The Budapest newspaper Magyar Nemzet said:

"If it is written in the book of destiny that we must prove ourselves in our historic role once each century, x x x"

Linked with Hungary's determination to hold out against a Russian move from Russian-occupied Polish territory—and she is counting upon Italy's help if this should become necessary—are her claims on Rumanian Transylvania.

Many Hungarians say that if Russia should go into Bessarabia Hungary would march into Transylvania. That would give her the natural frontier of the Carpathians to keep the Russians from pouring into all southeastern Europe.

Bessarabia and Transylvania were two of Rumania's gains after the World War.

The belief is growing here that, if Moscow should start pressure on Bucharest, Rumania would throw herself on the mercy of the Russians if she could get good terms—giving up Bessarabia and possibly making other concessions in return for a Soviet guarantee of her other frontiers.

Turbulence meanwhile has continued in Croatia with numerous demonstrations by extreme factions which are not satisfied with numerous demonstrations by extreme factions which are not satisfied with Crotia's recently gained autonomy but want complete severance from the Yugoslav government in Belgrade.

Croat autonomist leaders, however, attributed the demonstrations to foreign agents who, they charged, were interested in keeping Yugoslavia troubled.

Financial circles accepted the huge budget estimate calmly.

Naval Threat Causes Many To Leave Ports in a Hurry

Copenhagen, Dec. 8 (AP)—Scandinavian merchant fleets beat a hasty retreat from Finnish ports tonight on the heels of Soviet Russia's declaration of a blockade of the Finnish coast, supplementing her attack by land, sea and air.

The naval blockade, however, only hastens by a few weeks the suspension of shipments every year due to the great ice blockade which cripples navigation in the Bothnia and Finnish gulfs.

The Russian blockade was announced as effective at noon today, but neutral ships were given until noon tomorrow to leave the blockaded zone. After that, Russia warned, the waters would be "dangerous for shipping."

Freezing over of shipping channels is now overdue. It is expected that by Christmas or New Year's the winter weather will have paralyzed sea traffic in the forbidden zones decreed at Moscow—including movements of the Red fleet.

Seasonal closing of the Gulf of Finland, gateway to Leningrad, was one of the factors which prompted Russia to obtain naval concessions from Latvia in the Gulf of Riga.

On the Swedish side of the Gulf of Bothnia, a few harbors are kept open the year around through the constant efforts of icebreakers during the coldest months.

Doubt was expressed here that Russian warships would succeed in entering approaches to the Gulf of Bothnia, which have been mined by both Finland and Sweden.

Official circles asserted Russia was within her rights under international law in declaring the blockade. Diplomatic quarters said they believed Scandinavian states would leave the decision to shippers as to whether to take the risk of running the blockade.

(Secretary of State Hull in Washington said the United States would hold the Soviet government responsible for damages or injuries to Americans or any American interests.)

Dewey League Is Formed in State

Baltimore, Dec. 8 (AP)—Thomas E. Dewey, racket-smashing New York district attorney, found support today from a group of Maryland Republicans in his campaign for the G.O.P. presidential nomination.

Less than forty-eight hours after Dewey's Minneapolis speech, a Dewey-for-President League of Maryland was formed and articles of incorporation filed with the state tax commission.

The incorporators were Cornelius P. Mundy, former assistant U. S. district attorney; Webster C. Tall, Republican nominee for the state senate from Baltimore's third district last year ,and Stanley L. Richardson, also a legislative candidate.

They announced local headquarters would be opened as soon as active campaigning begins and said Dewey's New York headquarters had been asked to arrange a speaking date for him here.

Meanwhile, it was learned that a representative of Paul Robertson, chairman of the Republican City Committee, and Theodore R. McKeldin, G.O.P. candidate for mayor in the last election, had been in touch with Dewey's campaign managers.

David Laupheimer represented Robertson and McKeldin at a conference with J. Russell Sprague, co-manager of Dewey's pre-convention campaign, and reported that the Dewey supporters "expect to win and they are adequately financed."

would endorse McNutt's presidential aspirations.

Thus far, the movement obviously lacks both cohesion and organization. It is manned principally by New Deal officials ranging in importance from junior attorneys to cabinet heads, many of whom see McNutt as the only alternative for the Democratic nomination and find the prospect not to their liking.

But the movement has the support of the leaders of the Democratic organizations in several states. These have openly asserted that their convention delegations would support the president for renomination, if it seemed probable that he would accept.

Kennedy's statement of today was made on the White House door step as he entered to report to the president on the state of things abroad.

Central Boys and Girls Wallop Oakland Teams

Central high school of Lonaconing won both the boys and girls games with Oakland last night by lop-sided scores.

The boys under their new coach, Mel Henry, held Oakland to three fouls in the first half. With reserves playing most of the game they won by a final 38-23 count.

The girls won by a much larger margin beating their opponents 72-11.

League Ready To Open Inquiry in Finnish Protest

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ, JR.

Geneva, Dec. 8 (AP) — League of Nations diplomats tomorrow open the first act of the trial of Soviet Russia, charged with aggression against Finland.

It promises to be Geneva's greatest show since sanctions were voted against Italy for invading Ethiopia four years ago.

Finland and the South American states are cast in the roles of prosecutors. Finland demands conviction of Russia, and the South Americans ask her expulsion from the league as punishment. The latter threaten to quit the league if their wishes are not met.

Their position put on the spot Great Britain and France, who long have been the leaders of the league. The odds, however, were that they would press the ouster of Russia unless the Russians resign first.

Russian Delegate Present

Russia's present delegate, Ambassador to Paris Jakob Surits, sat in the league budget committee room tonight with the Finns, the Latin Americans and the Poles all present. He apparently has orders to remain as long as the budget committee meets, but he will not be present at the trial before the Council, opening tomorrow, and the Assembly, opening Monday.

The league has shifted within a week from a self-imposed hibernation to feverish activity. Faces absent from league lobbies for years have reappeared. Eight German news correspondents are registered at the league press room so far, although only one has been present at meetings in recent years.

Even the league budget committee seemed to be hit by a new league atmosphere of seeing things as they are. It wiped out back dues owed by the former Spanish republic, Ethiopia and Czecho-Slovakia, and gave Lithuania a seventy-five per cent reduction in dues because of the loss of Memel, 1,099 square miles of territory, to Germany.

Discuss Finn Appeal

High in the league palace in private meeting rooms overlooking Lake Leman, league delegates tonight discussed procedure on the Finns' appeal.

The league secretary-general, Joseph A. C. Avenol, will present the Finns' appeal, and the latter are expected to declare that they seek the moral condemnation of the Russians as aggressors.

League circles today reported "slight differences" between France and Britain over procedure. France was said to be supporting the Latin American move to expel Russia, while Britain was said to be apprehensive lest the meetings develop into a Red-baiting session which would divert attention from Germany as the Allies' No. 1 enemy.

Lawrence Freed Of Graft Charges

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 7 (AP) — Pennsylvania's Democratic Chairman David L. Lawrence was acquitted tonight of charges of blackmail, and conspiracy to favor a gravel company on state contracts.

Lawrence, who also was secretary of the commonwealth in Former Governor George H. Earle's "Little New Deal" administration, was charged with favoring the company, blackmailing its president of $5,000, and failing to report that sum as a political contribution.

The jury which heard twenty-one days of testimony brought in the verdict after five hours and thirty-three minutes deliberation.

Poultry Industry To Be Closely Studied

College Park, Md., Dec. 8 (AP)—A $250,000 poultry research building and plant is ready here to begin investigations along five major lines to aid Maryland's $15,000,000 poultry industry.

The three-story building at the University of Maryland has been turned over to the college by the Public Works Administration, said Walter Goertz, resident PWA engineer, and will be occupied about Dec. 15.

Through it, said Dr. Morley A. Jull, poultry department head, the university's staff can "do a greatly increased amount of worthwhile work" for the "second largest single industry in the state."

The five-point research program, effective immediately, is:

Liveability of poultry; efficiency of feed utilization; experimental work for the best and most economical ration; and improving quality of poultry products.

Study of the influence of light and gland products on physiology of egg production, hatchability, and fertility.

Richardson Will Command Fleet

Washington, Dec. 8. (AP) — The selection of Admiral James O. Richardson to be the next commander-in-chief of the United States fleet was announced today by the navy department.

Richardson, who now commands the battle force, will succeed Admiral Claude C. Bloch on January 6.

Bloch and four other top-ranking officers were given new commands with the fleet or ashore in a shift which officials described as routine. Bloch, who has served a normal two-year tour of duty as fleet commander, was assigned to command of the 14th naval district, Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, effective in April.

Richardson was made commander of the battle force, the second highest fleet post, less than a year ago after brief service in the national capital as chief of the Bureau of Navigation.

Earlier service as the navy department's budget officer brought him into close contact with President Roosevelt and members of Congressional committees. At sea he has commanded also the scouting force destroyers and served as fleet chief of staff.

A stalwart figure with graying thin hair, Richardson is 61 and a native of Paris, Texas.

Announce Sites for Five Rural Villages

Rockville, Md., Dec. 8 (AP)—E. Brooke Lee, Montgomery county Housing Authority chairman, has announced tentative selection of sites for five of sixteen proposed rural villages, each to have twenty-five to fifty low-rent homes for farm workers.

The sixteen would be built with a requested $2,400,000 federal allotment. The U. S. Housing Authority has "earmarked" $800,000 for the work.

The sites are at Gaithersburg, Fairland, Poolesville, Emory Grove, and Norbeck.

Lee said they must be approved by the federal authority and two independent appraisers.

French Premier Bitterly Criticizes Russia in Talk

Paris, Dec. 8 (AP) — Premier Daladier today placed France's official sympathy on the side of Finland and bitterly criticized Russia.

In his first public pronouncement on the conflict, Daladier follows the line already laid down by British leaders and termed the Russian invasion of Finland "an abominable outrage" producing "universal disgust."

"Finland," he told a cheering Chamber of Deputies, "has France's salute and assurance of profound and strong sympathy."

Nazi Planes Turned Back

On France's own war front German reconnaissance planes, according to the military quarters, failed last night in an attempt to reach Paris. It was said the planes flew at a great height, but it was not explained how they were turned back.

Infantry and artillery activity on the western front was reported in tonight's high command communique which said:

"Local activity of contact units and artillery."

Gives Detailed Review

Late today Daladier appeared before the council of ministers, presided over by President Lebrun, and gave a detailed review of the diplomatic and military situation.

He announced that the veteran diplomat and league of nations representative Joseph Paul-Boncour and undersecretary for foreign affairs Auguste de Champetier Ode Ribes would be the French delegates to the league meetings opening tomorrow to debate Finland's charge of aggression against Russia.

The league council meets tomorrow and the assembly Monday.

Deer Season Closes As Hunters Report Three More Kills

The deer hunting season closed yesterday with three more kills reported in the Cumberland area.

Another eight-point buck was shot yesterday morning by George J. Paulus, 219 Davidson street, on Polish mountain. The deer weighed in the neighborhood of 140 pounds.

Charles Bidle, of Frederick, yesterday reported killing a four-point 145-pound deer Thursday afternoon at Swallow Falls.

Pittsburgh Business At All-Time High

Pittsburgh, Dec. 8 (AP)—The University of Pittsburgh reported today business in the Pittsburgh district in the month of November rose to 130.6 per cent of the 1923-25 average—an all-time high.

The previous peaks were recorded in March of 1937, when the index rose to 125.2 per cent of the '23-25 average, which is regarded as "normal, and in 1929, when the index zoomed to 126.4 per cent in July.

James Roosevelt Is Given Promotion

Hollywood, Dec. 8 (AP) — James Roosevelt, the president's son, was elevated to the presidency of Samuel Goldwyn Studio Company today.

J. Harvey Gravell, Philanthropist, Dies

Ambler, Pa., Dec. 8 (AP)—J. Harvey Gravell, a paint manufacturer, who paid all the debts of his 100 employes two years ago, died today at 63.

Book on Making of Modern Man Is Recommended

Changes in the World of Today Are Shown by Graphs

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A book which, in these uncertain times for mankind's future, should be in every home, certainly in every college and high school library, is Otto Neurath's "Modern Man In the Making" (A. A. Knopf, 1939).

It shows, largely by means of the new-fashioned and fascinating pictorial graphs, the changes which have occurred in man's life in the modern world, in industry, politics, environment, daily comforts, surroundings, length of life, disease.

The latter subjects are, of course, the one which interest us in this column.

Taking a clock dial, the author divides it into three sectors—red for work, black for sleep, blue for leisure. The average man (and woman) of the Middle Ages, indeed, up to the Eighteenth century, worked fourteen hours of the twenty-four, slept eight and played two. The modern man works eight hours, sleeps eight and plays eight. You knew that all the time, but on the graph it seems more important.

Striking Representation

Tuberculosis, which holds the spotlight in this Christmas seal period, is dealt with on page 97. Never have I seen a more striking representation of the relationship of poverty to tuberculosis. Three Brooklyn districts are compared—Flatbush, Bedford and Red Hook-Gowanus. The average rent and symbol of the kind of house or apartment inhabited are shown on one side of a line—on the other side a graveyard with crosses. The crosses represent the deaths per 10,000 population per annum. In Flatbush the rent is $60, the house has three windows and there are three crosses in the graveyard. In Bedford the rent is $50; two windows; five crosses. In Red Hook-Gowanus the rent is $30; one window; ten crosses.

Population trends in relation to disease, birth rate and suicide give material for thought .

Is life in the city unhealthy? We have always been taught to believe so. The facts:

Growing urbanization has reduced disease. It has reduced the birth rate and decreased the death rate. In Great Britain, in 1840, twenty per cent of the population lived in towns of 100,000 or over; there were twenty-five deaths per 1,000 population annually in the whole country. In 1930, in Great Britain, forty-five per cent of the population lived in cities of 100,000 or over; there were fifteen deaths per 1,000 population annually in the whole country.

We are developing a civilization top-heavy with old people. Arranging the population age groups by decades, from 0-10 years up to 70-80, in 1871 the resultant graph looks like a pyramid; in 1931 it looks like the outline of an apple with a clean slice off the bottom.

Infant mortality is an old story but it shows up in a revelatory way in the graph. In New York, from 1900-1902, there were thirteen graves; in 1930-1932, per same number of population, five and one-half.

Questions and Answers

G. V. H.: "Is it true that the telephone harbors no disease germs? What about a baby's toys?"

Answer—Most germs that affect human beings die a short time after they leave the body, especially if they light on a smooth, hard surface like a telephone received. Just how much cross infection of respiratory diseases come from telephones has never been accurately studied. But the incidence must be pretty low. Baby's toys seldom carry disease germs. The most dangerous possibility is the transmission of scarlet fever. A child who is convalescing from scarlet fever should be given only toys and books that can be burnt at the conclusion of convalescence.

West Virginia Is Near Coal Mine Safety Record

Charleston, W. Va., Dec. 8. (AP)—The State coal industry neared a new safety record today, but the State Department of Mines kept its fingers crossed.

If December fatalities are below thirty-one, it will mark the first time since 1889 that more than 400,000 tons of coal have been produced per fatality.

Fifty years ago, thirteen men were killed in producing 5,223,000 tons.

So far this year, 246 fatalities have been recorded and Engineer H. G. Houtz estimated the 1939 tonnage would aggregate 107,000,000.

Two West Virginians Given Life Sentences

Tampa, Fla., Dec. 8 (AP) — Two West Virginia men were sentenced to life imprisonment today for criminally attacking a twenty-year-old Tampa girl.

The defendants were Homer F. Gillette, 24, of Huntington, W. Va., and Charles Mapp, 25, of Birds Nest, W. Va. Both were shipyard workers.

Defense counsel gave notice of appeal to Circuit Judge L. L. Parks, who imposed sentence after a jury returned a guilty verdict.

Book on Making of Modern Man Is Recommended

Changes in the World of Today Are Shown by Graphs

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A book which, in these uncertain times for mankind's future, should be in every home, certainly in every college and high school library, is Otto Neurath's "Modern Man In the Making" (A. A. Knopf, 1939).

It shows, largely by means of the new-fashioned and fascinating pictorial graphs, the changes which have occurred in man's life in the modern world, in industry, politics, environment, daily comforts, surroundings, length of life, disease.

The latter subjects are, of course, the one which interest us in this column.

Taking a clock dial, the author divides it into three sectors—red for work, black for sleep, blue for leisure. The average man (and woman) of the Middle Ages, indeed, up to the Eighteenth century, worked fourteen hours of the twenty-four, slept eight and played two. The modern man works eight hours, sleeps eight and plays eight. You knew that all the time, but on the graph it seems more important.

Striking Representation

Tuberculosis, which holds the spotlight in this Christmas seal period, is dealt with on page 97. Never have I seen a more striking representation of the relationship of poverty to tuberculosis. Three Brooklyn districts are compared—Flatbush, Bedford and Red Hook-Gowanus. The average rent and symbol of the kind of house or apartment inhabited are shown on one side of a line—on the other side a graveyard with crosses. The crosses represent the deaths per 10,000 population per annum. In Flatbush the rent is $60, the house has three windows and there are three crosses in the graveyard. In Bedford the rent is $50; two windows; five crosses. In Red Hook-Gowanus the rent is $30; one window; ten crosses.

Population trends in relation to disease, birth rate and suicide give material for thought.

Is life in the city unhealthy? We have always been taught to believe so. The facts:

Growing urbanization has reduced disease. It has reduced the birth rate and decreased the death rate. In Great Britain, in 1840, twenty per cent of the population lived in towns of 100,000 or over; there were twenty-five deaths per 1,000 population annually in the whole country. In 1930, in Great Britain, forty-five per cent of the population lived in cities of 100,000 or over; there were fifteen deaths per 1,000 population annually in the whole country.

We are developing a civilization top-heavy with old people. Arranging the population age groups by decades, from 0-10 years up to 70-80, in 1871 the resultant graph looks like a pyramid; in 1931 it looks like the outline of an apple with a clean slice off the bottom.

Infant mortality is an old story but it shows up in a revelatory way in the graph. In New York, from 1900-1902, there were thirteen graves; in 1930-1932, per same number of population, five and one-half.

Questions and Answers

G. V. H.: "Is it true that the telephone harbors no disease germs? What about a baby's toys?"

Answer—Most germs that affect human beings die a short time after they leave the body, especially if they light on a smooth, hard surface like a telephone received. Just how much cross infection of respiratory diseases come from telephones has never been accurately studied. But the incidence must be pretty low. Baby's toys seldom carry disease germs. The most dangerous possibility is the transmission of scarlet fever. A child who is convalescing from scarlet fever should be given only toys and books that can be burnt at the conclusion of convalescence.

West Virginia Is Near Coal Mine Safety Record

Charleston, W. Va., Dec. 8. (AP)—The State coal industry neared a new safety record today, but the State Department of Mines kept its fingers crossed.

If December fatalities are below thirty-one, it will mark the first time since 1889 that more than 400,000 tons of coal have been produced per fatality.

In Accord

THE FINDINGS of G. Randolph Aiken, assistant United States district attorney, regarding the Cumberland handbill ordinance are in accordance with the opinions thereon heretofore expressed by this newspaper.

Following other observations previously made on the same subject, the News noted, in connection with the federal supreme court rulings on the general subject in November, that the high court had specifically upheld the requirement of police permits and regulations for distributors and house-to-house canvassers; and that, no new doctrines having been laid down, the local ordinance most likely came within the law and the court construction thereof, as was declared on several previous occasions.

The manner of its enforcement at times, however, was regarded as open to question, and in this position the opinion of the assistant United States district attorney is likewise in accord. Aiken holds that the ordinance is sound as applied to commercial objectives but cannot be applied to non-profit groups desirous of distributing printed matter containing news or views, as the News has repeatedly pointed out.

In the light of this clarification, it is necessary that the distinction between the two purposes of handbill distribution be kept clearly in mind hereafter both by those putting them out and those charged with enforcement.

Applicable Any Time

IN SENTENCING a drunken driver to jail for two months, Judge John P. Egan, of an Allegheny county, Pa., court, invited attention to an often overlooked fact—that "such a sentence, to jail, over the Christmas holidays, really means that the ones you love are being punished more severely than you."

Quite so; and, as the Connellsville, Pa., Courier aptly remarks, these words from the bench could well be applied to any season of the year with equal emphasis. "It is the loved ones at home," it says, "disgraced by the penalty the law imposes, who suffer innocently."

In the case mentioned, the judge expressed sympathy for the wife and children, noting that he could nothing more in the circumstances. The prisoner's car, out of his control because of liquor, crashed into another car, causing injury to two persons, and it was sheer luck that they were not killed.

The words of this judge and the newspaper should be impressed upon all those who are impelled, when "lit up" with liquor, to get in a car and go somewhere.

"I Am the State!"

A STORY is going around Washington about Charles Edison, acting secretary of the navy. According to this report, the son of the great inventor met a group of newspaper men recently in the executive wing of the White House, and was asked why he was calling on Mr. Roosevelt. "I just dropped in," he replied, "to find out what the president is doing with the Navy today."

It is common knowledge that many basic decisions in foreign policy are made by Mr. Roosevelt and not by Mr. Hull. Moreover, Secretary of Commerce Hopkins has been away from his office so much recently because of illness that he is said to call up the department regularly to find out what is happening there.

At this time of world crisis our relations with foreign countries, as handled by the State department, are of vital importance. The navy is our first line of defense against a world gone mad with war. And the Commerce department should be our first line of attack against continuing unemployment. Yet in the fashion of some of the dictators (whom Mr. Roosevelt professes so vehemently to despise) the president is, for all practical purposes, secretary of state, secretary of the navy and secretary of commerce as well.

More and more it becomes clear that Mr. Roosevelt is the New Deal and the New Deal is Mr. Roosevelt.

Rabbit Fever Avoidable

SEVERAL CASES of tularemia, more generally known as rabbit fever, have been reported in this state, in consequence of which the Maryland State Game and Fish Protective Association has issued a special bulletin warning people of the danger of contracting the disease and telling how to avoid it.

Tularemia can be avoided, the bulletin says, if the hunter or housewife will only use care in handling the rabbits. Every one should use rubber gloves while skinning and cleaning a rabbit. This, it is declared, is a sure preventive, as the disease cannot be transmitted after the animal is cooked, the heat killing all germs.

The disease can be detected by the presence of white spots on the liver and the intestinal tract of the animal.

All who serve rabbit in any style should give heed to this cautionary advice.

Take it Easy

THIS is the time of year to take it easy. For that matter, any time, in these years of strain and the rush of daily living is appropriate for a reminder to oneself that health benefits from a deceleration. Overcoat weather is here now, though, and with lower temperatures comes the demand for a greater expenditure of energy. The heart labors harder and it becomes more susceptible to failure if the imposition is too great.

Cardiac troubles cause about a third more deaths during winter months than during warmer seasons. In the summer, the heart fatality rate in this country is some 25,000. The figure is approximately 33,000 in the winter. The rate of energy output is the principal determinant of heart action. Climbing a ten-foot flight of stairs, a 150-pound man expends 1,500 foot pounds of energy. If the climb is accomplished in a half-minute, the rate of expenditure is roughly twice that of a brisk walk. But if the top is reached in twenty seconds, the man almost doubles the rate at which his body works, if he climbs in ten seconds, he makes the strain six or seven times that of walking.

When the weather is cold, one eats more, walks faster, generally moves more quickly. The temperature is conducive to physical strains. The heart more easily becomes overtaxed. Middle-aged and elderly persons especially should make conscious efforts to slow up.

Health and outlook improve when man takes it easy. After all, it's his life.

Hurrah!

HOW is the financial stewardship of the New Deal administration at Washington coming along? Quite in accord with customary New Deal results, thank you—expenses are increasing and income is declining.

Expenses and receipts for the current fiscal year through December 6, compared with a year ago, were as follows:

	This Year	Last Year
Expenses	$4,061,958,113.78	$3,846,950,342.46
Receipts	$2,283,627,856.89	$2,301,241,677.66
Gross Deficit	$1,778,330,256.89	$1,545,708,664.80
Net Deficit	$1,767,960,206.89	$1,529,316,514.80
Cash Balance	$2,134,639,427.02	$2,369,386,918.14

Expenses and gross and net deficits are greater, while receipts and the cash balance are lower. Hurrah for the New Deal!

One Certain Day, Anyway

WISECRACKS are still being heard about the presidential penchant for date shifting and calendar twisting.

Those who may have experienced some whimsical qualms about the established dates of certain recurring events in the future may find some consolation in one, however. This is that not even a Roosevelt will be able to convert the next election day into a Franksday, this being set by law beyond the reach of executive whimsy.

A certain gentleman doubtless wishes that he could postpone that day indefinitely.

Because he doesn't play ball in the winter time, a Cleveland infielder puts in a claim for the unemployment dole. If it works, the St. Louis Browns will try it next summer.

Wilhelmina, queen of Holland, is a crossword puzzle fan—we read. Probably finds 'em a relief from trying to figure out the statements issued by some European statesmen.

How are the mighty fallen! From an able train robber in his youth, Stalin descends in middle age to a mere taker of candy from children.

This year may prove to be a banner one, says a financial story. Well, there are lot's of flags waving in Europe.

We are all for this fad of streamlining, but it can go too far. For instance, we won't stand for a skinny, clean-shaven Santa Claus.

Another Douglas Book

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Ever since the Browser first met Lloyd C. Douglas, two or three years ago, he has felt that he knew Mr. Douglas well. He does not think of him as a writer, merely, but as intelligent, modest and decent human being who uses novels as a method of telling his thoughts.

Marshall Maslin

The Browser is fully aware that few critics rank the author of "Magnificent Obsession", "White Banners", "Green Light" and the other novels as a great novelist. Nor, he is sure, does Mr. Douglas consider himself more than a capable novelist.

But he does have great power to influence human beings by the truth of his stories; he gets under their skins; he is an intelligent human being doing an excellent and useful job—and his powers are fully equal to the tasks he undertakes. What more can you ask of any man? . . . His most recent book, "Dr. Hudson's Secret Journal" (Houghton Mifflin), will be read by many of those two million persons who are grateful to him for writing "Magnificent Obsession".

That story, you may remember, opened with the death by drowning on August 6, 1921, of the very fine brain surgeon, Dr. Wayne Hudson. He died, ironically, because his inhalator was being used at the moment of his accident to save the life of a hitherto useless rich boy named Robert Merrick. That lad, after his recovery from pneumonia, learned at what a great cost his wasted life had been saved, and he faced the problem of paying his debt with his own restored life.

"Magnificent Obsession" contained a number of quotations from Dr. Hudson's journal—a journal which Lloyd Douglas did not actually write until ten years later. That book now sees print and it is the author's answer to all those serious, wistful and challenging questions his readers have asked. . . It is Lloyd Douglas's answer to the appeal: "How did Dr. Hudson achieve and develop his great power to hearten the discouraged and strengthen the weak?"

The Browser knows two or three persons who admit they have been quite unable to read Vardis Fisher's "Children of God" (Harpers) even if it IS the 1939-1940 Harper Prize Novel and even if Carl Van Doren has called it a "vast, brilliant, rowdy, understanding novel". The Browser understands how they feel. He had difficulty, too, in defeating the first fifty pages—but after that he raced through this strong tale of the rise and growth and conflict of the Mormons. And the Browser is eaten by curiosity to know what the Mormons themselves think of this book about their forefathers.

The book has drive and amazing frankness. It has gusto and passion, and it is written with enormous detail. In some ways it startles the Browser with its revelation of the fierce brutality of the American people; and it haunts him with the fear that perhaps we have not entirely risen out of those blind and stormy passions that Mr. Fisher makes so vivid in his novel. (Prophecy: They may make a movie out of this book, but half of Hollywood will go mad before the job is finished).

NOTE: Wilson Follett has taken a vigorous and healthy sock in the Atlantic Monthly against "literish" the modern dialect in which he says that the overwhelming majority of book reviews are written. He's laughing at reviewers who call books astonishing, exciting, unforgettable, brilliant, outstanding, moving, readable, absorbing, etc. . . And the Browser agrees that those fellows degrade the English language with their hollow, flat, dull and unprofitable phrases. Although you may find a few of them in Marsh Maslin.

The Human Side Of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

At the West wall, the French soldiers, driving oxen, are well up on their spring ploughing and planting. They are within range of German guns, but no missles disturb them. Things are dull there, but at night time there is diversion and excitement, in the Franco - German dogfights in No Man's land.

The Germans began it by training pointer dogs to scout the enemy. The dog stiffens and "points" if he scents an ambuscade, or perhaps a sharpshooters, or any human presence in the darkness ahead. The French, ever alert, began training their dogs to scout right back at the Germans.

The embattled pooches lead the exploring patrols out into the darkness. On the impulse, without waiting for orders, they tangle for La Belle France or Deutschland ueber Alles. More literally, of course, they fight because each feels that the other will tear him to pieces if he doesn't beat him to it. Presumably the war aims of dogs are always clear.

Soldiers bivouaced and waiting in the opposing armies get along nicely. However, there is an occasional contretemps. The other day two French soldiers were taking a stroll out in No Man's Land and some impulsive or tactless German began shooting at them. The men returned to their lines with an angry complaint to their captain. The captain stepped right over to the German camp and gave their commander a dressing down. The Germans promised not to let it happen again.

Propaganda Exchanged

The deadlocked armies maintain a steady exchange of propaganda. It is interesting to note how unfailingly national characteristics emerge, even under such somewhat disturbed and unusual conditions. The Germans circulate among the French a simulated red and gold maple leaf, on which is printed a gentle and melancholy appeal beginning thus:

"The season of the year when the leaves fall from the trees brings melancholy thoughts. It is all the more fitting that it should do so now."

The propagandist surely had been reading "Immensee," was saturated with it, no doubt from his childhood primer, with its sad and gentle evocation of the beauty of the falling leaves and the broken patterns of the sunlight through the trees. Deep in the German soul is this strain of sometimes self-pitying melancholy, strangely sluiced into mystic exaltation which makes them at heart forever the devotees of Thor and Woden.

Taine, the great French literary historian, made a brilliant comparative study of the English and French mentalities. It is unfortunate that he did not similarly explore that of the Germans. Some later Taine may find a revealing antithesis in this propaganda exchange when it is "all quiet on the western front."

The French counter the maple leaf barrage with concise, logical and frequently humorous feuilletons, urging "Fridolin," as they call the German soldier, to take himself back home and get to work and forget all this foolishness.

Laboratory Provided

There are probably quite a lot of philosophers camped on both sides of No Man's Land, with quiet days and nights, except for the dogfights, in which to mediate and to make studies and inquiries pertinent to this most extraordinary of all wars. Much may come out of it, as a most unusual psychological laboratory is provided here.

Posibly Herr Doktor Hermann Wolfgang Braunschweiger, the distinguished German authority on preception and afferent and efferent nerve impuises is among the German troops—at any rate he is somewhere in the war.

The uproar of the dogfights, as he plays skat on a nice moonlight night, ought to interest him. There is nothing in all the demonic mechanical war tricks of the Germans quite so wonderful as the dogs' power of scent, which they have kept and we have all but lost. War takes us a long way back toward four-footed combat, but not that far.

Over on the French side, Tournon, delving into the psychology of crowds, might appraise the laxity of this militant crowd tension in this war, as contrasted with others. At any rate, it is the best of all wars so long as the men engaged may still live and learn.—Copyright, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Oumansky, Russian Ambassador, Gets Cold Shoulder from Capital Leaders

Constantine Oumansky, the Soviet's diplomatic representative in the United States, is about as popular in Washington as a pet rattlesnake would be.

The capital doesn't dislike him for himself alone. Personally he stood fairly well in official and social circles until recently. He tried to be friendly. There was a certain amount of sympathy for him individually, as the local spokesman for a government that he knew we disapproved of — an inclination to let him know we realized he couldn't help being Moscow's resident commissioner for Comrade Stalin.

Relations began to be a bit strained, however, when Stalin hooked up with Herr Hitler. We already were on doubtful terms with Berlin. Our embassy was functioning, and still is, at the fuehrer's headquarters, but we hadn't had an ambassador there in about a year. A charge d'affaires was on the job. Germany had no ambassador in Washington, either, that embassy likewise was being run by a German charge d'affaires — Hans Thomsen, who's pretty well liked.

Empty Embassies

An ambassador's entitled to go home on a short vacation occasionally, but when two countries' embassies remain for months in the hands of charges d'affaires it begins to look as if they weren't very sympathetic toward one another.

Well, that combination between Stalin and Hitler certainly was regarded askance in Washington.

Then Comrade Oumansky took a trip home likewise. That was all right—just a little trip. Yet it came at an inopportune time, on account of that concurrent Stalin and Hitler pact.

At this juncture our American ship City of Flint was grabbed by the Germans and taken into Russian waters. Our American Ambassador Steinhardt, trying to get news of the incident, was treated very snippily by the Moscow foreign office. The City of Flint got away, but it was plain that we'd been snubbed.

Empty Embassies

Shortly afterward an American weekly of national circulation published an article concerning Comrade Oumansky. In the early days of the Russian revolution Comrade Lenin was the main boss. Oumansky was one of his followers. Later Lenin died. Stalin came into power. Stalin hated the Lenists and began "liquidating" them as fast as possible. He didn't "liquidate" Oumansky, though, because, according to this yarn, Oumansky joined Stalin's OGPU (or secret service) and, turning traitor to his previous associates, helped Stalin to "liquidate" the latter.

I don't know whether the story was true or not. Anyway, it placed Oumansky in an indivious position. At that point Oumansky, coming back to the United States, was asked by all American newspapermen what the facts were. I supose he'd no option but to answer that it would be undignified in him to answer such accusations.

Consequently the charge sticks —not a very nice one.

Soviet Anniversary

Shortly before his landing in New York from abroad the date arrived for a celebration of the anniversary of the czar's overthrow.

The Russian embassy invited everybody of any consequence in Washington attend, eating caviar and drinking vodka. Those blow-outs at the Soviet embassy used to draw throngs. This last one was an utter flivver. Official Washington boycotted it utterly. Lots of folks came, but hardly anyone of significance was signified.

Next, Oumansky materialized and was greeted clammily. Officialdom was cool toward him society was colder.

Shortly afterward Russia jumped on Finland.

Believe me, this country is pro-Finnish. The Finns have paid their war debts regularly. Finnish Minister Procope gets a glad hand at the state department.

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

In reversing a federal court judgment of $711,932.55 damages against a Hosiery Workers union in the famous Apex case, the Third United States circuit court held that the action should have been brought in the state courts, explaining:

"The strike was not called for the purpose of interfering with interstate commerce. On the contrary, the intent was to unionize the plant, an action local in motive and local in effect. The effect upon interstate commerce was merely indirect and remote."

Under the definition of interstate commerce and what affects it which was accepted until very recently, there could be no quarrel with the finding. In the light of recent decisions of the United States supreme court, however, it would seem to be open to very serious question. As a matter of fact, it seems to this newspaper that the court has so broadened the definition of interstate commerce that almost any enterprise, the product of which eventually moves across a state line, comes within the fold.

Inasmuch as most of this broadening has resulted from efforts to confer benefits on labor, it would seem inevitable that the corresponding obligations would run with the benefits. In short, we suspect that in time it will be realized by the intended beneficiaries that all of the so-called liberalizing movements are two-edged swords which cut both ways.

Analysis Hints For Propaganda

Every Man Can Learn the Trick for Himself, Writer Says in Rotarian Magazine

Those who find it difficult in these confusing days to separate the wheat from the chaff in all they hear and read, may profit from the observations of Clyde R. Miller, director of the Institute for Propaganda Analysis, in the Rotarian Magazine.

Every man can learn to analyze propaganda for himself, Mr. Miller asserts, by stopping when he hears what may be propaganda, and by asking himself: "Who says it? Why? What are the motives of those who influence him? What does he want me to do?" Such a process isn't easy, he warns, because persons are too often ruled by their emotions, but it can be done.

"Few of us are in a position to answer the propaganda campaigns that are staged to influence our thinking," says Mr. Miller, "but all of us can analyze propaganda. If you do not want to be taken in by propaganda, insist on the facts. Weigh the points on behalf of every side." Today's propagandas concern all of us because our reaction to them may determine the kind of world we live in tomorrow, the author comments, re-emphasizing the point that while propagandas may be both good and bad, those "supercharged with emotion" must be carefully scrutinized.

Fruit Production Is Increasing

So Reports Specialist at the University of Maryland

A continuation of the upward trend in production is noted generally for important fruits in the United States with the exception of apples and dried prunes. Domestic demand for fruits is expected to improve in 1940, while the war is expected to affect foreign demand adversely, says Albert F. Vierheller, specialist in horticulture for the University of Maryland Extension Service.

An unsatisfactory export situation together with large supplies of various kinds of fruits in the United States and other countries are unfavorable factors in the apple marketing situation for the current season, says Mr. Vierheller.

Increase in domestic consumption, and the program whereby growers assisted by the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation will divert lower grade apples from sales for fresh consumption into by-products or other outlets, tend to offset the unfavorable elements. From a long-time viewpoint, however, the number of apple trees of bearing age is expected to continue to decrease, and the production trend during the next 5 or 6 years is expected to go downward at a moderate rate.

An upward trend in peach production is expected for the next five years and there is danger that the industry in some areas is being over expanded, says Mr. Vierheller. The crops for 1938 and 1939 averaged about eleven percent greater than the average of 1933-37. Large plantings have been made in recent years with little damage from drought or freezing since 1936. In areas where peaches are sold as fresh fruit, growers are generally optimistic. Under such conditions in the past, peach tree plantings increased rapidly and were followed by excessive production, low prices, neglect of orchards, and losses to growers.

War Rules Have Their Exceptions

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Hugh Johnson

New York City, Dec. 8—So far as I have been able to learn, no general staff has thought enough of Russian parachute tactics to imitate them. It looks very spectacular to fly a corps of men and even light artillery over the enemy's lines and drop them far in his rear. But lines of communication are highly important in war and this tactic skips that principle.

A little force surrounded by enemy troops has a hard time getting itself supplied and even harder time holding on. It is true that, with command of the air, supplies can also be flown and dropped, but it is an expensive and risky business.

Apparently both Russian try-outs of this invention in Finland turned sour—defeat, capture, loss of a lot of valuable equipment and a very extravagant and futile use of aircraft.

Has Exceptions

The rule about communications, like every rule in war, has exceptions. A powerful mechanized force dropped on some rearward center of key communications could possibly be justified even if all were lost. Such an attack on the Panama canal might do fatal damage if not parried. Or a thrust ahead of a powerful but slower advancing force could demoralize parts of the line—as, for example, in March 1918 when the Germans were within forty miles of the Channel ports. They could have won the war that week.

But fancy stunts in war are seldom decisive. The old physical shock of masses at actual grips with cold steel is nearly always necessary to victory.

Slashed Its Way

Some military observers see a new thing in the German advance in Poland. Apparently Nazi motorized mechanized troops paid little attention either to communications or to contact at their flanks. They just slashed through in parallel cuts leaving the Polish army sliced up like a loaf of bread—and then mopped up the pieces. There isn't enough detailed information about this to reach conclusions. But if the Polish forces were as mushy as the result indicates, it wasn't new. Good cavalry has done that kind of thing since the beginnings.

American Instances

Two of the prettiest American campaigns, from a professional angle, ignored the rule about communications—Grant's slash at Pemberton before Vicksburg and Sherman's devastating march through Georgia leaving the Confederate army between himself and his supplies. The first was an act of dangerous daring that might have brought disaster. The second counted cannily and correctly on a sort of an early blitzkrieg which, by a swift smash, would reach a new line of sea communications at Savannah. It counted also upon a rich country in which to forage, and finally upon a close knowledge of the bull-necked character of General Hood gleaned from his West Point classmates. Sherman merely made a bet that, instead of opposing him, Hood would hurl his whole army against an even more bull-necked Union general—Thomas—at Nashville and, instead of destroying Sherman's old line of communications, would destroy himself—which he duly did.

Axioms Not Imperative

That is the trouble about sticking to the books and getting too far out on a limb in "experting" this new war by applying so-called "axioms" of the art of war. There is nothing in that deadly game that requires any commander to follow any rule-book and somebody like Stonewall Jackson is always turning up to amend an old axiom or invent a new one.

The one nobody has amended was announced by an uneducated blacksmith—General Forrest. It applied to critical points on either offense or defense—"to git thar fustest with the mostest men." If you write "fire power" for "men" it is still the whole art of war. It is hardly more sufficient than his written formula for turning down an insistent request—"I tole ye no oncet dammit." — Distributed by United Features Synidicate, Inc.

In Accord

THE FINDINGS of G. Randolph Aiken, assistant United States district attorney, regarding the Cumberland handbill ordinance are in accordance with the opinions thereon heretofore expressed by this newspaper.

Following other observations previously made on the same subject, the News noted, in connection with the federal supreme court rulings on the general subject in November, that the high court had specifically upheld the requirement of police permits and regulations for distributors and house-to-house canvassers; and that, no new doctrines having been laid down, the local ordinance most likely came within the law and the court construction thereof, as was declared on several previous occasions.

The manner of its enforcement at times, however, was regarded as open to question, and in this position the opinion of the assistant United States district attorney is likewise in accord. Aiken holds that the ordinance is sound as applied to commercial objectives but cannot be applied to non-profit groups desirous of distributing printed matter containing news or views, as the News has repeatedly pointed out.

In the light of this clarification, it is necessary that the distinction between the two purposes of handbill distribution be kept clearly in mind hereafter both by those putting them out and those charged with enforcement.

Applicable Any Time

IN SENTENCING a drunken driver to jail for two months, Judge John P. Egan, of an Allegheny county, Pa., court, invited attention to an often overlooked fact—that "such a sentence, to jail, over the Christmas holidays, really means that the ones you love are being punished more severely than you."

Quite so; and, as the Connellsville, Pa., Courier aptly remarks, these words from the bench could well be applied to any season of the year with equal emphasis. "It is the loved ones at home," it says, "disgraced by the penalty the law imposes, who suffer innocently."

In the case mentioned, the judge expressed sympathy for the wife and children, noting that he could nothing more in the circumstances. The prisoner's car, out of his control because of liquor, crashed into another car, causing injury to two persons, and it was sheer luck that they were not killed.

The words of this judge and the newspaper should be impressed upon all those who are impelled, when "lit up" with liquor, to get in a car and go somewhere.

"I Am the State!"

A STORY is going around Washington about Charles Edison, acting secretary of the navy. According to this report, the son of the great inventor met a group of newspaper men recently in the executive wing of the White House, and was asked why he was calling on Mr. Roosevelt. "I just dropped in," he replied, "to find out what the president is doing with the Navy today."

It is common knowledge that many basic decisions in foreign policy are made by Mr. Roosevelt and not by Mr. Hull. Moreover, Secretary of Commerce Hopkins has been away from his office so much recently because of illness that he is said to call up the department regularly to find out what is happening there.

At this time of world crisis our relations with foreign countries, as handled by the State department, are of vital importance. The navy is our first line of defense against a world gone mad with war. And the Commerce department should be our first line of attack against continuing unemployment. Yet in the fashion of some of the dictators (whom Mr. Roosevelt professes so vehemently to despise) the president is, for all practical purposes, secretary of state, secretary of the navy and secretary of commerce as well.

More and more it becomes clear that Mr. Roosevelt is the New Deal and the New Deal is Mr. Roosevelt.

Rabbit Fever Avoidable

SEVERAL CASES of tularemia, more generally known as rabbit fever, have been reported in this state, in consequence of which the Maryland State Game and Fish Protective Association has issued a special bulletin warning people of the danger of contracting the disease and telling how to avoid it.

Tularemia can be avoided, the bulletin says, if the hunter or housewife will only use care in handling the rabbits. Every one should use rubber gloves while skinning and cleaning a rabbit. This, it is declared, is a sure preventive, as the disease cannot be transmitted after the animal is cooked, the heat killing all germs.

The disease can be detected by the presence of white spots on the liver and the intestinal tract of the animal.

All who serve rabbit in any style should give heed to this cautionary advice.

Take it Easy

THIS is the time of year to take it easy. For that matter, any time, in these years of strain and the rush of daily living is appropriate for a reminder to oneself that health benefits from a deceleration. Overcoat weather is here now, though, and with lower temperatures comes the demand for a greater expenditure of energy. The heart labors harder and it becomes more susceptible to failure if the imposition is too great.

Cardiac troubles cause about a third more deaths during winter months than during warmer seasons. In the summer, the heart fatality rate in this country is some 25,000. The figure is approximately 33,000 in the winter. The rate of energy output is the principal determinant of heart action. Climbing a ten-foot flight of stairs, a 150-pound man expends 1,500 foot pounds of energy. If the climb is accomplished in a half-minute, the rate of expenditure is roughly twice that of a brisk walk. But if the top is reached in twenty seconds, the man almost doubles the rate at which his body works, if he climbs in ten seconds, he makes the strain six or seven times that of walking.

When the weather is cold, one eats more, walks faster, generally moves more quickly. The temperature is conducive to physical strains. The heart more easily becomes overtaxed. Middle-aged and elderly persons especially should make conscious efforts to slow up.

Health and outlook improve when man takes it easy. After all, it's his life.

Hurrah!

HOW is the financial stewardship of the New Deal administration at Washington coming along? Quite in accord with customary New Deal results, thank you—expenses are increasing and income is declining.

Expenses and receipts for the current fiscal year through December 6, compared with a year ago, were as follows:

	This Year	Last Year
Expenses	$4,061,958,113.78	$3,846,950,342.46
Receipts	$2,283,627,856.89	$2,301,241,677.66
Gross Deficit	$1,778,330,256.89	$1,545,708,664.80
Net Deficit	$1,767,960,206.89	$1,529,316,514.80
Cash Balance	$2,134,639,427.02	$2,369,386,918.14

Expenses and gross and net deficits are greater, while receipts and the cash balance are lower. Hurrah for the New Deal!

One Certain Day, Anyway

WISECRACKS are still being heard about the presidential penchant for date shifting and calendar twisting.

Those who may have experienced some whimsical qualms about the established dates of certain recurring events in the future may find some consolation in one, however. This is that not even a Roosevelt will be able to convert the next election day into a Franksday, this being set by law beyond the reach of executive whimsy.

A certain gentleman doubtless wishes that he could postpone that day indefinitely.

Because he doesn't play ball in the winter time, a Cleveland infielder puts in a claim for the unemployment dole. If it works, the St. Louis Browns will try it next summer.

Wilhelmina, queen of Holland, is a cross-word puzzle fan—we read. Probably finds 'em a relief from trying to figure out the statements issued by some European statesmen.

How are the mighty fallen! From an able train robber in his youth, Stalin descends in middle age to a mere taker of candy from children.

This year may prove to be a banner one, says a financial story. Well, there are lot's of flags waving in Europe.

We are all for this fad of streamlining, but it can go too far. For instance, we won't stand for a skinny, clean-shaven Santa Claus.

Another Douglas Book

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Ever since the Browser first met Lloyd C. Douglas, two or three years ago, he has felt that he knew Mr. Douglas well. He does not think of him as a writer, merely, but as intelligent, modest and decent human being who uses novels as a method of telling his thoughts.

Marshall Maslin

The Browser is fully aware that few critics rank the author of "Magnificent Obsession", "White Banners", "Green Light" and the other novels as a great novelist. Nor, he is sure, does Mr. Douglas consider himself more than a capable novelist.

But he does have great power to influence human beings by the truth of his stories; he gets under their skins; he is an intelligent human being doing an excellent and useful job—and his powers are fully equal to the tasks he undertakes. What more can you ask of any man? . . . His most recent book, "Dr. Hudson's Secret Journal" (Houghton Mifflin), will be read by many of those two million persons who are grateful to him for writing "Magnificent Obsession".

That story, you may remember, opened with the death by drowning on August 6, 1921, of the very fine brain surgeon, Dr. Wayne Hudson. He died, ironically, because his inhalator was being used at the moment of his accident to save the life of a hitherto useless rich boy named Robert Merrick. That lad, after his recovery from pneumonia, learned at what a great cost his wasted life had been saved, and he faced the problem of paying his debt with his own restored life.

"Magnificent Obsession" contained a number of quotations from Dr. Hudson's journal—a journal which Lloyd Douglas did not actually write until ten years later. That book now sees print and it is the author's answer to all those serious, wistful and challenging questions his readers have asked. . . It is Lloyd Douglas's answer to the appeal: "How did Dr. Hudson achieve and develop his great power to hearten the discouraged and strengthen the weak?"

The Browser knows two or three persons who admit they have been quite unable to read Vardis Fisher's "Children of God" (Harpers) even if it IS the 1939-1940 Harper Prize Novel and even if Carl Van Doren has called it a "vast, brilliant, rowdy, understanding novel". The Browser understands how they feel. He had difficulty, too, in defeating the first fifty pages—but after that he raced through this strong tale of the rise and growth and conflict of the Mormons. And the Browser is eaten by curiosity to know what the Mormons themselves think of this book about their forefathers.

The book has drive and amazing frankness. It has gusto and passion, and it is written with enormous detail. In some ways it startles the Browser with its revelation of the fierce brutality of the American people; and it haunts him with the fear that perhaps we have not entirely risen out of those blind and stormy passions that Mr. Fisher makes so vivid in his novel. (Prophecy: They may make a movie out of this book, but half of Hollywood will go mad before the job is finished).

NOTE: Wilson Follett has taken a vigorous and healthy sock in the Atlantic Monthly against "literish" the modern dialect in which he says that the overwhelming majority of book reviews are written. He's laughing at reviewers who call books astonishing, exciting, unforgettable, brilliant, outstanding, moving, readable, absorbing, etc. . . And the Browser agrees that those fellows degrade the English language with their hollow, flat, dull and unprofitable phrases. Although you may find a few of them in Marsh Maslin.

The Human Side Of the News

Edwin C. Hill

At the West wall, the French soldiers, driving oxen, are well up on their spring ploughing and planting. They are within range of German guns, but no missles disturb them. Things are dull there, but at night time there is diversion and excitement, in the Franco - German dogfights in No Man's land.

The Germans began it by training pointer dogs to scout the enemy. The dog stiffens and "points" if he scents an ambuscade, or perhaps a sharpshooters, or any human presence in the darkness ahead. The French, ever alert, began training their dogs to scout right back at the Germans.

The embattled pooches lead the exploring patrols out into the darkness. On the impulse, without waiting for orders, they tangle for La Belle France or Deutschland ueber Alles. More literally, of course, they fight because each feels that the other will tear him to pieces if he doesn't beat him to it. Presumably the war aims of dogs are always clear.

Soldiers bivouaced and waiting in the opposing armies get along nicely. However, there is an occasional contretemps. The other day two French soldiers were taking a stroll out in No Man's Land and some impulsive or tactless German began shooting at them. The men returned to their lines with an angry complaint to their captain. The captain stepped right over to the German camp and gave their commander a dressing down. The Germans promised not to let it happen again.

Propaganda Exchanged

The deadlocked armies maintain a steady exchange of propaganda. It is interesting to note how unfailingly national characteristics emerge, even under such somewhat disturbed and unusual conditions. The Germans circulate among the French a simulated red and gold maple leaf, on which is printed a gentle and melancholy appeal beginning thus:

"The season of the year when the leaves fall from the trees brings melancholy thoughts. It is all the more fitting that it should do so now."

The propagandist surely had been reading "Immensee," was saturated with it, no doubt from his childhood primer, with its sad and gentle evocation of the beauty of the falling leaves and the broken patterns of the sunlight through the trees. Deep in the German soul is this strain of sometimes self-pitying melancholy, strangely sluiced into mystic exaltation which makes them at heart forever the devotees of Thor and Woden.

Taine, the great French literary historian, made a brilliant comparative study of the English and French mentalities. It is unfortunate that he did not similarly explore that of the Germans. Some later Taine may find a revealing antithesis in this propaganda exchange when it is "all quiet on the western front."

The French counter the maple leaf barrage with concise, logical and frequently humorous feuilletons, urging "Fridolin," as they call the German soldier, to take himself back home and get to work and forget all this foolishness.

Laboratory Provided

There are probably quite a lot of philosophers camped on both sides of No Man's Land, with quiet days and nights, except for the dogfights, in which to mediate and to make studies and inquiries pertinent to this most extraordinary of all wars. Much may come out of it, as a most unusual psychological laboratory is provided here.

Posibly Herr Doktor Hermann Wolfgang Braunschweiger, the distinguished German authority on preception and afferent and efferent nerve impuises is among the German troops—at any rate he is somewhere in the war.

The uproar of the dogfights, as he plays skat on a nice moonlight night, ought to interest him. There is nothing in all the demonic mechanical war tricks of the Germans quite so wonderful as the dogs' power of scent, which they have kept and we have all but lost. War takes us a long way back toward four-footed combat, but not that far.

Over on the French side, Tournon, delving into the psychology of crowds, might appraise the laxity of this militant crowd tension in this war, as contrasted with others. At any rate, it is the best of all wars so long as the men engaged may still live and learn.—Copyright, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

THAT UNAPPRECIATED TIPOFF

Oumansky, Russian Ambassador, Gets Cold Shoulder from Capital Leaders

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Oumansky

The capital doesn't dislike him for himself alone. Personally he stood fairly well in official and social circles until recently. He tried to be friendly. There was a certain amount of sympathy for him individually, as the local spokesman for a government that he knew we disapproved of — an inclination to let him know we realized he couldn't help being Moscow's resident commissioner for Comrade Stalin.

Relations began to be a bit strained, however, when Stalin hooked up with Herr Hitler. We already were on doubtful terms with Berlin. Our embassy was functioning, and still is, at the fuehrer's headquarters, but we hadn't had an ambassador there in about a year. A charge d'affaires was on the job. Germany had no ambassador in Washington, either, that embassy likewise was being run by a German charge d'affaires — Hans Thomsen, who's pretty well liked.

Empty Embassies

An ambassador's entitled to go home on a short vacation occasionally, but when two countries' embassies remain for months in the hands of charges d'affaires it begins to look as if they weren't very sympathetic toward one another.

Well, that combination between Stalin and Hitler certainly was regarded askance in Washington.

Then Comrade Oumansky took a trip home likewise. That was all right—just a little trip. Yet it came at an inopportune time, on account of that concurrent Stalin and Hitler pact.

At this juncture our American ship City of Flint was grabbed by the Germans and taken into Russian waters. Our American Ambassador Steinhardt, trying to get news of the incident, was treated very snippily by the Moscow foreign office. The City of Flint got away, but it was plain that we'd been snubbed.

Empty Embassies

Shortly afterward an American weekly of national circulation published an article concerning Comrade Oumansky. In the early days of the Russian revolution Comrade Lenin was the main boss. Oumansky was one of his followers. Later Lenin died. Stalin came into power. Stalin hated the Lenists and began "liquidating" them as fast as possible. He didn't "liquidate" Oumansky, though, because, according to this yarn, Oumansky joined Stalin's OGPU (or secret service) and, turning traitor to his previous associates, helped Stalin to "liquidate" the latter.

I don't know whether the story was true or not. Anyway, it placed Oumansky in an indivious position. At that point Oumansky, coming back to the United States, was asked by all American newspapermen what the facts were. I supose he'd no option but to answer that it would be undignified in him to answer such accusations.

Consequently the charge sticks—not a very nice one.

Soviet Anniversary

Shortly before his landing in New York from abroad the date arrived for a celebration of the anniversary of the czar's overthrow.

The Russian embassy invited everybody of any consequence in Washington attend, eating caviar and drinking vodka. Those blow-outs at the Soviet embassy used to draw throngs. This last one was an utter flivver. Official Washington boycotted it utterly. Lots of folks came, but hardly anyone of significance was signified.

Next, Oumansky materialized and was greeted clammily. Officialdom was cool toward him society was colder.

Shortly afterward Russia jumped on Finland.

Believe me, this country is pro-Finnish. The Finns have paid their war debts regularly. Finnish Minister Procope gets a glad hand at the state department.

Russian Representative Oumansky gets a cold shoulder. Socially he's "persona non grata," anyway.

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

In reversing a federal court judgment of $711,932.55 damages against a Hosiery Workers union in the famous Apex case, the Third United States circuit court held that the action should have been brought in the state courts, explaining:

"The strike was not called for the purpose of interfering with interstate commerce. On the contrary, the intent was to unionize the plant, an action local in motive and local in effect. The effect upon interstate commerce was merely indirect and remote."

Under the definition of interstate commerce and what affects it which was accepted until very recently, there could be no quarrel with the finding. In the light of recent decisions of the United States supreme court, however, it would seem to be open to very serious question. As a matter of fact, it seems to this newspaper that the court has so broadened the definition of interstate commerce that almost any enterprise, the product of which eventually moves across a state line, comes within the fold.

Inasmuch as most of this broadening has resulted from efforts to confer benefits on labor, it would seem inevitable that the corresponding obligations would run with the benefits. In short, we suspect that in time it will be realized by the intended beneficiaries that all of the so-called liberalizing movements are two-edged swords which cut both ways.

Analysis Hints For Propaganda

Those who find it difficult in these confusing days to separate the wheat from the chaff in all they hear and read, may profit from the observations of Clyde R. Miller, director of the Institute for Propaganda Analysis, in the Rotarian Magazine.

Every man can learn to analyze propaganda for himself, Mr. Miller asserts, by stopping when he hears what may be propaganda, and by asking himself: "Who says it? Why? What are the motives of those who influence him? What does he want me to do?" Such a process isn't easy, he warns, because persons are too often ruled by their emotions, but it can be done.

"Few of us are in a position to answer the propaganda campaigns that are staged to influence our thinking," says Mr. Miller, "but all of us can analyze propaganda. If you do not want to be taken in by propaganda, insist on the facts. Weigh the points on behalf of every side." Today's propagandas concern all of us because our reaction to them may determine the kind of world we live in tomorrow, the author comments, re-emphasizing the point that while propagandas may be both good and bad, those "supercharged with emotion" must be carefully scrutinized.

Fruit Production Is Increasing

So Reports Specialist at the University of Maryland

A continuation of the upward trend in production is noted generally for important fruits in the United States with the exception of apples and dried prunes. Domestic demand for fruits is expected to improve in 1940, while the war is expected to affect foreign demand adversely, says Albert F. Vierheller, specialist in horticulture for the University of Maryland Extension Service.

An unsatisfactory export situation together with large supplies of various kinds of fruits in the United States and other countries are unfavorable factors in the apple marketing situation for the current season, says Mr. Vierheller.

Increase in domestic consumption, and the program whereby growers assisted by the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation will divert lower grade apples from sales for fresh consumption into by-products or other outlets, tend to offset the unfavorable elements. From a long-time viewpoint, however, the number of apple trees of bearing age is expected to continue to decrease, and the production trend during the next 5 or 6 years is expected to go downward at a moderate rate.

An upward trend in peach production is expected for the next five years and there is danger that the industry in some areas is being over expanded, says Mr. Vierheller. The crops for 1938 and 1939 averaged about eleven percent greater than the average of 1933-37. Large plantings have been made in recent years with little damage from drought or freezing since 1936. In areas where peaches are sold as fresh fruit, growers are generally optimistic. Under such conditions in the past, peach tree plantings increased rapidly and were followed by excessive production, low prices, neglect of orchards, and losses to growers.

War Rules Have Their Exceptions

Hugh Johnson

New York City, Dec. 8—So far as I have been able to learn, no general staff has thought enough of Russian parachute tactics to imitate them. It looks very spectacular to fly a corps of men and even light artillery over the enemy's lines and drop them far in his rear. But lines of communication are highly important in war and this tactic skips that principle.

A little force surrounded by enemy troops has a hard time getting itself supplied and even harder time holding on. It is true that, with command of the air, supplies can also be flown and dropped, but it is an expensive and risky business.

Apparently both Russian try-outs of this invention in Finland turned sour—defeat, capture, loss of a lot of valuable equipment and a very extravagant and futile use of aircraft.

Has Exceptions

The rule about communications, like every rule in war, has exceptions. A powerful mechanized force dropped on some rearward center of key communications could possibly be justified even if all were lost. Such an attack on the Panama canal might do fatal damage if not parried. Or a thrust ahead of a powerful but slower advancing force could demoralize parts of the line—as, for example, in March 1918 when the Germans were within forty miles of the Channel ports. They could have won the war that week.

But fancy stunts in war are seldom decisive. The old physical shock of masses at actual grips with cold steel is nearly always necessary to victory.

Slashed Its Way

Some military observers see a new thing in the German advance in Poland. Apparently Nazi motorized, mechanized troops paid little attention either to communications or to contact at their flanks. They just slashed through in parallel cuts leaving the Polish army sliced up like a loaf of bread—and then mopped up the pieces. There isn't enough detailed information about this to reach conclusions. But if the Polish forces were as mushy as the result indicates, it wasn't new. Good cavalry has done that kind of thing since the beginnings.

American Instances

Two of the prettiest American campaigns, from a professional angle, ignored the rule about communications—Grant's slash at Pemberton before Vicksburg and Sherman's devastating march through Georgia leaving the Confederate army between himself and his supplies. The first was an act of dangerous daring that might have brought disaster. The second counted cannily and correctly on a sort of an early blitzkrieg which, by a swift smash, would reach a new line of sea communications at Savannah. It counted also upon a rich country in which to forage, and finally upon a close knowledge of the bull-necked character of General Hood gleaned from his West Point classmates. Sherman merely made a bet that, instead of opposing him, Hood would hurl his whole army against an even more bull-necked Union general—Thomas—at Nashville and, instead of destroying Sherman's old line of communications, would destroy himself—which he duly did.

Axioms Not Imperative

That is the trouble about sticking to the books and getting too far out on a limb in "experting" this new war by applying so-called "axioms" of the art of war. There is nothing in that deadly game that requires any commander to follow any rule-book and somebody like Stonewall Jackson is always turning up to amend an old axiom or invent a new one.

The one nobody has amended was announced by an uneducated blacksmith—General Forrest. It applied to critical points on either offense or defense—"to git thar fustest with the mostest men." If you write "fire power" for "men" it is still the whole art of war. It is hardly more sufficient than his written formula for turning down an insistent request—"I tole ye no oncet dammit." — Distributed by United Features Syndicate, Inc.

On the Record

By Representative Samuel Hobbs, Democrat, of Alabama

I do not think we should sit here and do nothing while our cotton and peanut growers and the cattle and the swine farmers of this country suffer from 6-cent cottonseed oil, 5-cent tallow, and 6-cent lard. The problem is not a surplus problem. It is a problem of turning our markets over to imports which rob our farmers of their birthright—fair prices and reasonable prosperity.

started school when I was 6 old," a happy, care-free young- the same as any other. Yes I can remember (how well I can remember) my second year in school, for I had a wonderful teacher who seemed to understand my particular case. I had a very bad speech defect but this teacher helped me try to overcome it without my being sensitive to it. And believe it or not, I was one of the brightest despite my handicap.

"I owe this teacher much. If only my third grade teacher had been more like her! She was just the opposite. She said it was my fault and that I did not try. But this was not the truth, as today there are numerous words that I am unable to pronounce no matter how hard I try, although I have outgrown a greater part of it. This teacher would make a fool of me before the entire class. On one occasion our class was up front reciting the three tables which I knew very well. I got as far as three times 11, but it was impossible for me to say 33 correctly. This teacher made the following command: "Go to your seat and don't come to class unless you talk plainly." She left me at my seat for a day, then told me to come to class (this was no remedy for a sensitive child.)

"I remember her saying that when I was grown I would come to her and thank her for doing this. But today I am grown and she is still teaching schoool, but I will never, never thank her for the misery she caused me. When I pass her on the street, it takes all my reserve to keep from telling her a few things.

"From this time on I became a dull child, conscious that I was different from other children, greatly embarrassed by my handicaps, developing an inferiority complex.

"I also lost much confidence in my parents. Why didn't they take me to a doctor to find out what was causing the trouble? They were in circumstances to do so. Instead, they left me go on without so much as submitting me to an examination, also letting my brother make fun of me without correcting him.

"I hope that parents who read your column will do all they can to gain the confidence of their children. As far as the teacher is concerned, I think she ought to study child psychology. Perhaps she ought to work in a factory like myself instead of trying to teach children. Am I right?"

Answer: You are right, only it might be a little unfair to the people working in the factory to have her among them.

A Christmas Fantasy [Part 6]

JEMMY, WHIRLED ALONG BY A WIND, LANDS IN A CAVE. "THIS," SAYS THE BLACK SPIRIT, "IS THE VILLAGE OF DARKNESS, MADE BY EVIL THOUGHTS."

AS THE CAVE SEEMED TO GROW DARKER, JEMMY CLOSED HIS EYES TO SHUT OUT THE SIGHT. WHEN HE OPENED THEM, JEMMY STOOD ALONE ON A HILLTOP.

JEMMY WAS STILL BLINKING HIS EYES OVER THE AMAZING DISAPPEARANCE OF THE BLACK SPIRIT. WHEN THE YOUNG SPIRIT OF POLLY RETURNED.

BUT JEMMY WAS NOT TO REMAIN THERE LONG. FOR A TERRIFIC GUST OF WIND CAME ALONG AND BLEW BOTH OF THEM UP INTO THE SKY.

Lining Up Your Lips

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN GIRLS ran baby ribbons in their corset covers and wore bust ruffles, the silly dears, they affected the kind of a mouth that had a sweet, pouty, rosebud pucker. It wasn't exactly the clinging ivy period because the career girl had started on her way, but it wasn't far from it. Now lips are wide and full, made that way by applications of red pigment. Joan Crawford, for instance, and Katherine Cornell. It gives 'em character, makes the face vivid and interesting. Anyhow, a fair-sized mouth seems to be the fashionable choice and it suits the capable, efficient young ladies of this world-crazy period.

To outline your lips clearly, dip orangewood stick into the rosy cream and make a pattern. Form a line along the lip edges. Fill in with lipstick, be exact when treating corners. Too many beauty 'quest-put on plenty in the middle of lips, neglect the inner surfaces let the coloring substance finish at the lip ends in a smear. Casual grooming, that is. But what can you expect when they stand before a mirror in a dim light and do the job in less than half a minute? Achieve an even film. And do seek becoming color. Fuchsia shades don't go over so well. There are new shades that are more like the natural tones. Look 'em over.

Moisture in the armpits is not to be tolerated. Horrid. Frocks ruined, too. And nobody loves one that way.

A simple treatment that is sometimes successful is bathing with clear, tepid water, frictioning briskly with a coarse towel, applying a solution of bicarbonate of soda, one teaspoonful to half a cup of water. Put it on with cotton. Hold the arms over the head until the application dries.

Deodorants, or deterrents, can be purchased; if one won't work, another one will. Follow directions carefully.

"TELL BILL GOODBYE"

By Marie Blizard

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS

THE CHARACTERS:

FABIENNE SEYMOUR, rich, young and beautiful.

NICKY BARTLETT, wealthy and in love with Fabienne.

ELLEN CHAPMAN, young and capable mistress of Willoughby house.

DR. BILL MALLORY, close friend of Ellen's.

YESTERDAY: In order to economize, because she has drawn on her income for a theater project, Fabienne goes to live with Ellen, asks for her own room so as to avoid Bill.

CHAPTER TWENTY

IT RAINED the Saturday that Fabienne was moving from her spacious, luxurious quarters to the small room at the back of Ellen's apartment. It was a cold, spirit-chilling rain that sluiced over the windows and dripped drearily on tin roofing of the terrace below Fabienne's windows, beating out a dirge to mark the passing of comforts.

The room at Ellen's had a big four-poster bed that took up most of the space, a writing desk and big easy chair, fresh frilled curtains at the windows and lamps that cast a cheery glow over the freshly painted walls. It was comfortable and attractive. But it's single window looked over a brick court and presented a view very different from the one that Fabienne faced from her hotel window.

The broad areas of the park, for all that they were brown and gray with winter's blight and January rain, gave her a feeling of space. Space, space, she thought wildly as all men do when the limitless fields of peace are not within the domain of their own hearts, I must have space! As if an answer lay over the far horizon, an answer to the inarticulate cry for fulfillment.

That cry was deep in Fabienne Seymour, although she did not know it for what it was. If she had had a gift for divining the depths of herself, she would have known that chance had swerved her from the destiny toward which her twenty-four years had been pointed.

Who is there to know that the fit of pique that sent her footsteps on the unaccustomed path of service was not something more? A preordained means, perhaps, of sounding the sleeping good that had been wasted in the soft, selfish pattern by which she had lived.

For the changes in her character had been many since that autumn day when she had first come to Willoughby house. Not that she was willing to recognize a growing strength and grace and unselfishness in herself. Later, she thought it was the gift of love that had erased her former values and taught her the real meaning of life.

In a sense, at this period of her life—this novitiate that was her experience in working for others—it was not Bill Mallory, or her feeling for him, that was molding the fine, strong lines of her character. It was her feeling for him that had first made her aware of a quickened sense of living. But it was the poor, the unfortunate themselves—and Ellen Chapman—who had made her feel a sense of responsibility that she was never to rid herself of.

As for her feeling for Bill, she had met that problem twice. The first time she had told herself, with conviction, that her brief unhappiness had been only frustration. The second time had been recent; it was on Christmas day that she had decided she wanted to have him for her friend.

The cry within her was not strident, was not voiced. Not even once did she say to herself, "This is the man I want. I know now that I want and need love." No, for she believed that it was not true.

And yet when Ellen invited her to share her home, instinctively Fabienne had said she must have a room that would guarantee her privacy.

It would not be privacy like this, she thought, sweeping the living room with her glance. She went on into the bathroom and looked for a long time at the gleaming tiles, the mammoth bath, the great thick towels. She turned her back on them and went out to close the last of her three trunks.

Fabienne went out to close the last of her three trunks.

Not for many years was she ever to know luxury like that which she was leaving. But the years were to be filled with greater happiness than sybaritic pleasures had ever brought her.

She was putting on her hat when a sharp knock sounded at her door. It would be the porters coming for her trunks.

"Come in," she called.

"Thought I'd surprise you," Nicky drawled in his nice, easy voice from the door.

"Nicky!" She flew across the room, kissed him and told him that he was the proverbial sight for sore eyes.

"What's all this?" he asked, waving his hat in the general direction of her luggage.

"I'm moving. Going out into the cold, cruel world," she said, suddenly feeling sorry for herself. She added, "I'm moving down to Twelfth street with Ellen Chapman. Remember her? I wrote you about her."

"Remember her!" he snorted. "The woman that ruined my life! How I rue the day I ever consented to drive you to those slums. What is this strange power this female has over you? She must be a she-wolf in sheep's cloth—"

"That'll do, Nicky. Ellen is the one real person I've known in my life and she hasn't done anything but show me the way to the most interesting thing I've ever done. If you knew Ellen, you'd feel the same way I do about her." She looked at him then and said, "No, I don't think you'd see Ellen's qualities."

But she was quite wrong.

"I drove up this morning with the Jackson's," he told her. "They are waiting for us at the Meadowbrook. You can do your moving later."

"But I said I'd be down by five."

Nicky picked up her coat. "Come along, old girl. We'll have a cocktail and move you later. You'll need something bracing on a day like this."

It was cheery at the Meadowbrook. Mirabel and Frank Jackson were full of good gossip, horse talk and plans.

Fabienne forgot that she had promised to be at Ellen's at five. When she remembered, she thought it didn't matter, since she was going to spend four dreary months—maybe longer—living at the apartment on Twelfth street.

After her second cocktail, the prospect seemed completely unattractive and she wondered how she had been able to let herself in for that impulsive act that would cost her her comfort.

Mirabel said, "The Yancys are coming back from their honeymoon next week, darling, and there are some grand parties planned. Why don't you come back with us? You know you promised that you'd come back after your Christmas trip."

"Can't," she said briefly. "I've got to build a theater."

Later Nicky told her that he'd build her all the theaters she wanted—on his grounds at the place in Maryland.

Not since the days before her mother had told her she must marry Nicky had Fabienne liked him as much as she did that night.

Perhaps when she finished the theater project at the settlement house, it would be a good time to make a decisive move in her life. To marry Nicky and make a home and family life for herself.

She looked at his profile covertly, liking it, as she rode beside him in the tonneau of Mirabel's town car in which he had driven from Maryland. It was cozy and warm in the car. Outside it was cold and wet and lonely. Inside was the little world she preferred.

It was after nine and her luggage was in the truck that preceded them down Fifth avenue and turned into Twelfth street, while she was thinking those things.

The car pulled up in front of Ellen's apartment house. Fabienne said, "We'll have to get someone in the apartment—the superintendent—to help the driver. He can't manage all those trunks by himself."

She rang the bell beside Ellen's name and waited for the buzzer to open the door. A minute later, Bill Mallory opened the door. "I was afraid I'd have to come and get you," he told her.

"Where's Ellen?"

"Don't know. I've been waiting for you since five. Go on up. I'll give the truckman a hand. Rustle trunks to pay part of tuition at college, you know."

He'd been waiting for her since five! She forgot all about Nicky, standing at her elbow.

It was her feeling for him that had first made her aware of a quickened sense of living. But it was the poor, the unfortunate themselves—and Ellen Chapman—who had made her feel a sense of responsibility that she was never to rid herself of.

As for her feeling for Bill, she had met that problem twice. The first time she had told herself, with conviction, that her brief unhappiness had been only frustration. The second time had been recent; it was on Christmas day that she had decided she wanted to have him for her friend.

The cry within her was not strident, was not voiced. Not even once did she say to herself, "This is the man I want. I know now that I want and need love." No, for she believed that it was not true.

And yet when Ellen invited her to share her home, instinctively Fabienne had said she must have a room that would guarantee her privacy.

It would not be privacy like this, she thought, sweeping the living room with her glance. She went on into the bathroom and looked for a long time at the gleaming tiles, the mammoth bath, the great thick towels. She turned her back on them and went out to close the last of her three trunks.

Not for many years was she ever to know luxury like that which she was leaving. But the years were to be filled with greater happiness than sybaritic pleasures had ever brought her.

She was putting on her hat when a sharp knock sounded at her door. It would be the porters coming for her trunks.

"Come in," she called.

"Thought I'd surprise you," Nicky drawled in his nice, easy voice from the door.

"Nicky!" She flew across the room, kissed him and told him that he was the proverbial sight for sore eyes.

"What's all this?" he asked, waving his hat in the general direction of her luggage.

"I'm moving. Going out into the cold, cruel world," she said, suddenly feeling sorry for herself. She added, "I'm moving down to Twelfth street with Ellen Chapman. Remember her? I wrote you about her."

"Remember her!" he snorted. "The woman that ruined my life! How I rue the day I ever consented to drive you to those slums. What is this strange power this female has over you? She must be a she-wolf in sheep's cloth—"

"That'll do, Nicky. Ellen is the one real person I've known in my life and she hasn't done anything but show me the way to the most interesting thing I've ever done. If you knew Ellen, you'd feel the same way I do about her." She looked at him then and said, "No, I don't think you'd see Ellen's qualities."

But she was quite wrong.

"I drove up this morning with the Jackson's," he told her. "They are waiting for us at the Meadowbrook. You can do your moving later."

"But I said I'd be down by five."

Nicky picked up her coat. "Come along, old girl. We'll have a cocktail and move you later. You'll need something bracing on a day like this."

It was cheery at the Meadowbrook. Mirabel and Frank Jackson were full of good gossip, horse talk and plans.

Fabienne forgot that she had promised to be at Ellen's at five. When she remembered, she thought it didn't matter, since she was going to spend four dreary months—maybe longer—living at the apartment on Twelfth street.

After her second cocktail, the prospect seemed completely unattractive and she wondered how she had been able to let herself in for that impulsive act that would cost her her comfort.

Mirabel said, "The Yancys are coming back from their honeymoon next week, darling, and there are some grand parties planned. Why don't you come back with us? You know you promised that you'd come back after your Christmas trip."

"Can't," she said briefly. "I've got to build a theater."

Later Nicky told her that he'd build her all the theaters she wanted—on his grounds at the place in Maryland.

Not since the days before her mother had told her she must marry Nicky had Fabienne liked him as much as she did that night.

Perhaps when she finished the theater project at the settlement house, it would be a good time to make a decisive move in her life. To marry Nicky and make a home and family life for herself.

She looked at his profile covertly, liking it, as she rode beside him in the tonneau of Mirabel's town car in which he had driven from Maryland. It was cozy and warm in the car. Outside it was cold and wet and lonely. Inside was the little world she preferred.

It was after nine and her luggage was in the truck that preceded them down Fifth avenue and turned into Twelfth street, while she was thinking those things.

The car pulled up in front of Ellen's apartment house. Fabienne said, "We'll have to get someone in the apartment—the superintendent—to help the driver. He can't manage all those trunks by himself."

She rang the bell beside Ellen's name and waited for the buzzer to open the door. A minute later, Bill Mallory opened the door. "I was afraid I'd have to come and get you," he told her.

"Where's Ellen?"

"Don't know. I've been waiting for you since five. Go on up. I'll give the truckman a hand. Rustle' trunks to pay part of tuition at college, you know."

He'd been waiting for her since five! She forgot all about Nicky, standing at her elbow.

Ribbon Meat Loaf?

Freeman F. Gosden, (Amos) serves Charles J. Correll (Andy) a second helping of Ribbon Meat Loaf

"First Prize Meat Loaf Is What It Is," Laughed Andy as Amos Served Him a Second Time

As Reported by Dorothy Greig

In my tadpole days I used to think the famous never ate anything but ice cream and chocolate cake. That just naturally went with the blissful state of being famous.

Perhaps the beloved Amos 'n' Andy of radio fame had similar illusions in their spinach and codliver oil days, too. Maybe they smile occasionally at the recollection as they sit down to a bowl of steaming soup, or a long glassful of chilled tomato juice, a crustily browned hash, or meat stew thick with vegetables.

The other day, for instance, they lunched together at Amos's house and enjoyed meat loaf with green peas—even as you and I do on occasion.

But it was meat loaf with a difference!

It came in layers of ground meat, spicily flavored with tomato, alternating with layers of fluffy mashed potatoes. And how tasty that meat loaf was! No wonder Andy passed back for more. Amos, manlike, had not the remotest idea how that meat loaf served at his table was made. But I found out. Here it is:

Ribbon Meat Loaf

1¼ pounds beef, ground
¼ pound pork, ground
1 tablespoon onion, chopped
1½ cups dry bread crumbs
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 can condensed tomato soup
2 eggs

For Potato Filling

2 cups well-seasoned mashed potatoes
1 egg
1 tablespoon chopped pimiento

Add egg and pimiento to the mashed potatoes and mix well.

Combine the ground beef, ground pork and chopped onions and mix thoroughly. Then add bread crumbs, seasonings, tomato soup and eggs, slightly beaten, and mix again. Put ⅓ of the meat mixture in a greased loaf pan about 9x4x3½ inches. Spread one-half (one cup) of the mashed potato over the meat, then add another third of the meat loaf mixture and spread; then another layer of mashed potato and another layer of the meat at the last. Bake at 375 degrees for one to one and one-fourth hours or until firm. Remove from oven and let stand in a warm place for fifteen to twenty-five minutes before serving. (It slices better after standing.)

And speaking of main dish loaves, here's another wou will like:

1 can condensed chbicken soup
1 can tuna fish (7 oz. size)
1½ cups soft bread crumbs
1 tablespoon pimiento, chopped
1 tablespoon parsley, chopped
2 eggs

Strain the rice, celery and chicken from the chicken soup. Combine them with the tuna fish (over which one cup of hot water has been poured) and put through the food chopper using the small blade. Then mix the tuna fish with the soft bread crumbs, the chicken soup, chopped pimiento, parsley and eggs. Put into a greased loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) forty-five to sixty minutes or until firm. Serves four to five.

Seven Minute Frosting

2 egg whites
1½ cups sugar
5 tablespoons cold water
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
¼ teaspoon salt

Put egg whites, sugar, water and cream of tartar in upper part of double boiler. Cook over rapidly boiling water, beating constantly, with rotary beater, seven minutes, or until frosting will hold its shape. Remove from heat; add vanilla extract and salt. Makes enough frosting for two nine-inch layers or three eight-inch layers.

Cocktail Hints

Try these unusual appetizers at your next cocktail party: Carefully spread equal parts of Roquefort and white cream cheese, mixed to a paste with chili sauce, on crisp potato chips. Mix in some finely chopped dill pickles.

Apple Pie Topping

For a new shaped topping for apple pie, cut the crust with a doughnut cutter. Place the rings next each other on the filling and, when the pie is half-baked, stick marshmallows into the holes in the doughnuts.

Gives Subtle Flavor

To give salad dressing a subtle garlic flavor, soak a fourth-inch piece of garlic in a cupful of dressing for fifteen minutes. Discard the garlic and serve the dressing over fish, fowl or meat salads.

Breakfast Idea

To stimulate breakfast appetites of youngsters serve baked apples stuffed with cooked cereal. Top with chopped raisins or prunes.

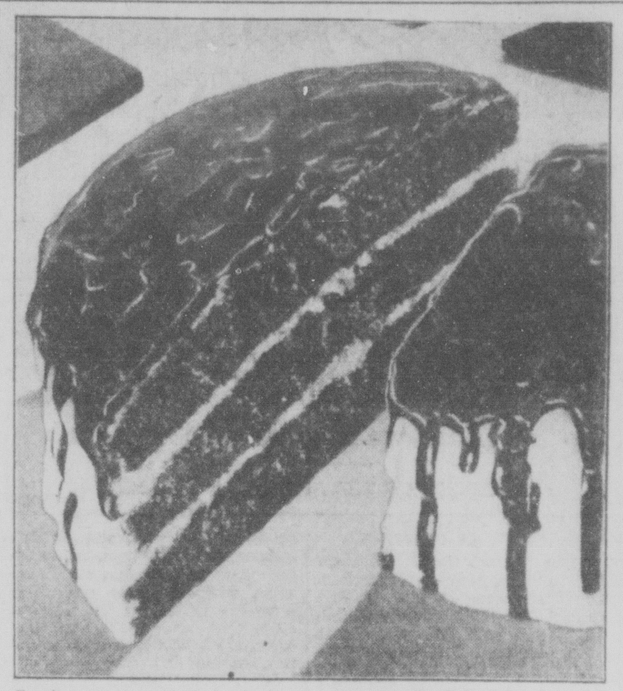
To Roast Nuts

When roasting nuts for holiday use, work with one kind at a time; different nuts require different cooking periods. Also try to work with nuts of uniform size.

SALLY'S SALLIES

Nothing pleases a large woman more than to have a man call her a little dear.

Lights and Shadows--Cake Forecast



Coming events cast their shadows before—and this time it's good eating that's foretold. This "Shadow Cake" will put every other cake you've made into the shade—so make it dark with chocolate and light with its phosphate baking powder.

Three layers of chocolate batter cake with frosty white icing above and between is enough to give any cake a career—but let chocolate icing add its color to the picture and all competition is put in the shade!

Chocolate and vanilla will take care of the color scheme. The phosphates in the baking powder can take care of the cake. This new recipe does the rest:

Shadow Cake

1 cup shortening
2 cups sugar
4 eggs, beaten separately
3 cups sifted flour
4½ teaspoons phosphate baking powder
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
½ cup grated chocolate melted
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Cream shortening. Add sugar gradually, and beat until light and fluffy. Add yolks of eggs, beaten until light. Sift flour, phosphate baking powder and salt together and add alternately with the milk to the creamed mixture, beating well after each addition. Add melted chocolate and vanilla extract. Fold in stiffly beaten whites of eggs. Bake in three eight-inch or two nine-inch greased layer pans in a moderately hot oven (375°F.) Twenty to twenty-five minutes. Spread with white Seven Minute Frosting.

To Make the "Shadow"

Melt two squares of chocolate with one tablespoon butter in top of double-boiler. Pour over white frosting (which has "set" and is firm to touch), allowing to run down sides in an irregular pattern.

Lights and Shadows--Cake Forecast

Coming events cast their shadows before—and this time it's good eating that's foretold. This "Shadow Cake" will put every other cake you've made into the shade—so make it dark with chocolate and light with its phospnate baking powder.

Three layers of chocolate batter cake with frosty white icing above and between is enough to give any cake a career—but let chocolate icing add its color to the picture and all competition is put in the shade!

Chocolate and vanilla will take care of the color scheme. The phosphates in the baking powder can take care of the cake. This new recipe does the rest:

Shadow Cake

1 cup shortening
2 cups sugar
4 eggs, beaten separately
3 cups sifted flour
4½ teaspoons phosphate baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
½ cup grated chocolate melted
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Cream shortening. Add sugar gradually, and beat until light and fluffy. Add yolks of eggs, beaten until light. Sift flour, phosphate baking powder and salt together and add alternately with the milk to the creamed mixture, beating well after each addition. Add melted chocolate and vanilla extract. Fold in stiffly beaten whites of eggs. Bake in three eight-inch or two nine-inch greased layer pans in a moderately hot oven (375°F.) Twenty to twenty-five minutes. Spread with white Seven Minute Frosting.

To Make the "Shadow"

Melt two squares of chocolate with one tablespoon butter in top of double-boiler. Pour over white frosting (which has "set" and is firm to touch), allowing to run down sides in an irregular pattern.

Reactions to the Good News

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Matthew 11 and 12.

By Alfred J. Buescher

Jesus likens the generation to whom He preaches to children sitting in the market place and trying to get their playmates to join in the games and they will not.

He upbraids the cities in which He has preached and performed miracles that they have not repented their evil ways, and tells them they will suffer even worse than heathen cities.

"As I live, saith the Lord God, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked; but that the wicked shall turn from his way and live; turn ye, turn ye, from your evil ways."

"Take My yoke upon you, and learn of Me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest for your souls."

(GOLDEN TEXT—Matt. 11:28-30)

Reactions to the Good News

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Dec. 10 is Matthew 11 and 12, the Golden Text being Matthew 11:28-30, "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take My yoke upon you, and learn of Me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For My yoke is easy, and My burden is light.")

IN OUR previous lesson we have seen how Jesus went about doing good, healing the sick, raising the dead, and preaching the Good Tidings. In last week's lesson He sent His disciples out to spread the Good News. But soon He perceived that although the people were filled with wonder at His miracles, they refused to believe that He was the Christ, and to turn from their evil ways and lead good lives.

Especially was this true of the richer people. Jesus likened those who heard His word and heeded it not to a lot of children playing in the market place and calling to the others to play wedding, but they refused to dance and play; or to play funeral, where, in those days, hired mourners walked behind the coffin, weeping and beating their breasts. But the children refused to play that either. Of those who hated and maligned Him, said Jesus, when John the Baptist came, "neither eating nor drinking, and they say, he hath a devil.

Called Him Gluttonous

"The Son of Man came eating and drinking, and they say, Behold a man gluttonous, and a winebibber, a friend of publicans and sinners." But, said Christ, "Wisdom is justified of her children," meaning, doubtless, that the teachings and lives of John and Himself were justified, no matter what evil speaking people thought. They were bound to find fault anyway.

Even in the city of Capernaum, in which He preached and worked miracles, people would not leave off their evil ways, and He was discouraged with them and with the cities of Chorazin and Betssaida, where He also worked. It were far better for the heathen cities that never heard Him than for those who heard and heeded not, He said.

Then Jesus thanked His Heavenly Father that although the wise and prudent had heard Him and would not attend, the simple people, even those He likened unto babes, believed. And He called upon these who needed consolation, to come to Him and be comforted.

"Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden," He said, "and I will give you rest. Take My yoke upon you, and learn of Me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest for your souls. For My yoke is easy, and My burden is light." How many sorrowing and care-laden souls have heard that invitation and have "put their burdens on the Lord" and been comforted.

Following Jesus

Repentance and the leading of good, Christian lives taking as pattern Jesus' own life, is what is required of us. "As I live, saith the Lord, God, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked; but that the wicked turn from his way and live: turn ye, turn ye, from your evil ways; for why will ve die, O house of Israel?" Ezekiel 33:11.

In Isaiah 55 we find: "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy, and eat; yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price." This wine and milk were not mortal foods, but those that feed the soul of man.

"Seek ye the Lord while He may be found," warns Isaiah. "Call ye upon Him while He is near.

"Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and He will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon."

Reactions to the Good News

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 11 and 12.

Jesus likens the generation to whom He preaches to children sitting in the market place and trying to get their playmates to join in the games and they will not.

He upbraids the cities in which He has preached and performed miracles that they have not repented their evil ways, and tells them they will suffer even worse than heathen cities.

"As I live, saith the Lord God, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked; but that the wicked shall turn from his way and live; turn ye, turn ye, from your evil ways."

"Take My yoke upon you, and learn of Me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest for your souls."

(GOLDEN TEXT—Matt. 11:28-30)

Reactions to the Good News

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Dec. 10 is Matthew 11 and 12, the Golden Text being Matthew 11:28-30, "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take My yoke upon you, and learn of Me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For My yoke is easy, and My burden is light.")

IN OUR previous lesson we have seen how Jesus went about doing good, healing the sick, raising the dead, and preaching the Good Tidings. In last week's lesson He sent His disciples out to spread the Good News. But soon He perceived that although the people were filled with wonder at His miracles, they refused to believe that He was the Christ, and to turn from their evil ways and lead good lives.

Especially was this true of the richer people. Jesus likened those who heard His word and heeded it not to a lot of children playing in the market place and calling to the others to play wedding, but they refused to dance and play; or to play funeral, where, in those days, hired mourners walked behind the coffin, weeping and beating their breasts. But the children refused to play that either. Of those who hated and maligned Him, said Jesus, when John the Baptist came, "neither eating nor drinking, and they say, he hath a devil.

Called Him Gluttonous

"The Son of Man came eating and drinking, and they say, Behold a man gluttonous, and a winebibber, a friend of publicans and sinners." But, said Christ, "Wisdom is justified of her children," meaning, doubtless, that the teachings and lives of John and Himself were justified, no matter what evil speaking people thought. They were bound to find fault anyway.

Even in the city of Capernaum, in which He preached and worked miracles, people would not leave off their evil ways, and He was discouraged with them and with the cities of Chorazin and Betssaida, where He also worked. It were far better for the heathen cities that never heard Him than for those who heard and heeded not, He said.

Then Jesus thanked His Heavenly Father that although the wise and prudent had heard Him and would not attend, the simple people, even those He likened unto babes, believed. And He called upon these who needed consolation, to come to Him and be comforted.

"Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden," He said, "and I will give you rest. Take My yoke upon you, and learn of Me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest for your souls. For My yoke is easy, and My burden is light." How many sorrowing and care-laden souls have heard that invitation and have "put their burdens on the Lord" and been comforted.

Following Jesus

Repentance and the leading of good, Christian lives taking as pattern Jesus' own life, is what is required of us. "As I live, saith the Lord, God, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked; but that the wicked turn from his way and live: turn ye, turn ye, from your evil ways; for why will ye die, O house of Israel?" Ezekiel 33:11.

In Isaiah 55 we find: "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy, and eat; yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price." This wine and milk were not mortal foods, but those that feed the soul of man.

"Seek ye the Lord while He may be found," warns Isaiah. "Call ye upon Him while He is near.

"Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and He will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon."

Trial of Garrett Commisioners To Start on Monday

Officials Are Charged with Malfeasance in Office

Oakland, Dec. 8 — The case against the County Commissioners of Garret county, G. Blaine Giessman, Cheston H. Browning and Paul M. Friend, will come up before the Circuit Court Monday. The Commissioners are charged with malfeasance in office resulting from the purchase of materials contrary to laws passed at the last session of the legislature.

The case is probably the first of its kind to face jurymen in this county, and is being watched by county residents with much interest. Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan will preside and with him will be Associate Judge William A. Huster.

Members of the board were indicted at a special session of the Grand jury November 6, on alleged charges based upon Senate Bill No. 14, "making it unlawful for County Commissioners or any employee of Garrett county to enter into any contract of sale or purchase to which said county is a party involving more than $300 without advertising for bids," and Senate Bill No. 306 "relating to duties of County Commissioners and the County Treasurer as to payment of orders or vouchers."

Pythians Elect Officers

The Rank of Esquire was conferred upon two candidates this evening at the regular meeting of Garrett Lodge No. 113, Knights of Pythias.

At last Friday's meeting two candidates received the rank of Page and two Pages received the rank of Esquire. Officers in the lodge were also elected at the last meeting for the ensuing term ,elevating Paul M. Friend to Chancellor Commander.

Others elected included Beatty Ridder, vice-chancellor; Julius C. Renninger, prelate; Wade H. Mason, master of work; Walter Hardesty, keeper of Records and Seal; Milburn W. Mann, master of exchequer; Alva G. Gortner, master of finance; Virgil Kelley, master at arms; Leonard Hathaway, inside guard; and Clifford Phillips, outside guard. Arthur Lawton was reelected trustee of the lodge.

Welfare Report Made

The financial report of the County Welfare Board for November showed expenditures during the past month amounting to $12,001-.72, slightly less than for the previous month, according to Miss Ethel Miller, executive secretary.

The report showed 368 old age assistance cases received $5,796.80; 299 children received $2,931.88; 9 blind persons received $171; board and care for 23 children, $257.21; administration, $1,761.46; 98 cases on general public assistance, $1,083.37.

G. Blaine Giessman, member of the Board of County Commissioners, said yesterday that the Commissioners had saved about $18,000 in general public assistance this year by turning all relief cases over to the Welfare Board. The Commissioners levied $13,000 for this item and thus far have spent $12,-000, he said. In 1938 the Commissioners spent $31,550 for the same purpose. Mr. Giessman also said the Board of Commissioners had spent $22,000 building 13 miles of WPA roads in the county as its share of the expense.

Miss Miller said Mrs. W. W. Grant gave an interesting report on the conference of Board chairmen and executive secretaries held in Baltimore on November 16, at this week's meeting. Two applications for aid to dependent children and one application for old age assistance were granted.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

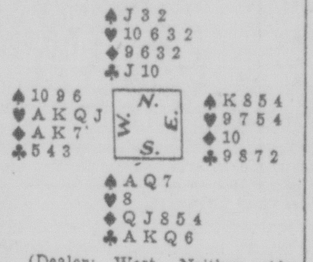
"The Authority on Authorities".

LONG SUITS INDICATED

PLAYERS who fail to make overcalls at their first opportunity and then back into the bidding later, are pretty likely to have long suits in their hands without much honor strength. In other words, their holdings are probably close to worthless defensively, but of good power for play at their own declarations. The partner who fits such a suit, with shortage in his hand somewhere, can therefore well consider a sacrifice, which may prove to be no sacrifice at all, but a successful contract.



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

With East and West using the artificial Vanderbilt club convention, West bid 1-Club here to show a generally strong hand, East denied a couple of quick tricks with 1-Diamond and South passed, to hear what was really West's suit. It came out at 1-Heart, which East raised to 2-Hearts, whereupon South called 3-Diamonds and West 3-Hearts.

North now went to 4-Diamonds, which West doubled. North's bid proved very profitable as, although East and West could have been set a trick at 3-Hearts, the doubled 4-Diamond contract was made, with the loss of just one heart and two trumps.

Monday's Problem

How should South try for 4-Hearts on this deal after the lead of the spade 9?

Commission Drops Suits

Weston, W. Va., Dec. 8 (AP) — Twenty - two condemnation suits against landowners in Dodridge county were dropped by the State Road Commission.

The action apparently meant the state had abandoned at least temporarily a plan to relocate U. S. Route 50 between Smithburg and Salem.

Can Now Get Married

Juneau, Alaska (AP)—Marriage is again possible for the braves and maidens at Yakutat. Judge George F. Alexander appointed George A. Morelander the district's first marriage commissioner, a new position the territorial legislature set up. The former United States commissioner there who performed such ceremonies resigned.

Officials Are Charged with Malfeasance in Office

Oakland, Dec. 8 — The case against the County Commissioners of Garret county, G. Blaine Giessman, Cheston H. Browning and Paul M. Friend, will come up before the Circuit Court Monday. The Commissioners are charged with malfeasance in office resulting from the purchase of materials contrary to laws passed at the last session of the legislature.

The case is probably the first of its kind to face jurymen in this county, and is being watched by county residents with much interest. Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan will preside and with him will be Associate Judge William A. Huster.

Members of the board were indicted at a special session of the Grand jury November 6, on alleged charges based upon Senate Bill No. 14, "making it unlawful for County Commissioners or any employee of Garrett county to enter into any contract of sale or purchase to which said county is a party involving more than $300 without advertising for bids," and Senate Bill No. 306 "relating to duties of County Commissioners and the County Treasurer as to payment of orders or vouchers."

Pythians Elect Officers

The Rank of Esquire was conferred upon two candidates this evening at the regular meeting of Garrett Lodge No. 113, Knights of Pythias.

At last Friday's meeting two candidates received the rank of Page and two Pages received the rank of Esquire. Officers in the lodge were also elected at the last meeting for the ensuing term ,elevating Paul M. Friend to Chancellor Commander.

Others elected included Beatty Ridder, vice-chancellor; Julius C. Renninger, prelate; Wade H. Mason, master of work; Walter Hardesty, keeper of Records and Seal; Milburn W. Mann, master of exchequer; Alva G. Gortner, master of finance; Virgil Kelley, master at arms; Leonard Hathaway, inside guard; and Clifford Phillips, outside guard. Arthur Lawton was reelected trustee of the lodge.

Welfare Report Made

The financial report of the County Welfare Board for November showed expenditures during the past month amounting to $12,001-.72, slightly less than for the previous month, according to Miss Ethel Miller, executive secretary.

The report showed 368 old age assistance cases received $5,796.80; 299 children received $2,931.88; 9 blind persons received $171; board and care for 23 children, $257.21; administration, $1,761.46; 98 cases on general public assistance, $1,083.37.

G. Blaine Giessman, member of the Board of County Commissioners, said yesterday that the Commissioners had saved about $18,000 in general public assistance this year by turning all relief cases over to the Welfare Board. The Commissioners levied $13,000 for this item and thus far have spent $12,-000, he said. In 1938 the Commissioners spent $31,550 for the same purpose. Mr. Giessman also said the Board of Commissioners had spent $22,000 building 13 miles of WPA roads in the county as its share of the expense.

Miss Miller said Mrs. W. W. Grant gave an interesting report on the conference of Board chairmen and executive secretaries held in Baltimore on November 16, at this week's meeting. Two applications for aid to dependent children and one application for old age assistance were granted.

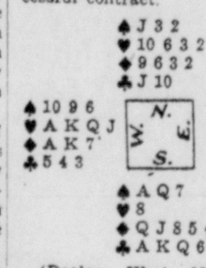
"The Authority on Authorities"

LONG SUITS INDICATED

PLAYERS who fail to make overcalls at their first opportunity and then back into the bidding later, are pretty likely to have long suits in their hands without much honor strength. In other words, their holdings are probably close to worthless defensively, but of good power for play at their own declarations. The partner who fits such a suit, with shortage in his hand somewhere, can therefore well consider a sacrifice, which may prove to be no sacrifice at all, but a successful contract.



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

With East and West using the artificial Vanderbilt club convention, West bid 1-Club here to show a generally strong hand, East denied a couple of quick tricks with 1-Diamond and South passed, to hear what was really West's suit. It came out at 1-Heart, which East raised to 2-Hearts, whereupon South called 3-Diamonds and West 3-Hearts.

North now went to 4-Diamonds, which West doubled. North's bid proved very profitable as, although East and West could have been set a trick at 3-Hearts, the doubled 4-Diamond contract was made, with the loss of just one heart and two trumps.

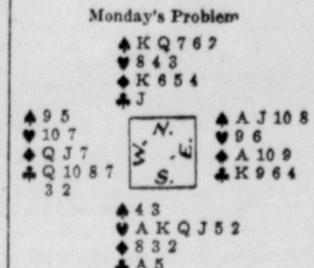
Monday's Problem



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

How should South try for 4-Hearts on this deal after the lead of the spade 9?

Commission Drops Suits

Weston, W. Va., Dec. 8 (AP) — Twenty - two condemnation suits against landowners in Dodridge county were dropped by the State Road Commission.

The action apparently meant the state had abandoned at least temporarily a plan to relocate U. S. Route 50 between Smithburg and Salem.

Oxygen Does Wonders For Aviator Hubbies

Hollywood, Fla. — An aviator's wife is likely to tell you that the breath of happiness is oxygen.

Colonel A. D. Tuttle, former army surgeon, and now United Air Lines medical director, told why at the recent convention of the Aero Medical Association.

Oxygen equipment was installed on the company's planes about two years ago, he said, and pilots were required to use it at altitudes of 100,000 feet or higher.

"I got this report from their wives," Colonel Tuttle stated. "Where pilots used to reach home feeling irritable and make a head dive for the bed and a long sleep, they now arrive feeling free and happy. Instead of a snore, the wives now hear this: 'Get on your glad rags, darling, we're stepping out tonight."

Oxygen Does Wonders For Aviator Hubbies

Hollywood, Fla. — An aviator's wife is likely to tell you that the breath of happiness is oxygen.

Colonel A. D. Tuttle, former army surgeon, and now United Air Lines medical director, told why at the recent convention of the Aero Medical Association.

Oxygen equipment was installed on the company's planes about two years ago, he said, and pilots were required to use it at altitudes of 100,000 feet or higher.

"I got this report from their wives," Colonel Tuttle stated. "Where pilots used to reach home feeling irritable and make a head dive for the bed and a long sleep, they now arrive feeling free and happy. Instead of a snore, the wives now hear this: 'Get on your glad rags, darling, we're stepping out tonight."

He passed another. He gained a total of 202 yards rushing that day. In the crucial game with Ohio State in which Michigan came from behind to whip the Big Ten champions, Harmon scored one touchdown, passed for another, set up the third and booted all three extra points.

McFadden who paced Clemson's strong team through a season spoiled only by a 7-6 beating from Tulane, was the greatest all-around back in the Southern Conference. This long, lean South Carolinian was a standout from start to finish, a fine runner, passer and defensive ace, as well as one of the finest kickers in the business.

An artist at the quick kick, McFadden rolled the opposition back on its heels all season and by the same token set up Clemson touchdowns at the same time. He was the whole show in the bruising game with Tulane, passing for the Clemson touchdowns and kicking magnificently. He averaged 42 yards per punt in this game, getting off two 63-yard quick kicks.

Rival coaches agreed Kimbrough, sparkplug of Texas A and M.'s great team, had no weakness as a fullback. Exceptionally fast for so big a man, he was used not only as a line plunger and blocker but also on sweeps. Big and rugged, this 210 - pounder from Haskell, Texas, also had more than his share of football brains and was a tower of strength in the Aggies' tough defense.

Schiechl A Standout

Good centers were scarce this season but Schiechl, 220-pound San Franciscan, would have been a standout in any company. A fullback in his high school days, Schiechl was converted to center during his freshman year at Santa Clara. Used in every game during his three-year varsity career, he never made a bad pass and was outstanding on defense. He diagnosed plays quickly and opposing teams never threw passes into his zone. Coach Buck Shaw attributes Schiechl's defensive ability and strong downfield blocking to his play at fullback in high school.

Not far behind Schiechl was Robert Nelson of Baylor, 215-pounder from Bryan, Texas. Overshadowed by the great Ki Aldrich of Texas Christian last year, Nelson, a rowdy, roving type of player, was the Southwest's top center beyond argument this year.

Competition was fierce over the end posts and it was only by the closest of margins that Severin and Kerr got the call over such rivals as Ken Kavanaugh of Louisiana State, Esco Sarkkinen of Ohio State, Harlan Gustafson of Penn, and Frank Ivy of Oklahoma.

Severin combined pass-catching skill with exceptional defensive ability and was one of the principal reasons for North Carolina's outstanding success. Against Tulane he caught both of the fourth-period touchdown passes that enabled the Tar Heels to gain a 14-14 draw. He was a key figure in North Carolina's victory over Penn and played bang-up, alert defensive football all season.

Kerr, 194-pounder from Newburgh, carries on the tradition of fine Notre Dame ends. He was a defensive star of the first magnitude and an alert ball hawk who gave the Irish their victory over Carnegie Tech by grabbing a mid-air fumble and running 21 yards for a touchdown.

Kavanaugh, with few if any equals as a pass-catcher, seemed to lack the all-around qualifications of Kerr and Severin, but moves into a second-team berth along with Sarkinnen, a great end for Ohio State all season. Ivy and Gustafson take over the third team positions.

The first-team tackle posts go to Drahos and McCollum after a close race with Harry Stella of Army, Lee Artoe of California, Win Pedersen of Minnesota and Joe Boyd of Texas A. and M.

McCollum, six-feet, five-inches tall and weighing 235 pounds, was a block of granite in Tulane's great forward wall. Some critics called him the greatest tackle in southern history and all of them praised his play on defense and offense.

On a squad that stressed team play so strongly as Cornell it was difficult to single out an outstanding performer, game after game, but there was no questioning Drahos' right to ranking. This 210-pound junior from Cedarhurst, Long Island, was a great worker on the offense and yielded little or nothing on defense. He was the greatest lineman on the field when Cornell upset Ohio State and he starred against Princeton and Columbia.

Stella was the one bright spot in Army's disappointing season and Artoe, Boyd and Pedersen all were standouts in their own sections.

Guards Are Tough

Two of the country's great arrays, possible Rose Bowl rivals, contribute the guards to the All-America team. Smith was the sparkplug of the Southern California line just as Molinski was of Tennessee's.

Smith, big moon-faced senior from Ontario, Calif., started a bit slowly this season but came along sensationally when the chips were down. Against Notre Dame, he was in the thick of every play and rival coaches call him a standout from every angle.

Molinski, a star in his own right as a sophomore last year, took the play away from his more widely known teammate, Bob Suffridge, this year when injuries handicaped Suffridge. Steady rather than flashy, he is perfection itself in carrying out assignments and is at his best in the tough spots.

Duquesne Turns Down Cotton Bowl Bid with Boston

Pittsburgh, Dec. 8. (AP)—Unbeaten Duquesne today turned its back on a post-season football game in rejecting an invitation to meet Boston College in the Cotton Bowl classic at Dallas on New Year's Day.

At the same time, Athletic Director Aldo Donelli disclosed arrangements had been completed for the first of three games with St. Marys (of California). It will be played Nov. 9 or 10, 1940, in San Francisco, he said, thus eliminating the possibility of playing West Virginia University on that date.

West Virginia had sought Duquesne as an opponent next year after being dropped from Pitt's schedule.

Donelli said he had outlined his terms to Cotton Bowl representatives yesterday and had been promised an answer today.

"The call was not forthcoming," he said, "which indicated my terms were not satisfactory. Our season, therefore, is at an end. There'll be no post-season game for the Dukes."

Auburn Ready To Sidetrack Vols Rose Bowl Train

Squad Invades Knoxville Determined to "Let Everything Go"

Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 8 (AP) — Auburn's Tigers, cocky and "keyed" to the squad's last man, invaded Knoxville today, determined to "let everything go" in an effort to blast the hopes of Tennessee's Volunteers, the football team most folk believe will represent the East in the Rose Bowl.

Reports from every corner have Tennessee definitely in the Pasadena game on New Year's Day, provided the Volunteers can stretch their victory string to twenty-three triumphs by overcoming Auburn, a team that has proved plenty troublesome to the Knoxville school.

Tennessee, undefeated, untied and unscored on, is the last of the ranking teams remaining as eligible for the Rose Bowl. The word here is that the invitation will be received and accepted soon after the deciding game on the Pacific Coast between UCLA and Southern California.

What turn events would take should the Tigers from Alabama unleash enough power to sidetrack the Tennessee "Bowl Special" is uncertain. Some are inclined to the belief Tennessee would be invited anyway, provided the score is not one-sided.

Some 20,000 fans were expected to sit in on the season's final skirmish in Southeastern Conference ranks.

Kickoff time is 2:30 p. m. (EST).

Crowd of 103,000 To Witness West Coast Game Today

Los Angeles, Dec. 8 (AP)—University of Southern California and the University of California at Los Angeles play tomorrow for the biggest prize of all—the Rose Bowl.

A record crowd of around 103,000 was in prospect for this climatic struggle.

The powerful Trojans of U. S. C., needing but a tie to lay claim to the Rose Bowl assignment, generally were picked to win.

On past records, the Trojans boast a stronger defense and a crushing offense, backed by superior reserve power. U. S. L. A., due in the main to Halfback Kenney Washington, has come from behind to win or tie the last six of its nine games this season.

Southern Cal. has but a tie with Oregon in the first game this fall against its record.

The kickoff is at 2 p.m., P. S. T.

DO YOU WANT ALL-WINTER RADIATOR PROTECTION for only $1.50?

HERE'S THE WAY many car owners do it every year! They put in a couple of quarts of Du Pont "Zerone" early in the season for protection against rusting and sudden cold snaps.

When winter gets down to real business, they add enough "Zerone" for lower temperatures. A total of six quarts, put in as needed, can protect a car with an average size cooling system (15 quarts) for the entire winter. And six quarts of "Zerone" cost only $1.50!

You may need a little more or less, depending on the condition and capacity of your car radiator and the severity of winter in your neighborhood. But the efficiency of "Zerone" will save you real money.

"Zerone" prevents rust and corrosion, gives better dissipation of engine heat, avoids power losses. Protect your car with "Zerone" this very day! And remember, it's only $1.00 a gallon, 25¢ a quart.

Against Penn, the Michigan star scored two touchdowns, one on an amazing 63-yard broken field gallop. He passed another. He gained a total of 202 yards rushing that day. In the crucial game with Ohio State in which Michigan came from behind to whip the Big Ten champions, Harmon scored one touchdown, passed for another, set up the third and booted all three extra points.

McFadden who paced Clemson's strong team through a season spoiled only by a 7-6 beating from Tulane, was the greatest all-around back in the Southern Conference. This long, lean South Carolinian was a standout from start to finish, a fine runner, passer and defensive ace, as well as one of the finest kickers in the business.

An artist at the quick kick, McFadden rolled the opposition back on its heels all season and by the same token set up Clemson touchdowns at the same time. He was the whole show in the bruising game with Tulane, passing for the Clemson touchdowns and kicking magnificently. He averaged 42 yards per punt in this game, getting off two 63-yard quick kicks.

Rival coaches agreed Kimbrough, sparkplug of Texas A and M.'s great team, had no weakness as a fullback. Exceptionally fast for so big a man, he was used not only as a line plunger and blocker but also on sweeps. Big and rugged, this 210 - pounder from Haskell, Texas, also had more than his share of football brains and was a tower of strength in the Aggies' tough defense.

Schiechl A Standout

Good centers were scarce this season but Schiechl, 220-pound San Franciscan, would have been a standout in any company. A fullback in his high school days, Schiechl was converted to center during his freshman year at Santa Clara. Used in every game during his three-year varsity career, he never made a bad pass and was outstanding on defense. He diagnosed plays quickly and opposing teams never threw passes into his zone. Coach Buck Shaw attributes Schiechl's defensive ability and strong downfield blocking to his play at fullback in high school.

Not far behind Schiechl was Robert Nelson of Baylor, 215-pounder from Bryan, Texas. Overshadowed by the great Ki Aldrich of Texas Christian last year, Nelson, a rowdy, roving type of player, was the Southwest's top center beyond argument this year.

Competition was fierce over the end posts and it was only by the closest of margins that Severin and Kerr got the call over such rivals as Ken Kavanaugh of Louisiana State, Esco Sarkkinen of Ohio State, Harlan Gustafson of Penn, and Frank Ivy of Oklahoma.

Severin combined pass-catching skill with exceptional defensive ability and was one of the principal reasons for North Carolina's outstanding success. Against Tulane he caught both of the fourth-period touchdown passes that enabled the Tar Heels to gain a 14-14 draw. He was a key figure in North Carolina's victory over Penn and played bang-up, alert defensive football all season.

Kerr, 194-pounder from Newburgh, carries on the tradition of fine Notre Dame ends. He was a defensive star of the first magnitude and an alert ball hawk who gave the Irish their victory over Carnegie Tech by grabbing a mid-air fumble and running 21 yards for a touchdown.

Kavanaugh, with few if any equals as a pass-catcher, seemed to lack the all-around qualifications of Kerr and Severin, but moves into a second-team berth along with Sarkinnen, a great end for Ohio State all season. Ivy and Gustafson take over the third team positions.

The first-team tackle posts go to Drahos and McCollum after a close race with Harry Stella of Army, Lee Artoe of California, Win Pedersen of Minnesota and Joe Boyd of Texas A. and M.

McCollum, six-feet, five-inches tall and weighing 235 pounds, was a block of granite in Tulane's great forward wall. Some critics called him the greatest tackle in southern history and all of them praised his play on defense and offense.

On a squad that stressed team play so strongly as Cornell it was difficult to single out an outstanding performer, game after game, but there was no questioning Drahos' right to ranking. This 210-pound junior from Cedarhurst, Long Island, was a great worker on the offense and yielded little or nothing on defense. He was the greatest lineman on the field when Cornell upset Ohio State and he starred against Princeton and Columbia.

Stella was the one bright spot in Army's disappointing season and Artoe, Boyd and Pedersen all were standouts in their own sections.

Guards Are Tough

Two of the country's great arrays, possible Rose Bowl rivals, contribute the guards to the All-America team. Smith was the sparkplug of the Southern California line just as Molinski was of Tennessee's.

Smith, big moon-faced senior from Ontario, Calif., started a bit slowly this season but came along sensationally when the chips were down. Against Notre Dame, he was in the thick of every play and rival coaches call him a standout from every angle.

Molinski, a star in his own right as a sophomore last year, took the play away from his more widely known teammate, Bob Suffridge, this year when injuries handicaped Suffridge. Steady rather than flashy, he is perfection itself in carrying out assignments and is at his best in the tough spots.

Duquesne Turns Down Cotton Bowl Bid with Boston

Pittsburgh, Dec. 8. (AP)—Unbeaten Duquesne today turned its back on a post-season football game in rejecting an invitation to meet Boston College in the Cotton Bowl classic at Dallas on New Year's Day.

At the same time, Athletic Director Aldo Donelli disclosed arrangements had been completed for the first of three games with St. Marys (of California). It will be played Nov. 9 or 10, 1940, in San Francisco, he said, thus eliminating the possibility of playing West Virginia University on that date.

West Virginia had sought Duquesne as an opponent next year after being dropped from Pitt's schedule.

Donelli said he had outlined his terms to Cotton Bowl representatives yesterday and had been promised an answer today.

"The call was not forthcoming," he said, "which indicated my terms were not satisfactory. Our season, therefore, is at an end. There'll be no post-season game for the Dukes."

Auburn Ready To Sidetrack Vols Rose Bowl Train

Squad Invades Knoxville Determined to "Let Everything Go"

Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 8 (AP) — Auburn's Tigers, cocky and "keyed" to the squad's last man, invaded Knoxville today, determined to "let everything go" in an effort to blast the hopes of Tennessee's Volunteers, the football team most folk believe will represent the East in the Rose Bowl.

Reports from every corner have Tennessee definitely in the Pasadena game on New Year's Day, provided the Volunteers can stretch their victory string to twenty-three triumphs by overcoming Auburn, a team that has proved plenty troublesome to the Knoxville school.

Tennessee, undefeated, untied and unscored on, is the last of the ranking teams remaining as eligible for the Rose Bowl. The word here is that the invitation will be received and accepted soon after the deciding game on the Pacific Coast between UCLA and Southern California.

What turn events would take should the Tigers from Alabama unleash enough power to sidetrack the Tennessee "Bowl Special" is uncertain. Some are inclined to the belief Tennessee would be invited anyway, provided the score is not one-sided.

Some 20,000 fans were expected to sit in on the season's final skirmish in Southeastern Conference ranks.

Kickoff time is 2:30 p. m. (EST).

Crowd of 103,000 To Witness West Coast Game Today

Los Angeles, Dec. 8 (AP)—University of Southern California and the University of California at Los Angeles play tomorrow for the biggest prize of all—the Rose Bowl.

A record crowd of around 103,000 was in prospect for this climatic struggle.

The powerful Trojans of U. S. C., needing but a tie to lay claim to the Rose Bowl assignment, generally were picked to win.

On past records, the Trojans boast a stronger defense and a crushing offense, backed by superior reserve power. U. S. L. A., due in the main to Halfback Kenney Washington, has come from behind to win or tie the last six of its nine games this season.

Southern Cal. has but a tie with Oregon in the first game this fall against its record.

The kickoff is at 2 p.m., P. S. T.

DO YOU WANT ALL-WINTER RADIATOR PROTECTION for only $1.50?

HERE'S THE WAY many car owners do it every year! They put in a couple of quarts of Du Pont "Zerone" early in the season for protection against rusting and sudden cold snaps.

When winter gets down to real business, they add enough "Zerone" for lower temperatures. A total of six quarts, put in as needed, can protect a car with an average size cooling system (15 quarts) for the entire winter. And six quarts of "Zerone" cost only $1.50!

You may need a little more or less, depending on the condition and capacity of your car radiator and the severity of winter in your neighborhood. But the efficiency of "Zerone" will save you real money.

"Zerone" prevents rust and corrosion, gives better dissipation of engine heat, avoids power losses. Protect your car with "Zerone" this very day! And remember, it's only $1.00 a gallon, 25¢ a quart.

Pirates-Collegians To War Here Sunday

Saints Peter and Paul Court Scene Of No-Foul Clash

Personal Penalty Banishment Rule Waived for Contest

Play Starts at Three with Preliminary at Two O'Clock

Three o'clock Sunday afternoon will be the zero hour for the Pirate-Collegian basketball battle royal when the two quints renew hostilities for the fourth time at SS Peter and Paul gym here.

In the first skirmish, back in 1938, Charles "Snapper" Morris, George Rice and Ike Cessna, now members of the Collegians were in the thick of the battle playing for the Tri-Staters, operated by Johnny Harris, the nip and tuck fray went to the Tri-Staters 45-43. Last year Harris organized the Collegians quintet with the same three lads as members. The Pirate bombers raided the locals twice last season on the SS Peter and Paul floor, by scores of 47-40 and 52-40.

Foul Rule Waived

Birch's Pirates accepted a contract to play here only after a clause was added stating "the foul rule would be waived." Fouls will be called by referee John "Bobby" Cavanaugh but no one will leave the contest via the personal foul route. Boxing gloves and football equipment might be more appropriate than the usual basketball regalia. John Shelton and Hank Lindsay, two husky lads hitting the beam at better than 200 pounds, have been added to the Collegians roster. George Rice, a holdover from last season will also hit better than 200. George Greco and Norman Gerdeman are not as heavy as Shelton, Rice and Lindsay, but can hold their own when the going is rough. From past experience it is evident that Mel Henry, Herman Koegle, Ike Cessna and Snap Morris, are also capable of underhanded work if there is any foul-doings going the rounds.

The Pirates roster is studded with outstanding ball hawks as well as some hefty courtmen. Paul Birch, playing captain, 1935 All-American guard at Duquesne, can play the rough and tumble style of ball. Burch is rated one of the best players developed in the east in the past ten years.

Herb Bonn, guard, was named All-American at Duquesne in 1936, and is one of the best set shots to come out of the Pittsburgh district. Walt Miller, six feet three, was named for all-American honors, at Duquesne with Bonn. Ed Kweller, the giant center of the team, six feet, eight inches, is also a Duquesne product. Joe Urso and Bill Jesko round out the visiting squad. Jesko was a former Pitt captain and the diminutive Urso makes up in speed what he lacks in size.

Both Undefeated

Both quints are undefeated this season and some one is certain to fall. Coach Slocum will not name his starting team until game time and it seems certain Art has a few tricks up his sleeve to show the Smoky city slickers.

The Tri-Staters bagged their 1938 victory by running the Pirates to death, the first three-quarters. Slocums crew is both fast and rangy and will be out to shoot the works.

Preliminary 2 P. M.

In a preliminary game at 2 o'clock the Kaplon Clothiers will face the Klenas Athletic Club of Windber, Pa.

Willie Obert Boots Ouragan in First at Charles Town

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 8 (AP)—Veteran Willie Obert proved today he can boot 'em home despite his fifty-odd years when he brought Mrs. J. Piciuli's Ouragan in first in the six and a half furlong feature.

Obert, the nation's oldest active jockey, waged a battle all the way with Leon Garrett, astride E. H. Titmus, Jr.'s Pandoramint. The latter surged into the lead at the last turn but Obert never stopped trying. In the closing strides Pandoramint faded and dropped to the show position, while Ouragan nosed out Strumming for the victory.

Ouragan paid his backers $6.60, $4.00 and $3.20 for $2. Strumming paid $8.80 and $5.80 and Pandoramint, $6.00.

Mrs. C. L. Payne's Royal Veil and T. B. Palmore's Auto Mart took the second and third races, respectively, to provide a daily double paying of $29.20.

Stewards predicted tonight an attendance of 10,000 tomorrow for the $1,000 Beverly Broun Handicap, a mile and a sixteenth test named in honor of the chairman of the State Racing Commission. Royal Business, owned by O. S. Jennings of Baltimore, heads the field of twenty-seven eligibles.

The five-day suspension of Jockey J. Hernandez, accused of rough riding astride Supreme Kin in the opening race, was announced by the stewards.

Trojan Victory Over UCLA Would Solve Many Problems

By JOHN LARDNER
(Released By North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc)

New York, Dec. 8 — More than one problem will be solved if Southern California beats U. C. L. A. in this weekend's principal football match.

For one thing, your correspondent, who had the temerity to bet some weeks ago that Southern California would go through the regular season undefeated, will win a wager — a few groats, a farthing or two, a paltry doubloon. For some reason, this is not considered a major issue around Los Angeles.

In the second place, Southern Cal has a slightly better record than the Uclans up to date, and will please the Rose Bowl promoters by winning. For some reason, this is not a major issue with your correspondent.

Race Question May Be Involved

Thirdly, a U. C. L. A victory will raise the embarrassing question of race, which has dogged several important football games in the last few years. U. C. L. A. will deserve the Rose Bowl portfolio if she wins, and, if she gets the bid, she will certainly want to take Washington and Robinson, her colored backs, to the Bowl. Kenny Washington, after all, is a genuine All-America, personally responsible for much of the Uclans' success this year.

On the other hand, Tennessee is a southern team with the traditional attitude toward this problem. Southern Methodist drew no line against Kenny Washington in a game with U. C. L. A., but Tennessee is a different kettle of mackerel.

I do not wish to embarass Major Bob Neyland, the Tennessee coach, by quoting him off the record, and I know the major has no personal feeling on the score, but rumors have sifted out of Knoxville that some of the Tennessee players will raise a considerable rumpus before they agree to face U. C. L. A.'s full complement of negro backs—should both Tennessee and the Uclans reach the Rose Bowl.

A colored man played in the Rose Bowl game of 1929, over Georgia Tech's protest. I trust that U. C. L. A. will stand equally firm. In fact, I have no doubt she will, for reasons of principle as well as practical reasons. We are meeting the problem a little prematurely, since Tennessee has taken no official stand on the matter and U. C. L. A. is by no means sure to reach the Bowl. But, since the problem exists, we might as well meet it now as any time.

Washington is a great back, regardless of his pigmentation. Any attempt to boycott him, or to give him the business physically, would achieve a new low in college football procedure. Come to think of it, we will not even suspect Tennessee of any such intention until she gives us better reason to do so.

Aggies Scorn the Cotton Bowl

The Texas Aggies, incidentally, have made it plain that, while they were highly receptive to invitations, engraved or otherwise, from the Rose or Sugar Bowl, they wanted no part of Texas's own local scoop of ground, the Cotton Bowl. This New Year's Day venture, promoted for some reasons by a rapid oil millionaire by the name of J. Curtis Sanford, who was rolling around the neighborhood of Dallas in a Deusenberg, or was it a Mercedes, the last time I saw him, seems to have run aground on the shoals of Texas football pride.

The Texas Christian team, and its stepfather, Amon Carter, ignored the Cotton Bowl last year to share the higher prestige of the Sugar Bowl and a game with an eastern school. The Texas Aggies are following this example. They wanted the Rose Bowl badly, but they'll take Sugar and Tulane in an effort to stack Texas football against the kind of football they play in the strong southeastern league.

Texans are right in feeling that their football teams are as good as any. Whether the point is as important as some Texans seem to think, I don't know. But Texas teams have made a mistake in courting the Rose Bowl, which is prejudiced in favor of eastern teams with faint Ivy halos or southeastern and eastern teams which will draw at the box office. Southern Methodist was invited once, but the Rose Bowlers made it clear thereafter that once was enough, and my notion is, when you know a guy is going to insult you, why go out of your way to be insulted? Why ask for it?

If Texas teams have a prejudice against Neighbor Sanford and his Cotton Bowl, the best thing to do is build somewhere else or develop a traditional rivalry in the Sugar Bowl, where the best in the east and southeast—not Ivy-clad, but good—can be met.

The only other suggestion I have to offer, free of charge, is: Don't win too often. Your host won't care for that.

Oakland High Drops To Masontown 28-22

Oakland, Dec. 8 — By six-point margins, Oakland High School's regular and reserve boys' basketball clubs lost to Masontown High outfits on the winners' court Wednesday night.

The Oakland varsity lost 28-22 for its third defeat in five starts while the Oakland reserve combination bowed to the Masontown reserves 34-28.

Landis Emerges From Meeting as Boss of Baseball

Commissioner Casts Deciding Vote against Curbing His Powers

Efforts To Relax Restrictions on Farm Systems Fail

By JUDSON BAILEY

Cincinnati, Dec. 8 (AP)—Weeks of maneuvering by baseball's mighty mites, to bring about legislation that would relax restrictions on the big farm systems, collapsed today in forty minutes.

A shaggy, white-haired old man, simply said, "no."

He was Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, czar of baseball, who gathered the sixteen club owners of the National and American Leagues before him in a joint meeting and read off the amendments proposed by the Minor Leagues to pry him off his lofty perch.

There was one that would keep an entire farm system from being bound by a player-transfer rule that refers to only one club; there was one that would permit scouts to sign players for affiliated clubs. There was another that would prohibit the rules from being interpreted.

After each the National League voted "yes" and the American League voted "no." Then Landis would solemnly declare, "the commissioner votes 'no.'"

MacPhail Is Angry

Before the staccato session was more than well started, President Larry MacPhail of the Brooklyn Dodgers and a prime backer of the movement to curb the commissioner, stalked from the room in a rage. There was a report, too, that President Ed Barrow of the New York Yankees was angered at his own league's stand.

President William G. Bramham of the Minor Leagues announced that the efforts of the National Association to gain greater freedom for the chain system would continue unabated.

But the fact remained that the stormy 1939 winter meetings ended with Commissioner Landis unshaken in his hold and views on the conduct of baseball.

As the convention broke up, there was a great flurry of trading in secondary playing talent as the managers finally decided to put through deals they had been hoping to better.

The series of swaps started shortly after midnight with the Chicago White Sox sending Outfielder Gee Walker to Washington for Outfielder Taft Wright and Pitcher Pete Appleton. During the day, the Sox also sold Infielder Marv Owen to the Boston Red Sox and traded Outfielder Rip Radcliff to the St. Louis Browns for Outfielder Julius Solters.

In the National League the Boston Bees swapped Pitcher Danny MacFayden for Pitcher Bill Swift of Pittsburgh and cash while the Brooklyn Dodgers exchanged Catcher Al Todd for Catcher Gus Mancuso of the Chicago Cubs and a rookie pitcher, Newel Kimball of Milwaukee in the American Association.

One New Rule Passed

The meetings went into the records as more notable for their legislative feats than for the trading.

Today's joint session of the Big Leagues voted in one new rule, which would make a unanimous vote of the club owners in both loops necessary to shift a team from its present location to a site now held by a club in the other league.

Again in this instance the two leagues disagreed, the National voting against it and Landis casting the deciding vote in favor of the American League.

Most of the business the Minor Leagues spent three days adopting was nullified by action of the joint meeting. President Bramham stated, "I hope all our club owners will allay any concerns they may have until we have had time to give full and clear consideration to the situation which now confronts us. . . . There is more to be accomplished through conferences than through battles."

Clemson College To Play Boston In Cotton Bowl

Dallas, Dec. 84 (AP)—Clemson College, co-champion with Duke in the southern football conference, was invited today to meet Boston College in the Cotton Bowl New Year's day.

J. Curtis Sanford, promoter of the game, quoted Coach Jess Neely of Cleason as saying "we're delighted and will accept if we are granted permission of the conference at its meeting in Roanoke tomorrow."

Duke last year was granted permission to play in the Rose Bowl.

Here's The Reason Why Quaker State Grid Coaches Cry

Many Pennsylvania Boys Star on Teams All Over Nation

By GEORGE A. SCOTT

Philadelphia, Dec. 8. (AP)—"Why Pennsylvania's college coaches week."

Here is just one of many all-star teams that might be selected from the ranks of Pennsylvania boys who played football at out of state colleges this year.

Ends: Kirk Hershey of Cornell, a resident of Philadelphia, and Paul Severin of North Carolina, whose home is in Natrona.

Tackles: Tony Ruffa of Duke, a Washington, Pa., product, and John Eibner, Kentucky's captain-elect from Jeannette.

Center: Steve Andrako, Ohio State's captain, from North Braddock.

Backs: Joe McFadden, quarterback of Georgetown's undefeated eleven, from Allentown; Len Eshmont, Fordham's star back from Mt. Carmel township; Frank Knup, Manhattan's captain-elect from Aliquippa; and Harry Dunkle, North Carolina's fullback from Lock Haven.

And if you don't agree with those elections—here are some more who made good on out-of-state gridirons this year:

Frank Stulgaitis of Wilkes-Barre, captain and end on Columbia's team; Hugh Barber of Erie, captain-elect and end for Columbia; Steve Mudacek of Plymouth, Columbia tackle; Fred West of Lansdowne, Cornell tackle; John Dearmy, Windber, Maryland tackle; Captain-elect Jim Garvey of Lebanon, Colgate tackle; and Bill Nealon, Scranton, Georgetown tackle. Jack Murray of Plymouth, Wisconsin center; Allen Matuza of Shenandoah, Georgetown center.

Manhattan had an all-Pennsylvania backfield. Teamed with Knup were Eddie Gay of Kingston and Bill Proach and Joe Midgal, both of the Wyoming Valley section. Other backs included Frank Skotnicki of West Hazelton at Maryland and John Carlis, West Virginia's fullback from Windber.

Marietta Wins

Marietta, O., Dec. 8 (AP)—Sophomores Al Stanforth, forward, and Bill McPeek, guard, with 20 and 40 points respectively, paced Marietta's Pioneers to a 63-31 basketball victory tonight over Fairmont State Teachers. Marietta led 30-15 at the half.

Pan-American To Postpone Games At Least a Year

Finland Holds Up Action By Delaying Olympic Postponement

Hollywood, Fla., Dec. 8 (AP) — A fast-growing belief developed among delegates to the 51st annual convention of the Amateur Athletic Union tonight that 1940 would be at least a year too soon to put on Pan-American games as a substitute for the Olympics.

Latest word from Count Henri De Baillet-Latour, president of the International Olympic Committee, is that Finland has not yet taken definite action to relinquish the 1940 games. So the A.A.U. feels it cannot rightfully draft a replacement program without insulting Finnish athletic officials.

Meanwhile Judge Jeremiah T. Mahoney of New York, chairman of a special Pan-American games committee, was drafting a report to be presented to the executive and foreign relations group of the A.A.U.

The legislation committee recommended for approval by the general convention committee an amendment to return the national indoor track and field championships from meters to yards. Sponsors of the motion regarded it as the opening wedge in their five-year fight to eliminate the metric system from all U. S. competition.

In legislation to reinforce the amateur code, the legislation committee approved amendments to restrain members of a disbanded team from transferring to other territories, and to bar from sanctions "any organization whose interest in sports or games is purely commercial."

Pennants Harder To Win Each Year, Connie Mack Says

Veteran Philadelphia Manager Most Popular Man at Banquet

By JOHN FRYE

Cincinnati, Dec. 8 (AP)—With sixty years of baseball behind him, the tall, white-haired elder statesman of the game, Connie Mack, came out of the joint Major League meeting today with a slowly-spoken opinion that pennants were getting harder to win.

Mack, seventy-six-year-old manager of the Philadelphia Athletics who left a shoemaker's last at sixteen for a $15-a-week baseball job, said:

"The first ten or twelve years of the American league it was easy to get together a pennant-winning team. The last twenty or so, though, it's been getting harder and harder. I don't know when we'll have another pennant in Philadelphia, but it'll be a few years yet. It'll take time."

Connie's great team of 1910-1914, which revolved around the $100,000 infield of McInnis, Collins, Barry, and Baker and the three immortal pitchers, Chief Bender, Plank and Coombs, was created easily, as things go. Somebody would hear of a good player somewhere and telegraph Philadelphia.

Now it takes a farm system, which the Athletics slowly are acquiring.

But whether Connie Mack wins pennants, as he has done, or finishes last, as he also has done, he is the great man where baseball people gather.

At the Major-Minor League meetings here, he couldn't walk a step without being buttonholed, often by somebody who just wanted to shake his hand.

At the Minor League banquet, there were handsome bursts of applause when everybody of note was introduced, but when toastmaster George Trautman called on Connie Mack to stand up, they cheered until he sat down to stop it.

Harry Thomas To Tell Of "Fixed" Fights If He Is Assured Immunity

New York, Dec. 8 (AP) — Heavyweight Harry Thomas, who made a statement in a Chicago newspaper that his fight here with Max Schmeling two years ago was "fixed," told the State Athletic Commission today he would testify in its investigation if granted immunity from prosecution.

He made this statement through his attorney, John Dailey, Jr., after Arch Ward, sports editor of the Chicago Tribune, which published Thomas' statement, testified that when the former Eagle Bend (Minn.) fighter had told him the story of a "fix," he had discovered "another person" who "corroborated" the story.

Until now, in two previous appearances before the commission, Thomas refused to testify on the grounds he might be "incriminated."

Frostburg J-V's Defeat Fort Hill In Opener 22 to 20

Sentinels' Opening Game and Home Court Record Is Smashed

Gloom descended on Fort Hill high school in large gobs last evening as Coach "Bobby" Cavanaugh's diminutive Sentinel squad saw the opening game victory record of eleven years standing, and the home court winning string established in 1936-37, upset by the Frostburg State College J-V's upset, 22-20.

Fort Hill had not lost an opening season tilt since Cavanaugh took over at the old Penn Avenue institution in 1928, and the Sentinels also boasted a record of not having been defeated on their home court since Martinsburg last turned the trick in a Cumberland Valley Athletic League playoff in the 36-37 season. Allegany also had defeated them earlier in the same season, but it was a parade of wins since then.

Cavanaugh's small and speedy team was just outreached by Coach Johnny Meyers' Jayvee crew and it was heighth that topped the Sentinels in the final analysis.

Lose Early Lead

Fort Hill got away to a rushing start, outstepping the rangier Frostburgers in the first quarter to lead 6-0 at the time-out. In the second period the Jayvees began clicking and at the half-time were one point back at 12-11.

The third period was the difference, when Meyers' minions meshed eight points while holding the Sentinels to a lone foul score, the period ending 19-13.

It looked like a "coast" from then in, but Fort Hill spurted and came within a field goal margin of tying the count as the final gun boomed.

Lambertson and Thomas played good floor games for the Jayvees, with Connors' nine points heading the attack. Cook featured Fort Hill's attack with two field goals and two fouls, while Rice and Blades showed to advantage, both on attack and defense.

In a preliminary game two teams of the court squad, the Whites and Reds, battled in a free-scoring tilt, the Whites winning by 43 to 31.

Todd and Dean Teammates Now

New York, Dec. 8. (AP)—Transfer of Catcher Al Todd to the Chicago Cubs today made him a team mate and battery partner of Dizzy Dean, with whom he had a famous feud when both were in the Texas League.

Dean was pitching then for the Houston club, St. Louis Cardinals' farm, and Todd was the Dallas catcher. One day Dizzy irked Todd. The catcher strode from the plate to the pitcher's mound and knocked the "great man" flat.

Near the end of the season Houston and Dallas locked in a tight fight for the league pennant. Dizzy was pitching masterfully in a night game at Dallas. Suddenly he lost his control, or seemed to, and walked three consecutive batters, filling the bases with two out.

The overflow crowd was in an uproar, as out from the dugout came none other than Al Todd to take his turn at bat.

The Dallas fans were howling for him to flatten Dean a second time—this time with a base hit.

So Dizzy took a hitch at his belt, fanned the pugilistic Todd—and fanned him on three straight pitches.

Pirates-Collegians To War Here Sunda

Saints Peter and Paul Court Scene Of No-Foul Clash

Personal Penalty Banishment Rule Waived for Contest

Play Starts at Three with Preliminary at Two O'Clock

Three o'clock Sunday afternoon will be the zero hour for the Pirate-Collegian basketball battle royal when the two quints renew hostilities for the fourth time at SS Peter and Paul gym here.

In the first skirmish, back in 1938, Charles "Snapper" Morris, George Rice and Ike Cessna, now members of the Collegians were in the thick of the battle playing for the Tri-Staters, operated by Johnny Harris, the nip and tuck fray went to the Tri-Staters 45-43. Last year Harris organized the Collegians quintet with the same three lads as members. The Pirate bombers raided the locals twice last season on the SS Peter and Paul floor, by scores of 47-40 and 52-40.

Foul Rule Waived

Birch's Pirates accepted a contract to play here only after a clause was added stating "the foul rule would be waived." Fouls will be called by referee John "Bobby" Cavanaugh but no one will leave the contest via the personal foul route. Boxing gloves and football equipment might be more appropriate than the usual basketball regalia, John Shelton and Hank Lindsay, two husky lads hitting the beam at better than 200 pounds, have been added to the Collegians roster. George Rice, a holdover from last season will also hit better than 200. George Greco and Norman Gerdeman are not as heavy as Shelton, Rice and Lindsay, but can hold their own when the going is rough. From past experience it is evident that Mel Henry, Herman Koegle, Ike Cessna and Snap Morris, are also capable of underhanded work if there is any foul-doings going the rounds.

The Pirates roster is studded with outstanding ball hawks as well as some hefty courtmen. Paul Birch, playing captain, 1935 All-American guard at Duquesne, can play the rough and tumble style of ball. Buren is rated one of the best players developed in the east in the past ten years.

Herb Bonn, guard, was named All-American at Duquesne in 1936, and is one of the best set shots to come out of the Pittsburgh district. Walt Miller, six feet three, was named for all-American honors, at Duquesne with Bonn. Ed Kweller, the giant center of the team, six feet, eight inches, is also a Duquesne product. Joe Urso and Bill Jesko round out the visiting squad. Jesko was a former Pitt captain and the diminutive Urso makes up in speed what he lacks in size.

Both Undefeated

Both quints are undefeated this season and some one is certain to fall. Coach Slocum will not name his starting team until game time and it seems certain Art has a few tricks up his sleeve to show the Smoky city slickers.

The Tri-Staters bagged their 1938 victory by running the Pirates to death, the first three-quarters. Slocums crew is both fast and rangy and will be out to shoot the works.

Preliminary 2 P. M.

In a preliminary game at 2 o'clock the Kaplon Clothiers will face the Klenas Athletic Club of Windber, Pa.

Willie Obert Boots Ouragan in First at Charles Town

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 8 (AP)—Veteran Willie Obert proved today he can boot 'em home despite his fifty-odd years when he brought Mrs. J. Piciuli's Ouragan in first in the six and a half furlong feature.

Obert, the nation's oldest active jockey, waged a battle all the way with Leon Garrett, astride E. H. Titmus, Jr.'s Pandoramint. The latter surged into the lead at the last turn but Obert never stopped trying. In the closing strides Pandoramint faded and dropped to the show position, while Ouragan nosed out Strumming for the victory.

Ouragan paid his backers $6.60, $4.00 and $3.20 for $2. Strumming paid $8.80 and $5.80 and Pandoramint, $6.00.

Mrs. C. L. Payne's Royal Veil and T. B. Palmore's Auto Mart took the second and third races, respectively, to provide a daily double paying of $29.20.

Stewards predicted tonight an attendance of 10,000 tomorrow for the $1,000 Beverly Broun Handicap, a mile and a sixteenth test named in honor of the chairman of the State Racing Commission. Royal Business, owned by O. S. Jennings of Baltimore, heads the field of twenty-seven eligibles.

The five-day suspension of Jockey J. Hernandez, accused of rough riding astride Supreme Kin in the opening race, was announced by the stewards.

Trojan Victory Over UCLA Would Solve Many Problems

(Released By North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc)

New York, Dec. 8 — More than one problem will be solved if Southern California beats U. C. L. A. in this weekend's principal football match.

For one thing, your correspondent, who had the temerity to bet some weeks ago that Southern California would go through the regular season undefeated, will win a wager — a few groats, a farthing or two, a paltry doubloon. For some reason, this is not considered a major issue around Los Angeles.

In the second place, Southern Cal has a slightly better record than the Uclans up to date, and will please the Rose Bowl promoters by winning. For some reason, this is not a major issue with your correspondent.

Race Question May Be Involved

Thirdly, a U. C. L. A victory will raise the embarrassing question of race, which has dogged several important football games in the last few years. U. C. L. A. will deserve the Rose Bowl portfolio if she wins, and, if she gets the bid, she will certainly want to take Washington and Robinson, her colored backs, to the Bowl. Kenny Washington, after all, is a genuine All-America, personally responsible for much of the Uclans' success this year.

On the other hand, Tennessee is a southern team with the traditional attitude toward this problem. Southern Methodist drew no line against Kenny Washington in a game with U. C. L. A., but Tennessee is a different kettle of mackerel.

I do not wish to embarass Major Bob Neyland, the Tennessee coach, by quoting him off the record, and I know the major has no personal feeling on the score, but rumors have sifted out of Knoxville that some of the Tennessee players will raise a considerable rumpus before they agree to face U. C. L. A.'s full complement of negro backs—should both Tennessee and the Uclans reach the Rose Bowl.

A colored man played in the Rose Bowl game of 1929, over Georgia Tech's protest. I trust that U. C. L. A. will stand equally firm. In fact, I have no doubt she will, for reasons of principle as well as practical reasons. We are meeting the problem a little prematurely, since Tennessee has taken no official stand on the matter and U. C. L. A. is by no means sure to reach the Bowl. But, since the problem exists, we might as well meet it now as any time.

Washington is a great back, regardless of his pigmentation. Any attempt to boycott him, or to give him the business physically, would achieve a new low in college football procedure. Come to think of it, we will not even suspect Tennessee of any such intention until she gives us better reason to do so.

Aggies Scorn the Cotton Bowl

The Texas Aggies, incidentally, have made it plain that, while they were highly receptive to invitations, engraved or otherwise, from the Rose or Sugar Bowl, they wanted no part of Texas's own local scoop of ground, the Cotton Bowl. This New Year's Day venture, promoted for some reasons by a rapid oil millionaire by the name of J. Curtis Sanford, who was rolling around the neighborhood of Dallas in a Deusenberg, or was it a Mercedes, the last time I saw him, seems to have run aground on the shoals of Texas football pride.

The Texas Christian team, and its stepfather, Amon Carter, ignored the Cotton Bowl last year to share the higher prestige of the Sugar Bowl and a game with an eastern school. The Texas Aggies are following this example. They wanted the Rose Bowl badly, but they'll take Sugar and Tulane in an effort to stack Texas football against the kind of football they play in the strong southeastern league.

Texans are right in feeling that their football teams are as good as any. Whether the point is as important as some Texans seem to think, I don't know. But Texas teams have made a mistake in courting the Rose Bowl, which is prejudiced in favor of eastern teams with faint Ivy halos or southeastern and eastern teams which will draw at the box office. Southern Methodist was invited once, but the Rose Bowlers made it clear thereafter that once was enough, and my notion is, when you know a guy is going to insult you, why go out of your way to be insulted? Why ask for it?

If Texas teams have a prejudice against Neighbor Sanford and his Cotton Bowl, the best thing to do is build somewhere else or develop a traditional rivalry in the Sugar Bowl, where the best in the east and southeast—not Ivy-clad, but good—can be met.

The only other suggestion I have to offer, free of charge, is: Don't win too often. Your host won't care for that.

By JUDSON BAILEY

Cincinnati, Dec. 8 (AP)—Weeks of maneuvering by baseball's mighty mites, to bring about legislation that would relax restrictions on the big farm systems, collapsed today in forty minutes.

A shaggy, white-haired old man, simply said, "no."

He was Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, czar of baseball, who gathered the sixteen club owners of the National and American Leagues before him in a joint meeting and read off the amendments proposed by the Minor Leagues to pry him off his lofty perch.

There was one that would keep an entire farm system from being bound by a player-transfer rule that refers to only one club; there was one that would permit scouts to sign players for affiliated clubs. There was another that would prohibit the rules from being interpreted.

After each the National League voted "yes" and the American League voted "no." Then Landis would solemnly declare, "the commissioner votes 'no.'"

MacPhail Is Angry

Before the staccato session was more than well started, President Larry MacPhail of the Brooklyn Dodgers and a prime backer of the movement to curb the commissioner, stalked from the room in a rage. There was a report, too, that President Ed Barrow of the New York Yankees was angered at his own league's stand.

President William G. Bramham of the Minor Leagues announced that the efforts of the National Association to gain greater freedom for the chain system would continue unabated.

But the fact remained that the stormy 1939 winter meetings ended with Commissioner Landis unshaken in his hold and views on the conduct of baseball.

As the convention broke up, there was a great flurry of trading in secondary playing talent as the managers finally decided to put through deals they had been hoping to better.

The series of swaps started shortly after midnight with the Chicago White Sox sending Outfielder Gee Walker to Washington for Outfielder Taft Wright and Pitcher Pete Appleton. During the day, the Sox also sold Infielder Marv Owen to the Boston Red Sox and traded Outfielder Rip Radcliff to the St. Louis Browns for Outfielder Julius Solters.

In the National League the Boston Bees swapped Pitcher Danny MacFayden for Pitcher Bill Swift of Pittsburgh and cash while the Brooklyn Dodgers exchanged Catcher Al Todd for Catcher Gus Manusco of the Chicago Cubs and a rookie pitcher, Newel Kimball of Milwaukee in the American Association.

One New Rule Passed

The meetings went into the records as more notable for their legislative feats than for the trading.

Today's joint session of the Big Leagues voted in one new rule, which would make a unanimous vote of the club owners in both loops necessary to shift a team from its present location to a site now held by a club in the other league.

Again in this instance the two leagues disagreed, the National voting against it and Landis casting the deciding vote in favor of the American League.

Most of the business the Minor Leagues spent three days adopting was nullified by action of the joint meeting. President Bramham stated, "I hope all our club owners will allay any concerns they may have until we have had time to give full and clear consideration to the situation which now confronts us. . . . There is more to be accomplished through conferences than through battles."

Clemson College To Play Boston In Cotton Bowl

Dallas, Dec. 84 (AP)—Clemson College, co-champion with Duke in the southern football conference, was invited today to meet Boston College in the Cotton Bowl New Year's day.

J. Curtis Sanford, promoter of the game, quoted Coach Jess Neely of Cleason as saying "we're delighted and will accept if we are granted permission of the conference at its meeting in Roanoke tomorrow."

Duke last year was granted permission to play in the Rose Bowl.

Here's The Reason Why Quaker State Grid Coaches Cry

By GEORGE A. SCOTT

Philadelphia, Dec. 8. (AP)—"Why Pennsylvania's college coaches week."

Here is just one of many all-star teams that might be selected from the ranks of Pennsylvania boys who played football at out of state colleges this year.

Ends: Kirk Hershey of Cornell, a resident of Philadelphia, and Paul Severin of North Carolina, whose home is in Natrona.

Tackles: Tony Ruffa of Duke, a Washington, Pa., product, and John Eibner, Kentucky's captain-elect from Jeannette.

Center: Steve Andrako, Ohio State's captain, from North Braddock.

Backs: Joe McFadden, quarterback of Georgetown's undefeated eleven, from Allentown; Len Eshmont, Fordham's star back from Mt. Carmel township; Frank Knup, Manhattan's captain-elect from Aliquippa; and Harry Dunkle, North Carolina's fullback from Lock Haven.

And if you don't agree with those elections—here are some more who made good on out-of-state gridirons this year:

Frank Stulgaitis of Wilkes-Barre, captain and end on Columbia's team; Hugh Barber of Erie, captain-elect and end for Columbia; Steve Mudacek of Plymouth, Columbia tackle; Fred West of Lansdowne, Cornell tackle; John Dearmy, Windber, Maryland tackle; Captain-elect Jim Garvey of Lebanon, Colgate tackle; and Bill Nealon, Scranton, Georgetown tackle. Jack Murray of Plymouth, Wisconsin center; Allen Matuza of Shenandoah, Georgetown center.

Manhattan had an all-Pennsylvania backfield. Teamed with Knup were Eddie Gay of Kingston and Bill Proach and Joe Midgal, both of the Wyoming Valley section. Other backs included Frank Skotnicki of West Hazelton at Maryland and John Carlis, West Virginia's fullback from Windber.

Marietta Wins

Marietta, O., Dec. 8 (AP)—Sophomores Al Stanforth, forward, and Bill McPeek, guard, with 20 and 40 points respectively, paced Marietta's Pioneers to a 63-31 basketball victory tonight over Fairmont State Teachers. Marietta led 30-15 at the half.

Pan-American To Postpone Games At Least a Year

Finland Holds Up Action By Delaying Olympic Postponement

Hollywood, Fla., Dec. 8 (AP) — A fast-growing belief developed among delegates to the 51st annual convention of the Amateur Athletic Union tonight that 1940 would be at least a year too soon to put on Pan-American games as a substitute for the Olympics.

Latest word from Count Henri De Baillet-Latour, president of the International Olympic Committee, is that Finland has not yet taken definite action to relinquish the 1940 games. So the A.A.U. feels it cannot rightfully draft a replacement program without insulting Finnish athletic officials.

Meanwhile Judge Jeremiah T. Mahoney of New York, chairman of a special Pan-American games committee, was drafting a report to be presented to the executive and foreign relations group of the A.A.U.

The legislation committee recommended for approval by the general convention committee an amendment to return the national indoor track and field championships from meters to yards. Sponsors of the motion regarded it as the opening wedge in their five-year fight to eliminate the metric system from all U. S. competition.

In legislation to reinforce the amateur code, the legislation committee approved amendments to restrain members of a disbanded team from transferring to other territories, and to bar from sanctions "any organization whose interest in sports or games is purely commercial."

Pennants Harder To Win Each Year, Connie Mack Says

By JOHN FRYE

Cincinnati, Dec. 8 (AP)—With sixty years of baseball behind him, the tall, white-haired elder statesman of the game, Connie Mack, came out of the joint Major League meeting today with a slowly-spoken opinion that pennants were getting harder to win.

Mack, seventy-six-year-old manager of the Philadelphia Athletics who left a shoemaker's last at sixteen for a $15-a-week baseball job, said:

"The first ten or twelve years of the American league it was easy to get together a pennant-winning team. The last twenty or so, though, it's been getting harder and harder. I don't know when we'll have another pennant in Philadelphia, but it'll be a few years yet. It'll take time."

Connie's great team of 1910-1914, which revolved around the $100,000 infield of McInnis, Collins, Barry, and Baker and the three immortal pitchers, Chief Bender, Plank and Coombs, was created easily, as things go. Somebody would hear of a good player somewhere and telegraph Philadelphia.

Now it takes a farm system, which the Athletics slowly are acquiring.

But whether Connie Mack wins pennants, as he has done, or finishes last, as he also has done, he is the great man where baseball people gather.

At the Major-Minor League meetings here, he couldn't walk a step without being buttonholed, often by somebody who just wanted to shake his hand.

At the Minor League banquet, there were handsome bursts of applause when everybody of note was introduced, but when toastmaster George Trautman called on Connie Mack to stand up, they cheered until he sat down to stop it.

Harry Thomas To Tell Of "Fixed" Fights If He Is Assured Immunity

New York, Dec. 8 (AP) — Heavyweight Harry Thomas, who made a statement in a Chicago newspaper that his fight here with Max Schmeling two years ago was "fixed," told the State Athletic Commission today he would testify in its investigation if granted immunity from prosecution.

He made this statement through his attorney, John Dailey, Jr., after Arch Ward, sports editor of the Chicago Tribune, which published Thomas' statement, testified that when the former Eagle Bend (Minn.) fighter had told him the story of a "fix," he had discovered "another person" who "corroborated" the story.

Until now, in two previous appearances before the commission, Thomas refused to testify on the grounds he might be "incriminated."

Frostburg J-V's Defeat Fort Hill In Opener 22 to 20

Sentinels' Opening Game and Home Court Record Is Smashed

Gloom descended on Fort Hill high school in large gobs last evening as Coach "Bobby" Cavanaugh's diminutive Sentinel squad saw the opening game victory record of eleven years standing, and the home court winning string established in 1936-37, upset by the Frostburg State College J-V's upset, 22-20.

Fort Hill had not lost an opening season tilt since Cavanaugh took over at the old Penn Avenue institution in 1928, and the Sentinels also boasted a record of not having been defeated on their home court since Martinsburg last turned the trick in a Cumberland Valley Athletic League playoff in the 36-37 season. Allegany also had defeated them earlier in the same season, but it was a parade of wins since then.

Cavanaugh's small and speedy team was just outreached by Coach Johnny Meyers' Jayvee crew and it was heighth that topped the Sentinels in the final analysis.

Lose Early Lead

Fort Hill got away to a rushing start, outstepping the ranjier Frostburgers in the first quarter to lead 6-0 at the time-out. In the second period the Jayvees began clicking and at the half-time were one point back at 12-11.

The third period was the difference, when Meyers' minions meshed eight points while holding the Sentinels to a lone foul score, the period ending 19-13.

It looked like a "coast" from then in, but Fort Hill spurted and came within a field goal margin of tying the count as the final gun boomed.

Lambertson and Thomas played good floor games for the Jayvees, with Connors' nine points heading the attack. Cook featured Fort Hill's attack with two field goals and two fouls, while Rice and Blades showed to advantage, both on attack and defense.

In a preliminary game two teams of the court squad, the Whites and Reds, battled in a free-scoring tilt, the Whites winning by 43 to 31.

Todd and Dean Teammates Now

New York, Dec. 8. (AP)—Transfer of Catcher Al Todd to the Chicago Cubs today made him a team mate and battery partner of Dizzy Dean, with whom he had a famous feud when both were in the Texas League.

Dean was pitching then for the Houston club, St. Louis Cardinals' farm, and Todd was the Dallas catcher. One day Dizzy irked Todd. The catcher strode from the plate to the pitcher's mound and knocked the "great man" flat.

Near the end of the season Houston and Dallas locked in a tight fight for the league pennant. Dizzy was pitching masterfully in a night game at Dallas. Suddenly he lost his control, or seemed to, and walked three consecutive batters, filling the bases with two out.

The overflow crowd was in an uproar, as out from the dugout came none other than Al Todd to take his turn at bat.

The Dallas fans were howling for him to flatten Dean a second time—this time with a base hit.

Steels, Aircrafts and Specialties Lead in Decline of Stock Market

Losses Predominate with only a Few Issues Advancing

New York, Dec. 8 (AP) — Steels, aircrafts and specialties moved downward in today's stock market. Many issues, however, displayed reluctance to retreat and held to a narrow range throughout. Losses predominated, but a handful of modest plus signs was in evidence at the close.

Transfers totaled 574,680 shares, compared with 1,005,470 the day before. The Associated Press average of sixty issues was off .3 of a point at 50.8.

Stimulating were reports of the principal motor makers disclosing that November sales sharply exceeded the same 1938 month and, in a few cases, were the best on record.

U. S. Steel and Bethlehem stumbled as divergent views regarding first quarter production were heard.

Other losers included Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, Jajardo Sugar, South Porto Rico Sugar, Santa Fe, Anaconda, Westinghouse, U. S. Rubber and Allied Chemical.

Tilting lower in the curb were Aluminum of America, Phi C N. J. inc and American Gas.

Here Is a Plot for A Good Short Story

Berlin (AP)—A United States army major, attached to the American embassy here, got into his car and rolled slowly down a blacked-out street for a block. Suddenly he was waved down from the sidewalk. Assuming his car had been recognized by one of the American colony, he drew over to the curb.

A young man stepped up to the running board, opened the door, popped his girl inside, said "auf wiedersehen" and rushed off. Waving him goodbye, she leaned forward and gave the major her street and house number.

Amazed and wordless, but a gentleman as well as an officer, he shifted gears and took her home.

John Howard and Dorothy Lamour as the romantic leads in the Paramount picture "Disputed Passage," which is now playing at the Strand Theater.

Marx Brothers in "At the Circus," Their Merriest, Goofiest Hit

Graduating from the opera and the race track, the Merry Marx Bros. — Groucho, Harpo and Chico —invade the realm of the circus for their newest riot of comedy, "Marx Bros. at the Circus," at the Maryland Theater, and it proved to be a must - see picture as a comedy hit of the year.

A streamlined circus, novel in its design, serves as the background for the Marxion monkey-shines with a modernistic midway, a menagerie that pictures scores of caged animals in their native habitats, and the varied back - scene activities of a huge circus thrown in for good measure.

The picture, although the Marxes corner most of the footage with their comedy pranks, carries a weighty cast that includes Kenny Baker, Florence Rice, Eve Arden, Margaret Dumont, Nat Pendleton, Fritz Feld, James Burke, Barnett Parker and a very promising young midget actor, Jerry Marenghi.

Chico, as a roustabout, and Harpo, as assistant strong man in the story, engage Groucho, "Legal Eagle," to save Kenny Baker from losing his half of the circus to a group of conspirators — the strong man, the midget and the Upside-Down - Girl who walks on the ceiling. The deed is accomplished successfully but in a series of uproaring episodes that challenge description.

Outstanding comedy highlights are Harpo's strong man scenes, Groucho enticing the stolen wallet from the Upside - Down Girl by dancing a rhumba with her on the ceiling, and the wild chase of all participants on the flying trapezes at the top of the big tent.

Musical numbers featuring Kenny Baker and Miss Rice are bautiful in their staging and Harpo and Chico contribute to the musical melange. Mervyn LeRoy produced and Edward Buzzell directed the picture which is an all -round gala production that has everything of corking good entertainment.

Sage's Advice Comes to Life in "Heritage"

Horace Greeley, journalistic sage of the last centry, probably would not have been surprised to see his advice for the kernel of Zane Grey's best - seller, "Heritage of the Desert," the film version of which is now at the Garden Theater. For it was Greeley who advised young men to go west, where they could spend their strength carving and building a new American empire.

In the film, "Heritage of the Desert," Donald Woods is cast as a young Easterner who cuts loose from the soft life he has known to create a new and worthwhile existence. He gets more than he bargained for when he discovers that the manager of his western property C. Henry Gordon, has been robbing him.

Not money but love for a winsome daughter of the desert urges Woods to right the flagrant abuses that are perpetrated by wily, treacherous Gordon. Many a rough and tumble and plenty of shootin' rips across the screen before Woods wins the girl he loves.

An excellent cast, consisting of Russell Hayden as his best friend, Robert Barrat, as the girl's father, Sidney Toler, as the wise cowhand, and "Nosey", cooperate in making Zane Grey's story into one of the best westerns that Harry Sherman has produced for Paramount. Lesley Selander directed.

Cesar Romero gives such a good imitation of a great magicion in "Charlie Chan at Treasure Island," that 20th Century - Fox studio executives found him more satisfactory than the real thing!

The studio tested one of the country's leading exponents of legerdemain for the role of Rhadini, the magician, in his latest mystery thriller, in which Sidney Toler is currently playing Chan at the Garden Theater. But it was discovered that the contrary camera made his truly great stunts look like mere trick photography while the less expert Romero's look very convincing.

"We Are Not Alone" Final Love Scene Masterpiece

Paul Muni and Jane Bryan were doing one of the most impressive scenes from James Hilton's story, "We Are Not Alone,, now showing. It was the climax of the film, where Muni, playing gentle, kindly Dr. Newcome, and Miss Bryan, the trusting young Austrian girl, Leni, meet in prison for the last time before being executed for the crime of killing the doctor's wife. Both are innocent.

Sobbing out her fear of death, breathlessly declaring that she loves him, Leni falls into the doctor's arms. He, bewildered by all that has happened in the short space of the last few weeks, is still able to comfort this gentle girl, the girl with whom he might have really found a happy married life instead of the troublesome existence he led with his neurotic wife.

"They won't believe us. They have to blame somebody," he tells her.

"They are going to kill us, though we have not done any wrong at all," Leni says.

"I know," he comforts. "We are not alone . . ." She looks questioningly at him. "These things are always happening. They're happening now . . . every minute, every second . . . out there. Thousands . . . thousands . . . they've done no crime, but they've got to die. Don't be afraid of death. It isn't the worst thing to face, only the last." He refers to the World War, which has just begun.

"Straight Shooter" and "Mickey The Kid"

Closing today at the Embassy Theatre will be the double feature attraction consisting of Tim McCoy in the western drama, "Straight Shooter." The second feature being Bruce Cabot, Ralph Byrd and Zasu Pitts in the dramatic hit, "Mickey The Kid." Also on the same program you will see another chapter of the serial "Mandrake, The Magician."

"Winter Carnival" and "Clouds Over Europe"

NEW ROMANTIC TEAM

"Disputed Passage"

One of the most powerful sequences in the exciting medical film, "Disputed Passage," which is now playing at the Strand Theater, takes place in an improvised hospital on the war-ravaged plains of present-day China. John Howard, in the role of a brilliant young doctor is wounded in an air raid while searching for his estranged fiancee, playeed by Dorothy Lamour. Despite an apparently successful operation performed by Akim Tamiroff, renowned neurological surgeon, he hovers between life and death. Science has done its best, but science is not enough. Unless Howard is supplied with the "will to live" he will die in spite of medical skill. Only Miss Lamour, whom he loves, can supply that will. In this way Lloyd Douglas, the author, proves that there is a power beyond all that is learned in the laboratory. "Disputed Passage" was adapted from the best-selling book of the same name and has been universally hailed by the reading public as great as Douglas' previous hits, "The Magnificent Obsession" and "Green Light."

"Barricade"

Alice Faye and Warner Baxter are co-starred in "Barricade," thrilling 20th Century-Fox drama opening Sunday at the Strand Theater. Miss Faye plays a frightened American girl in China, running away from murder straight into fury and danger in a remote United States consulate besieged by fierce bandits. Baxter is seen as a ne'er-do-well adventurer, making trouble when he can't find it and finding it this time with Alice! These two live a startling drama with death seemingly but an hour away. Featured in the cast are Charles Winninger, as the heroic American consul; Arthur Treacher, Keye Luke and Willie Fung. The film was directed by Gregory Ratoff.

Technique Reaches The Nutty Stage

Grand Canyon, Ariz. (AP)—Navajo Indians, after harvesting pinon nuts for untold years in their own laborious manner, now have adopted the white man's ways.

It has been the tribesmen's custom to wait until the cones burst and spilled the nuts on the ground, then gather the tiny nuts one by one.

This year crews of Indians are working together, shaking nuts from the trees, raking them from the ground and sifting them through screens.

In the new method a ton of nuts can be harvested in three or four days. What the Indians don't eat themselves they sell for five cents a pound cash, or six cents in trade.

Prickly Hobby

Salina, Kas. (AP)—Ben Peterson collects short pieces of barbed wire as a hobby and now has 80 different kinds in his collection. He says one kind is required for sheep, another for horses, another for human beings—the type used in war entanglements. He carries wire with him so that when he finds a new type strung along western acres he can whack out a piece and then splice the fence with a spare.

But Can She Cook?

Fremont, Neb. (AP)—Professors at Midland college here call Mary Reynolds, 17, the most versatile coed in a decade. Besides being the "brightest freshman" because she scored 197 in an intelligence test, to top 139 classmates, Mary is a talented pianist, violinist, singer, debater, journalist and thespian.

Steels, Aircrafts and Specialties Lead in Decline of Stock Market

Losses Predominate with only a Few Issues Advancing

New York, Dec. 8 (AP) — Steels, aircrafts and specialties moved downward in today's stock market. Many issues, however, displayed reluctance to retreat and held to a narrow range throughout. Losses predominated, but a handful of modest plus signs was in evidence at the close.

Transfers totaled 574,680 shares, compared with 1,005,470 the day before. The Associated Press average of sixty issues was off .3 of a point at 50.8.

Stimulating were reports of the principal motor makers disclosing that November sales sharply exceeded the same 1938 month and, in a few cases, were the best on record.

U. S. Steel and Bethlehem stumbled as divergent views regarding first quarter production were heard. Other losers included Douglas aircraft, Boeing, Jajardo Sugar, South Porto Rico Sugar, Santa Fe, Anaconda, Westinghouse, U. S. Rubber and Allied Chemical.

Tiltin' lower in the curb were Aluminum of America, N. J. inc and American

Marx Brothers in "At the Circus," Their Merriest, Goofiest Hit

Graduating from the opera and the race track, the Merry Marx Bros. — Groucho, Harpo and Chico —invade the realm of the circus for their newest riot of comedy, "Marx Bros. at the Circus," at the Maryland Theater, and it proved to be a must - see picture as a comedy hit of the year.

A streamlined circus, novel in its design, serves as the background for the Marxion monkey-shines with a modernistic midway, a menagerie that pictures scores of caged animals in their native habitats, and the varied back - scene activities of a huge circus thrown in for good measure.

The picture, although the Marxes corner most of the footage with their comedy pranks, carries a weighty cast that includes Kenny Baker, Florence Rice, Eve Arden, Margaret Dumont, Nat Pendleton, Fritz Feld, James Burke, Barnett Parker and a very promising young midget actor, Jerry Marenghi.

Chico, as a roustabout, and Harpo, as assistant strong man in the story, engage Groucho, "Legal Eagle," to save Kenny Baker from losing his half of the circus to a group of conspirators — the strong man, the midget and the Upside-Down - Girl who walks on the ceiling. The deed is accomplished successfully but in a series of uproaring episodes that challenge description.

Outstanding comedy highlights are Harpo's strong man scenes, Groucho enticing the stolen wallet from the Upside - Down Girl by dancing a rhumba with her on the ceiling, and the wild chase of all participants on the flying trapezes at the top of the big tent.

Musical numbers featuring Kenny Baker and Miss Rice are bautiful in their staging and Harpo and Chico contribute to the musical melange. Mervyn LeRoy produced and Edward Buzzell directed the picture which is an all -round gala production that has everything of corking good entertainment.

Sage's Advice Comes to Life in "Heritage"

Horace Greeley, journalistic sage of the last centry, probably would not have been surprised to see his advice for the kernel of Zane Grey's best - seller, "Heritage of the Desert," the film version of which is now at the Garden Theater. For it was Greeley who advised young men to go west, where they could spend their strength carving and building a new American empire.

In the film, "Heritage of the Desert," Donald Woods is cast as a young Easterner who cuts loose from the soft life he has known to create a new and worthwhile existence. He gets more than he bargained for when he discovers that the manager of his western property C. Henry Gordon, has been robbing him.

Not money but love for a winsome daughter of the desert urges Woods to right the flagrant abuses that are perpetrated by wily, treacherous Gordon. Many a rough and tumble and plenty of shootin' rips across the screen before Woods wins the girl he loves.

An excellent cast, consisting of Russell Hayden as his best friend, Robert Barrat, as the girl's father, Sidney Toler, as the wise cowhand, and "Nosey", cooperate in making Zane Grey's story into one of the best westerns that Harry Sherman has produced for Paramount. Lesley Selander directed.

Cesar Romero gives such a good imitation of a great magicion in "Charlie Chan at Treasure Island," that 20th Century - Fox studio executives found him more satisfactory than the real thing!

The studio tested one of the country's leading exponents of legerdemain for the role of Rhadini, the magician, in his latest mystery thriller, in which Sidney Toler is currently playing Chan at the Garden Theater. But it was discovered that the contrary camera made his truly great stunts look like mere trick photography while the less expert Romero's look very convincing.

"We Are Not Alone" Final Love Scene Masterpiece

Paul Muni and Jane Bryan were doing one of the most impressive scenes from James Hilton's story, "We Are Not Alone," now showing. It was the climax of the film, where Muni, playing gentle, kindly Dr. Newcome, and Miss Bryan, the trusting young Austrian girl, Leni, meet in prison for the last time before being executed for the crime of killing the doctor's wife. Both are innocent.

Sobbing out her fear of death, breathlessly declaring that she loves him, Leni falls into the doctor's arms. He, bewildered by all that has happened in the short space of the last few weeks, is still able to comfort this gentle girl, the girl with whom he might have really found a happy married life instead of the troublesome existence he led with his neurotic wife.

"They won't believe us. They have to blame somebody," he tells her.

"They are going to kill us, though we have not done any wrong at all," Leni says.

"I know," he comforts. "We are not alone . . ." She looks questioningly at him. "These things are always happening. They're happening now . . . every minute, every second . . . out there. Thousands . . . thousands . . . they've done no crime, but they've got to die. Don't be afraid of death. It isn't the worst thing to face, only the last." He refers to the World War, which has just begun.

"Straight Shooter" and "Mickey The Kid"

Closing today at the Embassy Theatre will be the double feature attraction consisting of Tim McCoy in the western drama, "Straight Shooter." The second feature being Bruce Cabot, Ralph Byrd and Zasu Pitts in the dramatic hit, "Mickey The Kid." Also on the same program you will see another chapter of the serial "Mandrake, The Magician."

"Winter Carnival" and "Clouds Over Europe"

NEW ROMANTIC TEAM

"Disputed Passage"

One of the most powerful sequences in the exciting medical film, "Disputed Passage," which is now playing at the Strand Theater, takes place in an improvised hospital on the war-ravaged plains of present-day China. John Howard, in the role of a brilliant young doctor is wounded in an air raid while searching for his estranged fiancee, playeed by Dorothy Lamour. Despite an apparently successful operation performed by Akim Tamiroff, renowned neurological surgeon, he hovers between life and death. Science has done its best, but science is not enough. Unless Howard is supplied with the "will to live" he will die in spite of medical skill. Only Miss Lamour, whom he loves, can supply that will. In this way Lloyd Douglas, the author, proves that there is a power beyond all that is learned in the laboratory. "Disputed Passage" was adapted from the best-selling book of the same name and has been universally hailed by the reading public as great as Douglas' previous hits, "The Magnificent Obsession" and "Green Light."

"Barricade"

Alice Faye and Warner Baxter are co-starred in "Barricade," thrilling 20th Century-Fox drama opening Sunday at the Strand Theater. Miss Faye plays a frightened American girl in China, running away from murder straight into fury and danger in a remote United States consulate besieged by fierce bandits. Baxter is seen as a ne'er-do-well adventurer, making trouble when he can't find it and finding it this time with Alice! These two live a startling drama with death seemingly but an hour away. Featured in the cast are Charles Winninger, as the heroic American consul; Arthur Treacher, Keye Luke and Willie Fung. The film was directed by Gregory Ratoff.

Technique Reaches The Nutty Stage

Grand Canyon, Ariz. (AP)—Navajo Indians, after harvesting pinon nuts for untold years in their own laborious manner, now have adopted the white man's ways.

It has been the tribesmen's custom to wait until the cones burst and spilled the nuts on the ground, then gather the tiny nuts one by one.

This year crews of Indians are working together, shaking nuts from the trees, raking them from the ground and sifting them through screens.

In the new method a ton of nuts can be harvested in three or four days. What the Indians don't eat themselves they sell for five cents a pound cash, or six cents in trade.

Prickly Hobby

Salina, Kas. (AP)—Ben Peterson collects short pieces of barbed wire as a hobby and now has 80 different kinds in his collection. He says one kind is required for sheep, another for horses, another for human beings—the type used in war entanglements. He carries wire with him so that when he finds a new type strung along western acres he can whack out a piece and then splice the fence with a spare.

But Can She Cook?

Fremont, Neb. (AP)—Professors at Midland college here call Mary Reynolds, 17, the most versatile coed in a decade. Besides being the "brightest freshman" because she scored 197 in an intelligence test, to top 139 classmates, Mary is a talented pianist, violinist, singer, debater, journalist and thespian.

Garrett County Sportsmen Will Meet Tuesday Evenin

Governor O'Conor Will Deliver the Principal Address

Chief Executive To Discuss Conservation at Grantsville Meeting

Frostburg, Dec. 8 — The Grantsville unit of the Garrett County Sportsmen's Association will meet at the Firemen's Hall Tuesday evening, December 12. There are approximately 125 members of this organization in this section, and as the meeting is scheduled to be a rather important one, most of these are expected to attend. A report on the game killed during the past season will be given and various game laws will be discussed. It will also be decided whether or not the local association will send a delegate to represent them at the annual banquet, sponsored by the Maryland State Game and Inland Fish Commission, which is to be held at the Lord Baltimore Hotel, Baltimore, Saturday, December 16, and if so, he will be chosen at this meeting.

Governor Herbert R. O'Conor will be the speaker at the banquet and has announced he will give the stand of the administration toward the whole question of conservation when he addresses the members and their friends on that occasion. Other matters will also be taken up at Tuesday night's meeting, not the least of which will be hearing the various stories of the deer hunters.

Plan Christmas Treat

At the meeting of the firemen last evening, it was decided that the youngsters of the community should again have their usual Christmas tree and treat, which this organization has sponsored for the past several years. A tree will be erected in front of the Firemen's Hall and gifts will be distributed on the evening of Saturday, December 23. A. Emmons Warnick, Hayward F. Broadwater and Leonard B. Schaefer were appointed as a committee to obtain funds to provide for this event. No definite decisions were made as to street decorations pending a meeting with the officials of the Associated Maryland Electric Power Association.

In the past the firemen have offered prizes for the best decorated homes in the town, but an announcement will be made later if they decide to continue the practice this year.

Community Club Meets

The Grantsville Community Club met at the home of Miss Ethel Broadwater Wednesday evening for their annual Christmas party. Various reports for the year's work were also made. MAKES GOOD PROFIT ON CHAMPION STEER

Mayfield Kothmann and his grand champion

Chicago, Dec. 8 (AP)—In a dull market for grand champion steers, Mayfield Kothmann, 18-year-old Mason county, Tex., youth, has netted a profit of $2,137 on his original investment of $35.

Lucky Boy II, Kothmann's red coated Hereford, winner of the highest cattle honor at the fortieth International Livestock Show, was sold at auction for $1.35 a pound.

The price was only ten cents a pound over the depression low paid for the International's grand champion steer in 1932 and was $2 a pound less than was received for last year's winner.

Fair officials said "for some unaccountable reason" there wasn't enough competitive bidding to force prices to usual International peaks.

Body of Explosion Victim Recovered

Huntington, W. Va., Dec. 8 (AP)—Firemen recovered the body of Lloyd Mayes, 37, from the Ohio river today and redoubled their search for the third man killed when the boilers of the Steamer J. C. Rawn exploded.

At Washington, J. Monroe Johnson, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, appointed a board of inquiry to investigate the tragedy aboard the towing vessel. The department said reports indicated two of the boat's three boilers blew up.

Named to the board were Lucien Roy of the Justice Department, Captain J. L. Ahearn of the Coast Guard and Harry Layfield, Supervising Inspector of the River District, Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation.

Jesse Plants, 60, one of the boat firemen, was killed instantly in the explosion yesterday. Half a dozen others were seriously injured.

Fred C. Gebhardt, 41, Huntington mechanic, was the other missing man.

Three federal steamboat inspectors began an investigation, digging through debris piled high on the remains of the boat in an effort to find out what caused the blast.

The boilers apparently exploded while firemen were getting steam up to continue a trip down the river. The Rawn tied up here early yesterday to clean the boilers.

Two Men Admit Illegal Kills

Charleston, W. Va., Dec. 8. (AP)—Chief Game Protector Prentice Farley, reflecting on the 1939 deer season, said today he was cheered most of all by two voluntary admissions of illegal kills.

"A general policy of that kind will do more to help deer hunting in West Virginia than any other one thing," said Farley.

"And the practice is not entirely without incentive," he continued. "In the case of voluntary reports, such as those noted, a minimum penalty of $50 to $100 fine is provided. Conviction means a fine of $100 to $300 and 30 to 90 days in jail."

Farley said arrests were made in only a small percentage of the fifty-nine illegal kills.

WPA Workers in Tucker County Will Organize

Meeting Held at Parsons and Committees Are Named

Parsons, W. Va., Dec. 8.—A meeting of several hundred WPA workers of this section was held last night in the court house for the purpose of perfecting an organization through which the workers might operate in the way of securing additional work projects. There are many idle men in this county, it was pointed out at this meeting, and have been idle for many weeks, and whose families are in destitute circumstances. Various committees were partially named and will work out various phases of the program. Other committee members will be named next week.

In addition to Parsons and rural communities now being organized, other WPA organizations have been formed at Hendricks, Hambleton, Thomas and Davis. In the near future a county-wide meeting of all WPA organizations is to be called to meet in Parsons at which time state and national speakers will attend. It is claimed that other counties are getting much more WPA work projects than Tucker and a reason is being sought for the work orders not coming to Tucker county. There are very few WPA projects now going on in this county. Among the speakers last night were J. F. Robinson, president of the county court; Stawyer Summerfield, C. W. Harvey, C. Ed Long and Gordon G. Lambert.

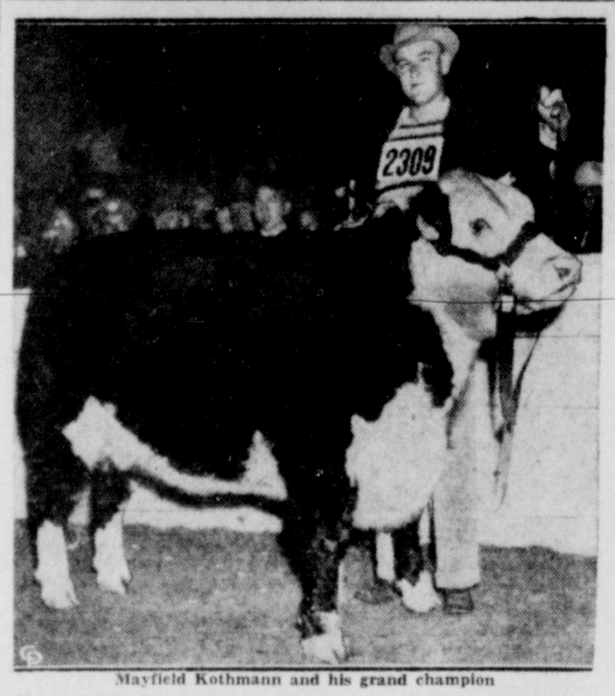
MAKES GOOD PROFIT ON CHAMPION STEER



Mayfield Kothmann and his grand champion

Chicago, Dec. 8 (AP)—In a dull market for grand champion steers, Mayfield Kothmann, 18-year-old Mason county, Tex., youth, has netted a profit of $2,137 on his original investment of $35.

Lucky Boy II, Kothmann's red coated Hereford, winner of the highest cattle honor at the fortieth International Livestock Show, was sold at auction for $1.35 a pound.

The price was only ten cents a pound over the depression low paid for the International's grand champion steer in 1932 and was $2 a pound less than was received for last year's winner.

Fair officials said "for some unaccountable reason" there wasn't enough competitive bidding to force prices to usual International peaks.

Body of Explosion Victim Recovered

Huntington, W. Va., Dec. 8 (AP)—Firemen recovered the body of Lloyd Mayes, 37, from the Ohio river today and redoubled their search for the third man killed when the boilers of the Steamer J. C. Rawn exploded.

At Washington, J. Monroe Johnson, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, appointed a board of inquiry to investigate the tragedy aboard the towing vessel. The department said reports indicated two of the boat's three boilers blew up.

Named to the board were Lucien Roy of the Justice Department, Captain J. L. Ahearn of the Coast Guard and Harry Layfield, Supervising Inspector of the River District, Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation.

Jesse Plants, 60, one of the boat firemen, was killed instantly in the explosion yesterday. Half a dozen others were seriously injured.

Fred C. Gebhardt, 41, Huntington mechanic, was the other missing man.

Two Men Admit Illegal Kills

Charleston, W. Va., Dec. 8. (AP)—Chief Game Protector Prentice Farley, reflecting on the 1939 deer season, said today he was cheered most of all by two voluntary admissions of illegal kills.

"A general policy of that kind will do more to help deer hunting in West Virginia than any other one thing," said Farley.

"And the practice is not entirely without incentive," he continued. "In the case of voluntary reports, such as those noted, a minimum penalty of $50 to $100 fine is provided. Conviction means a fine of $100 to $300 and 30 to 90 days in jail."

Farley said arrests were made in only a small percentage of the fifty-nine illegal kills.

WPA Workers in Tucker County Will Organize

Meeting Held at Parsons and Committees Are Named

Parsons, W. Va., Dec. 8.—A meeting of several hundred WPA workers of this section was held last night in the court house for the purpose of perfecting an organization through which the workers might operate in the way of securing additional work projects. Various committees were partially named and will work out various phases of the program. Other committee members will be named next week.

In addition to Parsons and rural communities now being organized, other WPA organizations have been formed at Hendricks, Hambleton, Thomas and Davis. In the near future a county-wide meeting of all WPA organizations is to be called to meet in Parsons at which time state and national speakers will attend. It is claimed that other counties are getting much more WPA work projects than Tucker and a reason is being sought for the work orders not coming to Tucker county. There are very few WPA projects now going on in this county. Among the speakers last night were J. F. Robinson, president of the county court; Stawyer Summerfield, C. W. Harvey, C. Ed Long and Gordon G. Lambert.

Community Center At Meyersdale Is Completed

Room Remodeled and Decorated as N. Y. Project

Meyersdale, Pa., Dec. 8—Meyersdale's fine new Community Center is now ready for occupancy. Located on the first floor of the municipal building, the room was remodeled and decorated as a NYA project, and is available for civic and patriotic organizations for meeting quarters.

To facilitate the preparation of a tentative schedule a public meeting will be held Wednesday evening, to which representatives of all organizations who expect to occupy the room, as well as all parties interested, are requested to attend.

The WPA department of education and recreation has provided free janitor service. In the near future an instructor will go on duty to instruct and direct indoor recreational activities, and the room is to be equipped with games of various kinds for the use of the general public.

The committee of council, which has had oversight and management of the center is composed of R. C. Grove, John Fullem and . C. Younkin.

Following the meeting next Wednesday a calendar of the various meetings and activities will be prepared and posted in a conspicuous place.

Fire Destroys Home

At one o'clock this morning the residence property of Ernest Nightingale, Garrett, was totally destroyed by fire, the origin has not yet been determined. Some of the household goods were saved.

The Meyersdale fire department responded to the call but could do little toward saving the dwelling on account of the flames having gained too great headway.

About two weeks ago a dwelling belonging to Mr. Nightingale was also totally destroyed.

Roads Are Icy

The highways in this section are a glare of ice and ashing crews have been out since midnight. The Somerset star route mail carrier with great difficulty succeeded in arriving here several hours late. Electric power lines were down in many sections owing to the high winds and sleet ice clinging to the wires, interrupting service for several hours yesterday afternoon and last night.

Republic Steel Workers Furloughed Indefinitely

Unsettled Market Delays Scheduled Opening of Plant

The Republic Steel plant here, whose early re-opening has been expected by hundreds of workers and their families, will remain idle until after New Year's, it was learned yesterday.

Most of the seventy-five workmen who have been getting the plant ready for production were laid off yesterday.

H. W. Smith, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, said that he understood unsettled conditions in the tin plate market at home and abroad had led to the decision to postpone opening the local plant.

Mr. Smith said he learned of this decision only yesterday, and that it came as a surprise to him.

No Company Statements

No statements have come from the company at any time since preparations to open here were started, but Mr. Smith has been regarded as an official spokesman for the company.

Mr. Smith said he hoped to see the plant open early in January, but that nothing definite is known at this time.

Many of the men who have been furloughed will be without work during the Christmas season. A number of them had given up other jobs to answer the call back to the tin mill.

Expected To Open Dec. 1

WPA headquarters here said that men who had left the WPA to get work at the mill would have to wait at least a week before getting back on WPA.

When the re-opening of the mill was first announced early in November, it was said that the mill would be opened as soon as possible, probably by Dec. 1.

The mill is ready to produce now, it is understood, if and when the orders to do so come through.

Bazaar's Ace Entertainers Discovered in Balcony

Five couples of young negro dancers appeared at the Memorial hospital cancer clinic bazaar last night to jitterbug a bit in the balcony.

But not for long. Someone spied them. Other dancers stopped to watch. Mrs. Morris Rosenbaum, who has kept the fun going at the bazaar all week, was called.

Before long, the dusky dancers had been called down out of the shadows and onto the main dance floor, where, to the great delight of an ever-growing crowd, they put on a show like bazaar crowds had never seen before.

The crowd showered them with nickles and dimes, and the colored youngsters grinned from ear to ear.

Later, they were called back for another show.

"It was a great performance," lamented Harvey Weiss, hospital superintendent, "But it almost broke up the bazaar. Everybody left the amusements to watch the dancers.

"Sure, we'll have them back for the big finale Saturday night. But we're keeping them in reserve. They don't go on until nearly midnight."

Jacobson Speaker At Annual Dinner Of Bible Class

One Hundred Members Attend Duke Memorial Class Dinner at "Y"

"Fellowship comes from the heart", Dr. Samuel M. Jacobson told one hundred members of the Duke Memorial Men's Bible Class last night.

Dr. Jacobson was principal speaker at the "fellowship meeting" and annual banquet of the Bible Class at the Central Y. M. C. A.

His topic concerned heart ailments and their cures. He blamed heart diseases as being the cause of most deaths annually in the world. Cancer was listed second and tuberculosis as fifth.

Dr. Jacobson described the heart and the work it has to do. "Nervous mechanisms control the heart and cause functional disturbances", he said. He defined a heart disease as being a combination of many factors, but said the ailment is preventable if it is checked in time.

In conclusion, Dr. Jacobson added, "You have a heart, take care of it; take care of it now and you will live a little longer in the end. The heart is the organ of life and health, watch it".

The Rev. Dr. William A. Eisenberger, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, opened the meeting and banquet with invocation. E. R. Bender presided and Dr. Frank Davis introduced Dr. Jacobson.

Following the banquet, Finley C. Hendrickson, teacher of the class for twenty-five years, spoke briefly on the class's history and progress. J. Hilleary Hayden, president of the class, thanked those present for helping to make the affair a success.

Quartet Sings

Songs were sung by four Allegany High school girls, Josephine Williams, Doris Brant and Clara Lee Moore, accompanied on the piano by Mary Turnley. Each was awarded a large box of candy as a token of appreciation for the entertainment they presented.

Two moving pictures, through the courtesy of James L. Barrow, manager of the C. & P. Telephone Co., were shown. They were entitled "Tour to the Islands" and "The Other Christmas Tree".

Dealer's Tags Misused

State Trooper George J. Miller arrested Athey for using dealer tags after their ten-day term expired.

Finns Hunting Red Army Rescued from Jail Beds

Two tow-headed sons of Finland who humbly asked for lodging in the city jail last night finally wound up with the best room in a downtown hotel.

The pair, both able-bodied seamen, gave their names as Lauri Johannes, 27, and Alexander Mannila, 34.

Queried by Desk Sergt. Bert B. Browne, the two travelers stated in broken English that they were on their way to New York, planned to said to Finland and then lick the Russians.

No Jail Bed for Patriots

When it was decided at the police station that it wouldn't be seemly for two Finnish patriots to spend the night in the jailhouse, a call was put through to County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle to see what he could do.

Mr. Boyle, who likes all Finns and dislikes practically all Communists, demanded to have the Messrs. Johannes and Mannila brought to his office at once. They were.

Bow Before Boyle

The pair bowed stiffly from the waist when presented to Mr. Boyle, and immediately brought forth their papers, which showed that Johannes is from Vaasan, Finland, and a lieutenant in the Finn army, and that Mannila is from Lathi.

Mr. Boyle, Detective Frank Gaffney and State Parole Officer James Cavanaugh listened intently as Mannila, the more fluent speaker of the two men, explained that no one should feel sorry for the Finns —that it was the Russians who were to be pitied.

Strong on Technique

Queried regarding the tremendous Red army now sweeping into Finland, Mannila said, Yes, that was true, but the Finn army was much smaller and therefore could move much faster—something like Notre Dame, apparently.

The sturdy Finn indicated that the Finn army made up in technique what it lacked in size.

However, both agreed that every man available was needed, and it was for this reason that they were going back to their mother country.

"We Fight"

"We fight," stated Johannes bluntly and curtly, which pointed remark was either considered adequate to cover the situation by the speaker or exhausted his store of English.

At this point cigars were passed around by the county investigator, who remarked that he had no use whatsoever for the Soviets, none whatever.

Taken to Hotel

Informed by Salvation Army headquarters that they were packed to the rafters, Mr. Boyle declared that "these fellows aren't going to sleep in any jail" and took them to the Olympia hotel.

"These boys are on their way to Finland to join the army," Mr. Boyle informed the desk clerk. "I want you to do everything for them you can. It's on me."

A group of men standing around the lobby came up, immediately plunged hands into trouser pockets and came up with dollar bills and half dollars.

Surprised at Kindness

The two surprised Finns blinked with surprise, looked at each other blankly, and then accepted the contributions showered upon them.

Mannila said he and his traveling companion had been at sea for some time and had docked some time ago in Baltimore.

Catch Wrong Ride

After hearing much talk on the Red army's aggression against Finland, they decided to start for home.

Starting out as hitch-hikers, the pair apparently accepted rides at random, and, because of their ignorance of English, wound up in Cumberland last night by mistake. Once in New York they can obtain passage home, Mannila said.

Friends Find Man, 66, Dead

Break Door Down To Enter Room

William A. King, 66, a retired baggage man for the Pennsylvania railroad, yesterday was found dead in his room on South Mechanic street.

Mr. King was last seen alive by Joseph Carney who picked him up in South Cumberland on Wednesday and drove him to the downtown section.

Friends who noticed his absence from the places he generally frequented, went to his rooming house yesterday and discovered that the door to his room was locked from the inside. Poking the key out of the keyhole, the investigators peered through the opening, saw King lying on his cot.

The group, including Dr. R. C. Bowen, who had been making a call on the next floor, hesitated about breaking into the room, finally did so.

Dr. Linne H. Corson, deputy medical examiner, was immediately called. Death was caused by a cerebral hemorrhage, the examiner reported.

Surviving Mr. King are three daughters, Mrs. Laura Moore and Mrs. Charlotte Plackrs, both of Washington, and Mrs. H. F. Constable, of Cumberland, with whom he formerly made his home for some time; and a son, Wilbur A., of Cumberland.

The body was taken to the Lempereur Funeral Home.

Only One Hunter Shot In Hunting for Deer

The first and only hunting accident in Allegany county during the deer season was reported yesterday.

Theodore W. Clark, 503 Fort avenue, was accidentally shot in the leg Thursday afternoon when a gun carried by one of the party trailing him went off.

The wound was slight, the bullet searing the flesh near the shinbone. Only first aid treatment was required. Clark was hunting on Green Ridge.

on High Roads Low Roads and By-Ways

Marvin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy M. Bell, 107 Forster avenue, was inspired to write the poem after studying old English ballads for two weeks in his English course.

He employs the ballad form to tell a modern story, and we must say his poem moves forward like a football team hitting the center of the line for five or ten yards at every clip.

Note the sharp-edged words he uses, the success with which a feeling of tenseness and suppression is created.

A DICTATOR'S STAND

He's started out in a prison cell;
dark, dreary, and mad.
And wrote a book on his future hell;
dark, dreary, and sad.

He's grown a mustache and let down his hair;
dark, brittle, and dry.
And started to spread his plan of repair;
dark, brittle and dry.

His plan of repair was his only religion;
evil, forceful, and bold.
Arm raised in salute, swastika his emblem,
evil, forceful, and bold.

To expel the Jews was his first offense;
strong, powerful, tight.
And put them in camps with a heavy iron fence;
strong, powerful, tight.

He swallowed the Saar and Austria too;
guns, coal, grain.
He needed their help, like gold from the Jews;
guns, coal, grain.

He's turned to Russia, old pal, old pal;
men, power, greed.
I need your help to please my gal;
With men, power, greed.

He turned 'round to Italy, his first true love?
soft, silly, shameless.
We'll have them begging for help from the dove;
soft, silly, shameless.

He's turned to Poland, we need your land;
defiant, brave, determined.
We'll protect it till there's none to stand;
defiant, brave, determined.

France has seen poor Poland's plight;
Courage, bravery, patience.
So they've called in England and entered the fight;
courage, bravery, patience.

The battle started very slowly at first;
Alphonso, Gaston, dare.
Only now and then did a large bomb burst;
Alphonso, Gaston, dare.

With a mile gained here and a ship sunk there;
sissy, coward, afraid
They took from each what the other would share;
sissy, coward, afraid.

Then started the battle in every state;
bombs, bayonets, shelters.
Destruction and death, to kill and hate;
bombs, bayonets, shelters.

But Herr'd not counted the cards in the pack;
fate, futility, folly.
And found that the joker was gone from the stack;
fate, futility, folly.

The Germans were weary of war and its lot;
bread, water, beans.
And liked not the outlook on Hitler's plot;
bread, water, beans.

Italy, the shameless, his first true love?
spaghetti, wine, feast.
Had gone with the allies in the first big shove;
spaghetti, wine, feast.

It started in Prague, or was it Berlin?
Quiet, where, when?
We're tired of starvation, bombed cities and din;
Quiet, where, when?

They planned it well, with the help of French spies;
Money, information, guns.
They knew very well that Herr too despised;
Money, information, guns.

As meeting of members of Hitler's personnel;
Herr, Goebels, Goering.
Closed doors, privacy, no one shall tell;
Herr, Goebels, Goering.

A meeting of anarchists, deep in a glen!
Map, doors, alleys.
A carefully picked crew of a hundred men!
Map, doors, alleys.

right, portals, two men.
Watch out below, here comes a gendarme;
right, portals, two men.

The town was unusually quiet that night;
watch, minutes, time.
It shouldn't go wrong, but something might!
watch, minutes, time.

A signal of success from a warning hand;
hate, vengeance, kill.
And everyone who knew it had gone as planned;
hate, vengeance, kill.

The news went quickly throughout the land;
joy, peace, rest.
That Hitler had played his last big hand;
joy, peace, rest.

Peace was ruler, the armies returned;
sod, grain, factories.
No buildings bombed, no cities burned;
sod, grain, factories.

The people well knew that peace was preserved;
hell, death, repulsion.
And Hitler had received just what he deserved;
hell, death, repulsion.

Student Strikers Re-Unite Front Against Board

Drop Their Fight For Coach Cather; Meeting Tonight

Striking students of Ridgeley high school last night decided to send a committee of six to the meeting of the Mineral county board of education at Keyser tonight to ask reinstatement of Hubert Price as basketball coach and mathematics teacher.

The board had ordered Price replaced by Thomas Small, of Piedmont, at a meeting Wednesday night, the appointment to take effect yesterday.

Members of the student-delegation will be named at a meeting at the high school grounds at noon today, according to William Spriggs, one of the leaders of the strikers.

Officials to Attend

Principal Melvin M. Heiskell and Mayor Paul K. Morgan will also attend the board meeting, along with a delegation of parents.

Last night's meeting, attended by about a score of parents and forty students, was held on the high school grounds when leaders failed to make advance arrangements to hold it inside.

Principal Heiskell said he had not been asked to have the building open, except by some students just a few moments before the meeting was scheduled. The meeting broke up before a delegation of parents could complete the arrangements.

Problem Simplified

Yesterday's chief development, aside from the continuation of the strike, was the simplification of the problem to Price vs. Small.

Thursday night, a group of athletes had told The News that they wanted William "Pete" Cather reappointed to the coaching position.

But yesterday, they decided to present a united front in favor of Price's retention and to seek only to have the "truth" disclosed about Cather's resignation in order to stop "talk" about him.

Peace Move Fails

A "back to school" move failed yesterday morning, despite the pleas of several parents and Principal Heiskell that the students return to classes, pending the board's decision.

The pleas were made at a meeting in the school auditorium, arranged at the suggestion of Benjamin F. Hartman, of Wiley Ford.

Present at the meeting was George Boyd, a member of the board of education, but most of the students walked out before he spoke.

He talked only briefly, suggesting that no further meetings be held until tonight's meeting of the board.

Who Is To Blame?

Hartman, who attended Thursday night's board meeting, which adjourned without taking action, said that the board had attempted to blame Principal Heiskell for the situation.

Hartman declared that the principal has correspondence showing that he hired Price on the authority of County School Superintendent Paul C. Rouzer, with the understanding that he might hold the post for the rest of the school year.

Heiskell confirmed this statement last night.

Business Owners Advised To Tell Employes More

Must Let Workers Know of Problems, Chamber Is Told

Members of the Chamber of Commerce at their luncheon yesterday heard reports from the recent business men's forum at Hagerstown and launched into a rather spirited forum of their own.

H. W. Smith, Chamber secretary, reported on the Hagerstown discussion on the federal wages and hours law, which was criticized because the maximum of forty-two hours is difficult to distribute over a work week and because it is intended, in some industries, to throw persons out of work altogether.

As an example of this last contention, Mr. Smith said tobacco strippers and peanut sorters in the south have been replaced by machinery because employers could use machinery more economically than pay the workers the thirty cents an hour required by the federal law. The workers, mostly negro women, have thus been thrown on the relief folls.

Who Has to Pay?

The question was raised, How long is the worker who makes thirty and forty cents an hour going to continue to hand over money to the government to meet the relief needs of persons who aren't worth thirty cents to any employer?

The only answer to the question was an apparent determination on the chamber's part to resist passage of a state wage and hour act that would apply to intra-state concerns, such as retail stores, restaurants and factories whose products are not sold out of the state.

Ben Kamens reported that he had been impressed by the conciliatory attitude shown toward labor at the Hagerstown forum.

City Has Suffered Too Much

Cumberland has sufffered too much and too long from labor troubles, Mr. Kamens said, urging that some program be worked out to avoid future clashes.

It was difficult to imagine how business slumped in Cumberland during the Celanese strike, and the way it picked up again when the plant got going, Mr. Kamens said.

He urged that the Chamber members be thinking about some program of education and action to promote peace and co-operation in Cumberland's industry.

Employes Don't Know

Mr. Smith brought out an important point made at the Hagerstown meeting, and that was that employers have often been lax in their contacts with their employes. Too many employers fail, he said, to give their workers an honest opportunity to understand the problems of management and just what it takes to keep a business running successfully these days.

The talk then swung to an upholstery plant in Hagerstown, which has ceased to train apprentices because of the wage and hour law, and Mrs. Robert Henderson then wanted to know what was going to be done about the training of apprentices.

Pay or Do Without

Roy W. Eves, B. and O. executive, answered this by saying that business would have to pay its apprentices what the law requires or do without. He pointed out, too, that the railroads are now paying their apprentices more than the thirty cent minimum required by the law.

"Why, boys come to us saying they want apprentice jobs so they can get married," said Mr. Eves.

The members showed interest in a proposal to hold a forum here some time such as was held in Hagerstown, where nationally known business men took the floor along with the little fellows and discussed their problems and what they are doing about them.

Whole County, Ridgeley, Too, Made One Big Family in New Phone Book

All Allegany county, and Ridgeley, too, is just one big happy family as far as the telephone company is concerned.

The new directories, which will be distributed Monday, carry but one alphabetical listing for all the 9,554 phones in Allegany county, Ridgeley, Wellersburg, and State Line.

In previous directories, including the one now in use, the names were listed under ten different exchanges.

J. L. Barrow, manager of the telephone company here, said the new arrangement should make the directory much more convenient and easier to use.

New Type Used

A new kind of type, especially designed for telephone directories, is being used, too, making the names much easier to read, but taking up no more space than in the old directories.

Reflecting more prosperous times, the new directory lists 232 more phones than the last directory, the spring-and-summer edition of this year.

Mr. Barrow issued the usual warning for subscribers to be careful and remove personal papers from their directories before discarding them, because often people forget about these things until too late.

Destroy All Old Books

Mr. Barrow also urged patrons to destroy old directories because so many of the numbers have been changed.

The new lump listing of names is expected to be more convenient because subscribers will not have to leaf through the book looking for the proper exchange and because they will not have to know, for example, whether Miss So-and-So lives in Lonaconing, Mt. Savage, Cumberland, or Westernport to give her a ring.

The alphabetical list of names occupies sixty-three pages. Classified business and professional listings take up thirty-seven pages.

Sebastian Fleckenstein, Builder Of Many Old Canal Boats, Dies

A 71-year-old former boat builder on the old C&O canal died last night at his home at 507 Patterson avenue after a long illness.

He is Sebastian F. Fleckenstein, who started learning the boat building business at the age of sixteen. The barges built by him traveled between here and Washington for many years, relatives recalled last night.

Mr. Fleckenstein followed his trade industriously until the canal passed out of the picture as a commercial life-line. Relatives said they had no idea how many boats he had built during his lifetime.

He was a member of SS Peter and Paul's church and the Holy Name Society.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Louise Ritter Fleckenstein; three daughters, Mrs. A. M. Spioch, wife of Corporal A. M. Spioch of the State Police, Mrs. Henry Ruehl, and Mrs. Harry Yeager, all of Cumberland; and three sons, Vincent, Paul and Charles, all of Cumberland.

Republic Steel Workers Furloughed Indefinitely

Unsettled Market Delays Scheduled Opening of Plant

The Republic Steel plant here, whose early re-opening has been expected by hundreds of workers and their families, will remain idle until after New Year's, it was learned yesterday.

Most of the seventy-five workmen who have been getting the plant ready for production were laid off yesterday.

H. W. Smith, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, said that he understood unsettled conditions in the tin plate market at home and abroad had led to the decision to postpone opening the local plant.

Mr. Smith said he learned of this decision only yesterday, and that it came as a surprise to him.

No Company Statements

No statements have come from the company at any time since preparations to open here were started, but Mr. Smith has been regarded as an official spokesman for the company.

Mr. Smith said he hoped to see the plant open early in January, but that nothing definite is known at this time.

Many of the men who have been furloughed will be without work during the Christmas season. A number of them had given up other jobs to answer the call back to the tin mill.

Expected To Open Dec. 1

WPA headquarters here said that men who had left the WPA to get work at the mill would have to wait at least a week before getting back on WPA.

When the re-opening of the mill was first announced early in November, it was said that the mill would be opened as soon as possible, probably by Dec. 1.

The mill is ready to produce now, it is understood, if and when the orders to do so come through.

Bazaar's Ace Entertainers Discovered in Balcony

Five couples of young negro dancers appeared at the Memorial hospital cancer clinic bazaar last night to jitterbug a bit in the balcony.

But not for long. Someone spied them. Other dancers stopped to watch. Mrs. Morris Rosenbaum, who has kept the fun going at the bazaar all week, was called.

Before long, the dusky dancers had been called down out of the shadows and onto the main dance floor, where, to the great delight of an ever-growing crowd, they put on a show like bazaar crowds had never seen before.

The crowd showered them with nickles and dimes, and the colored youngsters grinned from ear to ear.

Later, they were called back for another show.

"It was a great performance," lamented Harvey Weiss, hospital superintendent, "But it almost broke up the bazaar. Everybody left the amusements to watch the dancers.

"Sure, we'll have them back for the big finale Saturday night. But we're keeping them in reserve. They don't go on until nearly midnight."

Jacobson Speaker At Annual Dinner Of Bible Class

One Hundred Members Attend Duke Memorial Class Dinner at "Y"

"Fellowship comes from the heart", Dr. Samuel M. Jacobson told one hundred members of the Duke Memorial Men's Bible Class last night.

Dealer's Tags Misused

Kenneth L. Athey, 115 Humbird street, was fined $10 and costs yesterday in Trial Magistrate's court for displaying improper tags.

State Trooper George J. Miller arrested Athey for using dealer tags after their ten-day term expired.

Finns Hunting Red Army Rescued from Jail Beds

Two tow-headed sons of Finland who humbly asked for lodging in the city jail last night finally wound up with the best room in a downtown hotel.

The pair, both able-bodied seamen, gave their names as Lauri Johannes, 27, and Alexander Mannila, 34.

Queried by Desk Sergt. Bert B. Browne, the two travelers stated in broken English that they were on their way to New York, planned to said to Finland and then lick the Russians.

No Jail Bed for Patriots

When it was decided at the police station that it wouldn't be seemly for two Finnish patriots to spend the night in the jailhouse, a call was put through to County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle to see what he could do.

Mr. Boyle, who likes all Finns and dislikes practically all Communists, demanded to have the Messrs. Johannes and Mannila brought to his office at once. They were.

Bow Before Boyle

The pair bowed stiffly from the waist when presented to Mr. Boyle, and immediately brought forth their papers, which showed that Johannes is from Vaasan, Finland, and a lieutenant in the Finn army, and that Mannila is from Lathi.

Mr. Boyle, Detective Frank Gaffney and State Parole Officer James Cavanaugh listened intently as Mannila, the more fluent speaker of the two men, explained that no one should feel sorry for the Finns —that it was the Russians who were to be pitied.

Strong on Technique

Queried regarding the tremendous Red army now sweeping into Finland, Mannila said, Yes, that was true, but the Finn army was much smaller and therefore could move much faster—something like Notre Dame, apparently.

The sturdy Finn indicated that the Finn army made up in technique what it lacked in size.

However, both agreed that every man available was needed, and it was for this reason that they were going back to their mother country.

"We Fight"

"We fight," stated Johannes bluntly and curtly, which pointed remark was either considered adequate to cover the situation by the speaker or exhausted his store of English.

At this point cigars were passed around by the county investigator, who remarked that he had no use whatsoever for the Soviets, none whatever.

Taken to Hotel

Informed by Salvation Army headquarters that they were packed to the rafters, Mr. Boyle declared that "these fellows aren't going to sleep in any jail" and took them to the Olympia hotel.

"These boys are on their way to Finland to join the army," Mr. Boyle informed the desk clerk. "I want you to do everything for them you can. It's on me."

A group of men standing around the lobby came up, immediately plunged hands into trouser pockets and came up with dollar bills and half dollars.

Surprised at Kindness

The two surprised Finns blinked with surprise, looked at each other blankly, and then accepted the contributions showered upon them.

Mannila said he and his traveling companion had been at sea for some time and had docked some time ago in Baltimore.

Catch Wrong Ride

After hearing much talk on the Red army's aggression against Finland, they decided to start for home.

Starting out as hitch-hikers, the pair apparently accepted rides at random, and, because of their ignorance of English, wound up in Cumberland last night by mistake. Once in New York they can obtain passage home, Mannila said.

Friends Find Man, 66, Dead

Break Door Down To Enter Room

William A. King, 66, a retired baggage man for the Pennsylvania railroad, yesterday was found dead in his room on South Mechanic street.

Mr. King was last seen alive by Joseph Carney who picked him up in South Cumberland on Wednesday and drove him to the downtown section.

Friends who noticed his absence from the places he generally frequented, went to his rooming house yesterday and discovered that the door to his room was locked from the inside. Poking the key out of the keyhole, the investigators peered through the opening, saw King lying on his cot.

The group, including Dr. R. C. Bowen, who had been making a call on the next floor, hesitated about breaking into the room, finally did so.

Dr. Linne H. Corson, deputy medical examiner, was immediately called. Death was caused by a cerebral hemorrhage, the examiner reported.

Surviving Mr. King are three daughters, Mrs. Laura Moore and Mrs. Charlotte Plackrs, both of Washington, and Mrs. H. F. Constable, of Cumberland, with whom he formerly made his home for some time; and a son, Wilbur A., of Cumberland.

The body was taken to the Lempereur Funeral Home.

Only One Hunter Shot In Hunting for Deer

The first and only hunting accident in Allegany county during the deer season was reported yesterday.

Theodore W. Clark, 503 Fort avenue, was accidentally shot in the leg Thursday afternoon when a gun carried by one of the party trailing him went off.

The wound was slight, the bullet searing the flesh near the shinbone. Only first aid treatment was required. Clark was hunting on Green Ridge.

on High Roads Low Roads and By-Ways

A star athlete contributes our column for today. It's a poem, by none other than Marvin Bell, line-busting center on Allegany high's football team, who was graduated with the class of 1938 and is now at State Teachers' college in Frostburg.

Marvin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy M. Bell, 107 Forster avenue, was inspired to write the poem after studying old English ballads for two weeks in his English course.

He employs the ballad form to tell a modern story, and we must say his poem moves forward like a football team hitting the center of the line for five or ten yards at every clip.

Note the sharp-edged words he uses, the success with which a feeling of tenseness and suppression is created.

A DICTATOR'S STAND

He's started out in a prison cell;
dark, dreary, and mad.
And wrote a book on his future hell;
dark, dreary, and sad.

He's grown a mustache and let down his hair;
dark, brittle, and dry.
And started to spread his plan of repair;
dark, brittle and dry.

His plan of repair was his only religion;
evil, forceful, and bold.
Arm raised in salute, swastika his emblem,
evil, forceful, and bold.

To expel the Jews was his first offense;
strong, powerful, tight.
And put them in camps with a heavy iron fence;
strong, powerful, tight.

He swallowed the Saar and Austria too;
guns, coal, grain.
He needed their help, like gold from the Jews;
guns, coal, grain.

He's turned to Russia, old pal, old pal;
men, power, greed.
I need your help to please my gal;
With men, power, greed.

He turned 'round to Italy, his first true love?
soft, silly, shameless.
We'll have them begging for help from the dove;
soft, silly, shameless.

He's turned to Poland, we need your land;
defiant, brave, determined.
We'll protect it till there's none to stand;
defiant, brave, determined.

France has seen poor Poland's plight;
Courage, bravery, patience.
So they've called in England and entered the fight;
courage, bravery, patience.

The battle started very slowly at first;
Alphonso, Gaston, dare.
Only now and then did a large bomb burst;
Alphonso, Gaston, dare.

With a mile gained here and a ship sunk there;
sissy, coward, afraid
They took from each what the other would share;
sissy, coward, afraid.

Then started the battle in every state;
bombs, bayonets, shelters.
Destruction and death, to kill and hate;
bombs, bayonets, shelters.

But Herr'd not counted the cards in the pack;
fate, futility, folly.
And found that the joker was gone from the stack;
fate, futility, folly.

The Germans were weary of war and its lot;
bread, water, beans.
And liked not the outlook on Hitler's plot;
bread, water, beans.

Italy, the shameless, his first true love?
spaghetti, wine, feast.
Had gone with the allies in the first big shove;
spaghetti, wine, feast.

It started in Prague, or was it Berlin?
Quiet, where, when?
We're tired of starvation, bombed cities and din;
Quiet, where, when?

They planned it well, with the help of French spies;
Money, information, guns.
They knew very well that Herr too despised;
Money, information, guns.

As meeting of members of Hitler's personnel;
Herr, Goebels, Goering.
Closed doors, privacy, no one shall tell;
Herr, Goebels, Goering.

A meeting of anarchists, deep in a glen!
Map, doors, alleys.
A carefully picked crew of a hundred men!
Map, doors, alleys.

They entered the building, no sound of alarm;
right, portals, two men.
Watch out below, here comes a gendarme;
right, portals, two men.

The town was unusually quiet that night;
watch, minutes, time.
It shouldn't go wrong, but something might!
watch, minutes, time.

A signal of success from a warning hand;
hate, vengeance, kill.
And everyone who knew it had gone as planned;
hate, vengeance, kill.

The news went quickly throughout the land;
joy, peace, rest.
That Hitler had played his last big hand;
joy, peace, rest.

Peace was ruler, the armies returned;
sod, grain, factories.
No buildings bombed, no cities burned;
sod, grain, factories.

The people well knew that peace was preserved;
hell, death, repulsion.
And Hitler had received just what he deserved;
hell, death, repulsion.

Student Strikers Re-Unite Front Against Board

Drop Their Fight For Coach Cather; Meeting Tonight

Striking students of Ridgeley high school last night decided to send a committee of six to the meeting of the Mineral county board of education at Keyser tonight to ask reinstatement of Hubert Price as basketball coach and mathematics teacher.

The board had ordered Price replaced by Thomas Small, of Piedmont, at a meeting Wednesday night, the appointment to take effect yesterday.

Members of the student-delegation will be named at a meeting at the high school grounds at noon today, according to William Spriggs, one of the leaders of the strikers.

Officials to Attend

Principal Melvin M. Heiskell and Mayor Paul K. Morgan will also attend the board meeting, along with a delegation of parents.

Last night's meeting, attended by about a score of parents and forty students, was held on the high school grounds when leaders failed to make advance arrangements to hold it inside.

Principal Heiskell said he had not been asked to have the building open, except by some students just a few moments before the meeting was scheduled. The meeting broke up before a delegation of parents could complete the arrangements.

Problem Simplified

Yesterday's chief development, aside from the continuation of the strike, was the simplification of the problem to Price vs. Small.

Thursday night, a group of athletes had told The News that they wanted William "Pete" Cather reappointed to the coaching position.

But yesterday, they decided to present a united front in favor of Price's retention and to seek only to have the "truth" disclosed about Cather's resignation in order to stop "talk" about him.

Peace Move Fails

A "back to school" move failed yesterday morning, despite the pleas of several parents and Principal Heiskell that the students return to classes, pending the board's decision.

The pleas were made at a meeting in the school auditorium, arranged at the suggestion of Benjamin F. Hartman, of Wiley Ford.

Present at the meeting was George Boyd, a member of the board of education, but most of the students walked out before he spoke.

He talked only briefly, suggesting that no further meetings be held until tonight's meeting of the board.

Who Is To Blame?

Hartman, who attended Thursday night's board meeting, which adjourned without taking action, said that the board had attempted to blame Principal Heiskell for the situation.

Hartman declared that the principal has correspondence showing that he hired Price on the authority of County School Superintendent Paul C. Rouzer, with the understanding that he might hold the post for the rest of the school year.

Heiskell confirmed this statement last night.

Business Owners Advised To Tell Employes More

Must Let Workers Know of Problems, Chamber Is Told

Members of the Chamber of Commerce at their luncheon yesterday heard reports from the recent business men's forum at Hagerstown and launched into a rather spirited forum of their own.

H. W. Smith, Chamber secretary, reported on the Hagerstown discussion on the federal wages and hours law, which was criticized because the maximum of forty-two hours is difficult to distribute over a work week and because it has tended, in some industries, to throw persons out of work altogether.

As an example of this last contention, Mr. Smith said tobacco strippers and peanut sorters in the south have been replaced by machinery because employers could use machinery more economically than pay the workers the thirty cents an hour required by the federal law. The workers, mostly negro women, have thus been thrown on the relief folls.

Who Has to Pay?

The question was raised, How long is the worker who makes thirty and forty cents an hour going to continue to hand over money to the government to meet the relief needs of persons who aren't worth thirty cents to any employer?

The only answer to the question was an apparent determination on the chamber's part to resist passage of a state wage and hour act that would apply to intra-state concerns, such as retail stores, restaurants, and factories whose products are not sold out of the state.

Ben Kamens reported that he had been impressed by the conciliatory attitude shown toward labor at the Hagerstown forum.

City Has Suffered Too Much

Cumberland has sufffered too much and too long from labor troubles, Mr. Kamens said, urging that some program be worked out to avoid future clashes.

It was difficult to imagine how business slumped in Cumberland during the Celanese strike, and the way it picked up again when the plant got going, Mr. Kamens said.

He urged that the Chamber members be thinking about some program of education and action to promote peace and co-operation in Cumberland's industry.

Employes Don't Know

Mr. Smith brought out an important point made at the Hagerstown meeting, and that was that employers have often been lax in their contacts with their employes. Too many employers fail, he said, to give their workers an honest opportunity to understand the problems of management and just what it takes to keep a business running successfully these days.

The talk then swung to an upholstery plant in Hagerstown, which has ceased to train apprentices because of the wage and hour law, and Mrs. Robert Henderson then wanted to know what was going to be done about the training of apprentices.

Pay or Do Without

Roy W. Eves, B. and O. executive, answered this by saying that business would have to pay its apprentices what the law requires or do without. He pointed out, too, that the railroads are now paying their apprentices more than the thirty cent minimum required by the law.

"Why, boys come to us saying they want apprentice jobs so they can get married," said Mr. Eves.

The members showed interest in a proposal to hold a forum here some time such as was held in Hagerstown, where nationally known business men took the floor along with the little fellows and discussed their problems and what they are doing about them.

Births

Mr. and Mrs. Randolph J. Jewell, 131 Arch street, announce the birth of a son last night at Allegany hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent D. Miltenberger, of LaVale, announce the birth of a cson yesterday afternoon at Allegany hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. George Harden, 509 Maryland avenue, announce the birth of a son yesterday afternoon Memorial hospital.

Colored Advancement Group Meets Monday

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will meet at Frederick street school Monday at 8 p.m. Business of great importance to all members and friends will be discussed, according to Levine Weaver, president.

Sebastian Fleckenstein, Builder Of Many Old Canal Boats, Dies

A 71-year-old former boat builder on the old C&O canal died last night at his home at 507 Patterson avenue after a long illness.

He is Sebastian F. Fleckenstein, who started learning the boat building business at the age of sixteen. The barges built by him traveled between here and Washington for many years, relatives recalled last night.

Mr. Fleckenstein followed his trade industriously until the canal passed out of the picture as a commercial life-line. Relatives said they had no idea how many boats he had built during his lifetime.

He was a member of SS Peter and Paul's church and the Holy Name Society.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Louise Ritter Fleckenstein; three daughters, Mrs. A. M. Spioch, wife of Corporal A. M. Spioch of the State Police, Mrs. Henry Ruehl, and Mrs. Harry Yeager, all of Cumberland; and three sons, Vincent, Paul and Charles, all of Cumberland.
